Dies to Call Kuhn Again For Quizzing On Nazi Ties

Contradictions in U. S. Fuehrer's Story And Other Witnesses' Will Be Gone Into

By Robert C. Albright

Chairman Dies of the House Committee on Un-American Activities said last night he again will summon Fritz Kuhn, German-American bund fuehrer, to the witness stand after developing evidence, he said, links the bund with the Nazi government.

Dies, who prepared to put on the stand today a former member of so-called Fascist groups which had contact with the bund, said he wants Kuhn to explain conflicts in his testimony with evidence presented by other witnesses.

In a brief session yesterday the committee heard John Harvey Sherman, president of Tampa, Fla., University and a former Washingtonian, charge efforts by the German Consul General at New Orleans to donate German books to his university library in return for assurances the university would engage an "adequate" German professor.

Own Professor Attacked

Sherman said the Consul General, Baron Edgar Spiegel von und zu Peckelsheim, made the offer to him last year in behalf of the Nazi government after attacks "traced back to undemocratic sources" had been launched against Otto Kraus, university German professor, opposed to the Nazi regime.

Dispatches from New Orleans, meanwhile, quoted the German Consul General there as denying he offered "textbooks supplied by my government," but admitting paying a visit to the university head.

Dies' announcement that Kuhn again will be called before his committee followed a wire from the bund leader demanding that other bund officials be permitted to answer last week's testimony by Helen Vooros, former bund youth leader, charging "immorality" in bund camps.

Explanation to Be Sought

Dies would not say whether he would comply with the request. Representative Mason (Republican), of Illinois, the only other committee member in Washington yesterday, said "Kuhn has no right to demand anything." But Mason agreed with Dies that Kuhn should be subpenaed "for explanations" after other witnesses have been heard.

Kuhn vigorously denied any connection between the bund and the Nazi government, when testifying.

Heat Prostrates Man Here; 2 Boys Rescued in Bay

The temperature rose only to 89 degrees here yesterday but it caused one heat prostration. The victim was Floyd Wallecker, 41, of 2045 North Stafford avenue, Arlington. He collapsed at Eighteenth and E streets northwest, and was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Two youths, one a Washingtonian, according to the Associated Press, were rescued in Chesapeake Bay by the Claiborne-Annapolis ferry yesterday after their kayak foundered in rough water. The youths identified themselves as Elliott Moore, 16, of Washington, and Jack Hughes, 17, of Mount Airy, Md.

The Weather Bureau forecast showers for early today to be followed by fair moderate weather; tomorrow will be cloudy and warmer.

Gasoline Prices Rise in Texas

Tulsa, Aug. 21 (AP).—Texas—leader in the six-State shutdown of crude oil production—was the first today to report higher gasoline prices for motorists.

Floyd Moore, secretary of the Houston Independent Petroleum Marketers Association, reported some 200 small independent filling stations hiked the price of gasoline approximately 3 cents a gallon. Other larger independents in Houston raised third grade gasoline prices 2 cents a gallon, Moore said.

Elsewhere throughout the six-State area of Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas, New Mexico, Arkansas and Louisiana retail prices were mostly unchanged.

The Pedestrian Talks Back:

Conditioned by Police Whistles, He Now Jaywalks Furtively

Crossed on Red, Then Had to Wait for Street Car

By Howard F. Wentworth.

After five months of meek submission to antijaywalking laws, the average Washington pedestrian is apt to stop dead in his tracks—even while walking the baby—at any sound closely resembling a policeman's whistle.

He has learned to master intricate feats of curbline balancing at the slightest glower from a crossing officer and a "Hey, you!" coming from anywhere in the vicinity of a busy intersection will freeze him to the spot.

But, in spite of his outward docility, he secretly "burns" over one phase of being controlled. The Post conducted a pedestrian poll yesterday, and although the majority of street users still favor walking regulations, they can't become reconciled to awaiting the pleasure

Hopkins Adds Tenth Expert To Boost Trade

Dudley P. K. Wood to Make Special Study Of South America

Latin-American trade promotion yesterday was added to the tasks of Secretary of Commerce Hopkins' "best brains" staff, as the department announced appointment of Dudley P. K. Wood, 32-year-old former managing director of American Machine & Foundry Co. operations in Europe.

Wood, tenth expert to be added to the little group Hopkins is building around him to foster domestic and foreign trade and aid in his business co-operation program, was the first of the ten to receive a definite assignment.

Hopkins said Wood has had "wide experience in Latin-American trade in his various business affiliations." He will undertake an analysis of trade possibilities in every South American country, studying their needs and ability to buy, as well as articles this country can purchase from them without substantial competition with American products.

In the Secretary's absence Hopkins' special staff of ten yesterday met with Willard L. Thorp, economic adviser to the secretary, and Fletcher H. Rawls, acting director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Division chiefs of the bureau were introduced by Rawls. Thorp discussed the program.

Members of the so-called "business embassy" staff, which will be directly responsible to Hopkins, and

Aide of Huey Long, Four Others Accused Of Splitting $400,000

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, Aug. 21.—Another prominent name was added to the growing list of indicted Huey Long leaders today when a Federal grand jury accused Abe Shushan of using the mails to defraud.

The 300-pound former wholesaler was indicted with four New Orleans business leaders on charges they split nearly $400,000 in fraudulent fees paid for refinancing bonds of the New Orleans levee board.

This brought under Federal indictment three of the four best-known lieutenants of the late Senator Long who took over Louisiana's political reins in 1935 when a bullet cut short the "Kingfish's" spectacular career.

Former Gov. Richard Leche and Hotel Man Seymour Weiss already faced criminal charges and Mayor Robert Maestri of New Orleans remained the only one of the "high command" left free to attempt salvage of the once mighty Long machine.

Accused with the 45-year-old Shushan, who was acquitted in 1935 of an income tax charge, were Attorney Herbert Waguespack, Financiers Robert J. Newman and Norvin T. Harris and Accountant Henry J. Miller. The first four all made bond of $15,000 while Miller was freed under $5,000 bond.

The indictment alleged:

U. S. Seizes Two Japanese Arms Smugglers on Coast

By International News Service

An undercover plot to smuggle American arms and munitions to Japanese military authorities in Shanghai, through United States West Coast ports, was disclosed yesterday by the Treasury Department.

Federal officials expressed belief they had thwarted, in the incipient stage, carefully laid plans of a Japanese-American ring to ship arms to Japanese forces in China, in violation of the neutrality act.

Elmer L. Irey, chief of Treasury intelligence agents, announced arrest by custom agents of two Japanese in Los Angeles, and seizure of a small contraband arsenal, including American Army guns.

The plot, ramifications of which were undetermined, apparently originated in the threatened extension of the "moral embargo" now banning shipment of airplanes to Japan, to forbid also the export of firearms and ammunition.

The Japanese had placed the contraband aboard the Tatua Maru, Japanese mail liner in Los Angeles harbor, for shipment to the civilian barracks of the Japanese naval attache in Shanghai.

Agents arrested Kintano Asano and Kane Hirao for failure to obtain an export license for the guns and ammunition.

The prisoners were identified as associates of other Japanese who operated a West Coast narcotic smuggling ring, and have long been under investigation

Watergate Crowd Cheers Harrison

Third Appearance Takes Audience by Storm; Contrasts Mark Program

By John Chabot Smith.

Guy Fraser Harrison, guest conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra, took the Watergate by storm at his third appearance last night, and left with the cheers of the orchestra ringing above the audience's applause.

A scant 5,000 listeners had returned after Sunday night's drenching to hear the postponed concert and barely a dozen of nearly 75 canoes had reappeared. Yet the weather rarely has given the Watergate concerts a better setting than last night, when a half-moon and a few bright stars shone from a clear sky.

A program full of contrasts, from the popular gayety of Strauss' "Emperor Waltz" to the sophisticated dreams of "The Swan of Tuonela," by Sibelius, won an enthusiastic reception that belied the empty seats. Once again the orchestra was made to play encores until there was no music left on the barge.

Luoma Stirs Hearers

The major work was Rachmaninoff's Concerto No. 2 for piano and orchestra, brilliantly played by Reino Luoma. Though his masterful rendering of this intricate, thoughtful work delighted the audience, some of its color and effectiveness was lost by an unfortunate lack of balance in the amplification.

Every note from the piano carried clearly, but the warm harmonies of the supporting orchestra were so subdued they were sometimes almost inaudible, and the two parts of the concerto seemed to lose all relationship.

Even so, the beauty of the work so stirred the audience that Luoma again and again was recalled to the stage, till he offered as an encore a Cappriccio in C-sharp minor by Brahms.

Opening Mood Dark

Weber's dark and evil overture to "Der Freischutz" opened the program in a mood of ominous shadows, growing with unrestrained exuberance to the defiant dance at its close. Then the haunting, elusive melody of "The Afternoon of a Faun," by Debussy brought the first sharp change of mood. The strange, intangible summer dream, touched with wonder and sadness, flowed calmly on, a delicately colored picture with shapes but no lines.

Another fancy of a more robust sort followed, "The Sorcerer's Apprentice," by Dukas, sketching the frantic predicament of the boy whose meddling with his master's charms nearly ends in his own de-

Waterbury Mayor Gets 10 to 15 Years For Treasury Raid

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 21 (AP).—Mayor Frank Hayes, convicted last week by a superior court jury to whom he had been pictured by the State as an "arrogant" manipulator of a "puppet government" during the operation of an eight-year conspiracy which plundered the municipal treasury of more than $1,000,000, was sentenced tonight to from 10 to 15 years in prison.

Daniel J. Leary, former city comptroller whose office was described by the prosecution as the "nerve center" of the conspiracy, received a similar sentence.

Carl D. Olsen, former Waterbury bank executive, and Alderman Thomas P. Kelly, were sentenced to from 7 to 12 years.

Roosevelt Gets Mail; Back Friday

Aboard U. S. S. Lang, Halifax, N. S., Aug. 21 (AP).—Completing two-thirds of his vacation cruise, President Roosevelt arrived here late today aboard the cruiser Tuscaloosa to look into two White House mail bags carrying documents requiring his immediate attention.

WPA projects which had to have Mr. Roosevelt's approval before construction could start were among the more important matters.

He was expected to reach Annapolis Friday, since Prince Consort Felippe of Luxembourg is to be a week-end guest at the White House.

Boland to Dismiss 7 Assistant Whips For Disloyalty

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 21 (AP).—Patrick J. Boland (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, majority whip of the United States House of Representatives, said today he is "contemplating the dismissal of 7 of the 16 assistant whips" who served under him at the recently adjourned session of Congress, "because of their disloyalty to President Roosevelt, as evidenced by their opposition to the President's legislative program."

He did not mention any names in the interview, but said he "probably" would take action soon after Congress reconvenes.

Declaring he has "always been with Roosevelt, shoulder to shoulder, in promoting his programs," Boland said he would "not countenance any treachery.

U. S. Future Held 'Dubious' in China

San Francisco, Aug. 21 (AP).—Admiral Harry E. Yarnall, retiring commander of the United States Asiatic Fleet, said today "the future of Americans in China is very dubious."

"If the Japanese plans succeed, I doubt very much whether there will be any business for Americans in China," he added.

The admiral in an address, said the invaders of China had proclaimed a new order in Asia.

"I feel sure," the naval chief declared, "that if the extensive American trade with China is cut off in the future it will mean a very serious thing for this country, and for the Far West in particular."

Danzig-Corridor Settlement This Week Forecast In Germany

By Louis P. Lochner.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Berlin, Aug. 21.—The present week will bring some "decision" on the Danzig-Polish corridor problem, foreign and German observers generally agreed tonight.

One source expressed the conviction the expected decision would be "peaceful."

Many signs pointed to any day this week as "the day," although the meeting of seven small powers convoked by King Leopold of Belgium, probably for Wednesday, may have a delaying effect.

A government spokesmen said the Brussels conference could succeed "if the seven powers can talk sense to Poland." But the whole attitude in German circles seemed to be that Poland would not yield. Chances of success for the Brussels conference were not regarded here as high.

Britain Behind It

Political circles took it for granted the initiative for King Leopold's action came from England, and interpreted this to mean England was weakening before the German demands.

Germany has no concession to offer to the conference, spokesmen intimated.

Most German papers prefer not to fix any date for the expected "showdown." The Essener National Zeitung, however, boldly stated that this week would bring the decision.

The Zeitung, often spoken of as Marshal Goering's personal paper, is usually well informed.

From a military point of view, too, various signs indicated the early approach of "the day."

Berliners who spent Sunday near the Baltic, said train after train rushed in a northeasterly direction carrying soldiers and equipment.

2,000,000 on Border

Others who drove in the direction of Dessau, seat of the Junkers airplane works, said they could not get near the city because it was designated as a military area.

(A dispatch from Zilina, Slovakia, said German army divisions geared for quick action pushed on to northern Slovakia adjacent to Poland. Motorized troops, fully equipped with antiaircraft guns and light artillery, were massed at the frontier and German arms commanded all of Slovakia's main roads to Poland.)

Belgium Calls Small Neutrals To Avert War

Invites 6 Nations to Immediate Parley to Join in Peace Plea

By the Associated Press

Brussels, Aug. 21.—Young King Leopold III summoned six other small, neutral nations today to join Belgium in an urgent appeal to settle Europe's quarrels.

The conference, called suddenly for Wednesday, will have as another major aim the co-ordination of policy of the seven neutrals regarding such problems in event of war as revictualing of populations, disarmament and care of wounded and gassed and the sheltering of refugees.

An informed source said the text of the proposed appeal to Europe's big powers already had been drafted.

Anxious to preserve complete neutrality, the Belgian foreign office issued a communique stating "it must be stressed that the possibility of any offer of mediation of present international differences . . . is out of the question."

The government of the 37-year-old monarch, looked to as a potential mediator in Europe's immediate tension, called the conference among the foreign ministers of Belgium, The Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland and Luxembourg.

The seven nations became associated in the Oslo Trade Convention four years ago in working for

Ribbentrop Flying to Soviet Capital To Conclude Treaty This Week; Nazis Deny Deal Will Weaken Anti-Communist, Japanese Accords

London, Paris Cabinets Meet Today

BRITISH AND FRENCH CABINET ministers rushed back from vacations for important and unexpected cabinet meetings today, out of which were expected to come far-reaching decisions.

HUNGARY'S FOREIGN MINISTER, Count Csaky, returned from conferences with Hitler and Mussolini denying that the Axis powers had sought any action from Hungary.

Peace Front Upset

World capitals last night were unanimous in expressing amazement and bewilderment over the announcement of an impending German-Soviet nonaggression pact.

Although few foreign offices would vouchsafe any official comment, the general feeling was that Fuehrer Hitler had scored a tremendous diplomatic victory, giving the Third Reich vastly increased advantages in its quarrel with Poland over Danzig and other war-lost German territories.

However, no one seemed able to predict with conviction what the immediate or ultimate results might be, and the full meaning remained to be seen:

Beyond the immediate crisis, however, it appeared that the new situation created by the German-Soviet agreement might portend developments of hitherto unsuspected nature in central and southeastern Europe.

Peace Front Blocked

From Europe's capitals came these reactions:

London. — Government circles were thrown into consternation, and opinion was divided on whether the agreement would wreck Anglo-French efforts to bring Russia into an alliance. All quarters were agreed, however, that any immediate danger of war had been at least postponed. Official comment was cautious, however, pending formal information.

Warsaw—Polish leaders, stunned, held nevertheless to the hope that the Moscow conversations with Britain and France would not be disrupted. The German news agency, DNB, reported that Poland, which had virtually denuded its Russian frontier of troops to reinforce the German border, had called up fresh reserves in the eastern section of the country.

Tokyo—Neutral quarters said Japan is hard hit by the surprise, because it weakens greatly the Italo-German-Japanese anti-comintern pact and leaves Japan virtually isolated diplomatically.

Danzig Nazis Jubilant

Rome—Italians were quick to declare the action of Italy's axis partner would not affect the Italo-German alliance, although Rome was as surprised as other capitals. It was believed, however, that Mussolini had been informed of the plan by his ambassador to Berlin, whom he saw today.

Paris.—Official sources refused to comment, but there was private anger and astonishment among Frenchmen and foreign observers feared danger of a "second Munich" was enormously increased.

Danzig—Nazis jubilantly predicted an early Polish-German showdown over their Free City's "return to the Reich" and said Hitler, by neutralizing Soviet Russia's power, has opened the way for peaceful an-

Poland Weakened

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 21.—Germany upset the whole structure of the tense European situation by announcing shortly before midnight tonight that she will conclude a nonaggression pact with Soviet Russia.

If there is to be a conflict as a result of the Polish-German dispute over Danzig and the Polish Corridor it now appears certain Russia will be neutral.

The position of Poland, which had been counting on the effectiveness of what Germany calls the "democratic encirclement policy," appeared to have been weakened greatly.

German soldiers were massing on the Polish frontier and it seemed certain that if they are called upon to march eastward they will not have to worry about the possibility of encountering Russian troops somewhere in middle Poland.

All Europe Startled

Germany's announcement of its diplomatic coup startled all Europe.

It apparently meant failure for the months-long efforts of Britain and France to induce Russia to enter a front to back up Poland, Rumania and other smaller European countries against aggression.

For, according to the German announcement, Russia had agreed not to fight Germany.

[Although the projected accord was accepted as "new" it appeared to represent actually a renewal of a previous nonaggression treaty signed originally on April 24, 1926. This agreement was renewed by Hitler on May 5, 1933, for a period of seven years, and despite outward intense mutual dislike between Nazi Germany and Communist Russia, presumably still was in force.—Editor's note.]

The announcement of what diplomatic observers admitted was a master stroke by Fuehrer Hitler came even while British and French military officers were in Moscow going over plans of strategy with high Soviet officers.

To Be Signed at Once

It seemed likely that these discussions would lead to no constructive results.

The brief official announcement of the decision of Russia and Germany to conclude an agreement not to go to war stated that Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop will arrive in Moscow Wednesday to conclude negotiations.

The announcement by the official German news agency a few minutes before midnight said:

"The government of the Reich and the Soviet government have decided to conclude a nonaggression pact with each other.

"The Reichminister of foreign affairs, von Ribbentrop, will arrive in Moscow Wednesday to conclude the negotiations."

It was presumed the vitally important document would be signed within the course of a day or two, after which Germany would not have to fear any great intervention from the East so far as military opposition is concerned.

Whether this confidence would speed up or retard the culmination

Japan-Ruled Regime Asks Damages for Shanghai Deaths

By the Associated Press

Shanghai (Tuesday), Aug. 22.—The Japanese-sponsored Shanghai municipal government last night demanded indemnities from International Settlement authorities for the killing of two pro-Japanese Chinese policemen and the wounding of six others by a British policeman Saturday.

The demands were accompanied by a threat that unless they were carried out "in good faith," the municipality would "take such measures deemed necessary and suitable."

Four specific measures were included in the communication handed to Cornell Franklin, American chairman of the International Settlement Council:

Punishment of the individual who "did the firing" and any others connected with the affair.

A report on the disciplinary measures to the mayor of the Shanghai municipality.

Payment of damages by the Settlement to the victims or their relatives.

An apology and assurances that similar incidents would not occur in the future.

Settlement authorities were silent on the demands, but were expected to reply shortly.

The communication raised a difficult point in that the Settlement has not recognized the municipal government and officials of the foreign area heretofore have ignored many communications from it.

SPIES WIRED FOR SOUND

In the opinion of Edgar Hoover's FBI counter-espionage, there is now at least one paid spy-agent-provocateur in every American city of 50,000 or more. Hoover estimates that these undercover men for the dictator-aggressor-have-not nations total around 10,000.

Edgar Hoover

After his success in Czechoslovakia, Herr Goebbels boasted privately that each spy-propagandist-saboteur was worth a battery of artillery.

• • • •

What are these alien invaders after? They don't want merely such melodramatic tidbits as the plans for the new armory, mess hall or polo field at the nearest Army post.

Blueprints for new warships or Army planes are incidental.

In the opinion of our counter-espionage chiefs, it is war. In our loose-knit amiable American manner, we are permitting them to wage modern war in our midst.

These Fascist spies are inflicting psychological sabotage; that's the view of those familiar with our voluminous files on espionage.

Like their colleagues and fellow practitioners, the Communists, they join hands in a common front with every deluded foe of the American way who will shelter them. They sneer at the "poppy-cock of democracy." They provoke every dissension to help their foreign cause. They egg on every American quarrel, confuse every American doubter.

"—the indulgent American"

It is war, and the stakes are enormous. The stakes are a slice of the fortune of every American capitalist; a part of the income of every middle-class family; a share of every American worker's wages, all to be taken away overseas as literally as a have-not prowler steals your wallet from the dresser at night in your bedroom.

• • • •

They have launched the greatest social lobby ever seen in America. The Washington social lobby is kindergarten stuff beside it. It operates at every level from the beer parlor through the cocktail party up to the champagne supper.

Butter won't melt in their mouths as they go after the American worker, the American shopkeeper, the American millionaire.

Some of the agents are disguised as "Americans;" others actually are hired Americans; some rely heavily on foreign "charm" of the movie sort.

• • • •

The State Department does not minimize the dangers of this subversive anti-American activity. Its estimates of the number of agents, however, is lower than that of Edgar Hoover's FBI. Our State Department is forced by diplomatic amenities to deal with this menace tactfully. It regards foreign propaganda as the more important part of spy activity, overshadowing military espionage.

"—the spies' social lobby"

Every once in a while, when the spy-propagandists become too crass and too bold, a foreign diplomat is called in and gently reminded that there are limits . . . But it is plain to our officials that this espionage is warfare, conducted as such warfare has been conducted in Czechoslovakia, Austria, Albania, Poland and Spain.

• • • •

Recently a German official organ declared "the situation in the United States is exactly what it was in Spain in 1936."

During the war the French blazoned on billboards a spy warning: "Guard yourself; the ears of our enemies are always open."

Here this warning could be paraphrased to read: "Guard yourself; the mouths of our enemies are always open."

Obviously, our democratic tolerance gives foreign spies a green light and a wide-open track for propaganda. They are protected by American hospitality and by American insistence on free speech for all—even for foreign propagandists and those hired or influenced by them. But there must be a saturation point somewhere. To what extent can foreign nations abuse the hospitality extended their official representatives?

• • • •

Maybe there is a limit beyond which diplomatic immunity cannot be extended. Beyond that lies diplomatic vulnerability. This republic is not stupid enough to play into foreign hands indefinitely. The objective of the onslaught is the seizure of a part of this country's lucky share of world resources and world trade; that is, something from the pocketbook of every American.

Milk Strikers Win Higher Price in N. Y.

LaGuardia Parley Brings Settlement of Week-Long Dispute

By the Associated Press

New York (Tuesday), Aug. 22.—A plan to settle New York's week-old milk strike was adopted early today at a conference of interested parties with Mayor LaGuardia.

The mayor announced a formula had been accepted for a blended milk price of $2.15 a hundredweight (47 quarts) to farmers until October 1, unless the price to be set under the Federal-State marketing agreement should be higher.

The Dairy Farmers' Union struck last Tuesday, demanding a $2.35 blended price, compared with approximately $1.60 at present.

50-Year Fight Renewed

The resumption of a 50-year fight over the spread in price between the producer and consumer resulted in the city's 7,000,000 residents getting only about half their normal supply of 4,000,000 quarts, of which 1,000,000 ordinarily go into cream and ice cream.

At Hammond, before a crowd of 2,500, pickets at a milk plant fought State troopers. On the outskirts of Syracuse, 30 farmers beat two troopers and two truckmen, dumped 600 quarts of milk on the ground and fled. On several Ulster County farms, strikers spoiled milk with kerosene, a sheriff reported. Altogether, more than 30 strikers were arrested.

In New York City, milkmen were ordered to concentrate deliveries on homes with children; grocery stores were short; and isolated sales of 11-cent Grade B were reported at as high as 17 cents. Ordinarily, the retail dealers' profit is 1 or 2 cents per quart.

City Distribution Plan

The strikers' delegation guaranteed that if necessary, a minimum supply would be allowed through to a municipal distributing agency.

The strike is led by the Dairy Farmers Union, which claims 15,000 members. Most of their milk goes to the smaller distributors who comprise about 50 per cent of the metropolitan market.

A larger group of farmers is organized into the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association, supplying mainly Borden and Sheffield, who cover nearly all the remaining market.

Last spring State Attorney General Bennett estimated the distributors got 13 to 27 per cent of the retail return on each quart, and began an investigation to see if this was justified. His findings have not been announced yet.

Ohio Steel Union Accuses NLRB Of 'Gross Abuse'

Philadelphia, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Central Council of Steel Plants, claiming to represent 50,000 of the 60,000 employes in the Ohio plants of Republic Steel Corporation, accused the National Labor Relations Board today of "gross abuse of discretion" and asked the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to hear its claim before deciding the company's appeal from a labor board order.

The council contended the labor board refused to permit it to intervene in the hearing on unfair labor charges brought against the company by the Steel Workers Organizing Committee.

Republic appealed to Federal court in October, 1938, after the labor board ordered it to reinstate 5,000 workmen who took part in the "Little Steel" strikes of 1937. It was in the same order that the board also directed the independent employe group be dissolved. The court now has under consideration arguments by both Republic and the National Labor Relations Board.

The council said it has an "overwhelming majority" among employes. It declared its groups are entirely "independent" of company domination or control and asserted thousands of its members would not join the C. I. O. union because of its "organizational methods."

Red Cross Plans To Observe 75th Anniversary Date

Local Red Cross officers will celebrate the seventh-fifth anniversary of the foundation of the International Red Cross at 2:30 p. m. today, when roll call chairmen meet at their headquarters, 1725 I street northwest, to hear a commemorative international broadcast. Open house for the roll call organization will follow.

Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, will speak from New York, and Max Huber, president of the International Red Cross commmittee, will speak from Geneva.

The historic experience of Henri Dunant at the battle of Solferina, when the Genevan banker first developed the idea of an international war-relief organization, will be briefly dramatized, with music by the United States Army Band. The International Red Cross Society was formed at Geneva in 1864, five years later.

of a red light when there's no traffic approaching.

He'll Take a Chance

More than 95 per cent of those who expressed views were convinced pedestrian control rules have helped Washington's traffic record. But even among the majority, there was strong sentiment against too-rigid enforcement.

There was the little man who calmly mopped his forehead while crossing against a red signal at Fifteenth street and New York avenue northwest and came face to face with one of Maj. Brown's "finest." He took his lecture with a wry grin, then sauntered on his way. He was stopped by The Post interviewer.

"Sure," he said, "I believe in pedestrian regulations. But I don't believe in standing still in the hot sun when no traffic is coming and I'm in no danger if I cross. I think that's carrying things a little too far. I may yet get a ticket, but I'll take a chance every time."

Some Look and Bolt

The little man with the handkerchief had many followers in his belief. There were a few who commented that "law is law" and traffic or no traffic, they were going to wait for the green light.

Random observations at principal downtown corners disclosed obedience to the law in all but a few scattered instances. At intersections manned by policemen, observance of the pedestrian signal was always 100 per cent. At corners where no policeman was in sight, there were those who cast furtive glances side and rear and bolted law and order.

In midtown and outlying sections, however, the rules are a complete flop.

"Why should I waste time waiting for some silly light to change when I can cross a street without getting hit anyway?" scoffed a woman in a red bandana near Dupont Circle. "Downtown? Well that's a little different."

His Argument Fails

Observed another woman on downtown Pennsylvania avenue:

"I think it is the best thing that ever happened here, but why can't they give the pedestrian more time to cross?"

The argument of an accused jaywalker in traffic court yesterday drew a smile from Judge Edward M. Curran—and it also drew a $2 fine.

Harold S. Cutts, of 2715 Connecticut avenue, was charged with crossing obliquely at Twelfth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. He told the judge:

"I'm pretty quick on my feet. I have been dodging heavy traffic all my life—you see I'm a native Washingtonian and can cope with the situation. I have no fear of autos. You can always look at the front wheels of a car and tell which way it is going."

"You'll be killed one of these days," observed Judge Curran.

"Oh, no, I won't," responded Cutts, "I've had Army training and they teach you to be quick."

Judge Curran grinned, but pointed out that a law had been adopted and must be enforced.

Capt. Milton D. Smith, commander of the Police Traffic Division, blamed out-of-towners for the majority of violations.

Arrests since the law became effective March 10 have averaged about 30 a month.

Affidavit 'Lost' In Bridges Case

San Francisco, Aug. 21 (AP).—An affidavit by John L. Leech, former Communist and a Government witness in the Harry Bridges deportation hearing, became the core of a mystery today.

Thomas Shoemaker, Department of Labor counsel, told Examiner James M. Landis he had word from Washington that neither the office of Labor Secretary Perkins nor her solicitor's office could find the copy.

Leech had testified he made the affidavit at Los Angeles, in which he disavowed Bridges was a member of the Communist Party, and Richard Gladstein, Bridges' attorney, said a copy had been sent Miss Perkins two years ago.

Political Arena

Idaho Falls, Idaho, Aug. 21 (AP). Herbert Hoover today advised Idaho and other Western States to continue their fight to have the Cuban sugar import quota reduced and the limitation on domestic sugar beet acreage removed.

The former President declared if the twin steps were taken, not only would beet producers benefit, but growers of two other major Western commodities, potatoes and onions, also would profit.

Mr. Hoover paused here on a flight to west Yellowstone "to get in a little fishing."

Yellowstone Park, Wyo., Aug. 21 (AP).—Senator Nye, of North Dakota, is "most appreciative" of a reported "favorite son" boom for him as Republican Presidential nominee.

Senator Nye

Here to rest, the Senator is not saying whether he's interested in the movement his friends say will get its start at a Minot, N. Dak., rally next month.

He observed: "My 14 years in the Senate leave me quite content with my present opportunities for service in public life, from which I contemplate complete retirement after a few more years."

Expansion of the Hatch law to curb the political activities of State as well as Federal employes was advocated yesterday by Senator Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas.

Sheppard said he thought the law should include all State employes who receive a portion of their pay through Federal channels. This would reach chiefly State highway workers and employes of local social security divisions.

A. F. L. President William Green said last night that he had demanded the resignation of Mace Brown as president of the Omaha Central Labor Union because Brown opposed Wagner act amendments sponsored by A. F. L. leaders.

Brown resigned last Saturday at Green's request.

Dr. Paul Raver Named Director Of Bonneville Dam

Dr. Paul J. Raver, recently named chairman of the Illinois Commerce Commission, was appointed yesterday by Secretary Ickes as administrator of the Bonneville Dam project. He will assume his duties September 15, succeeding Acting Administrator Frank A. Banks.

Dr. Raver, a native of Logansport, Ind., became supervisor of the section of rates and research of the Illinois Commerce Commission in 1933. He was released from his present duties by Gov. Horner of Illinois.

26 Indians Praised For Work at N. Y. Fair

Twenty-six Indian youths, obtained as an honor guard at the New York World's Fair through efforts of the Indian Office, Department of Interior, will stop in Washington en route to Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kans., it was announced yesterday.

Although no date has been set for the visit, reception ceremonies are being planned by John Herrick, acting Indian commissioner.

"Bottlenecks" Sought

Members of the new staff will have no administrative responsibilities, and will come and go at Hopkins' beck and call, operating on assignments aimed at removing business "bottlenecks." They will cooperate with the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Hopkins, reported recovered from a recent long illness, was still at his Mechanicsville, Md., farm yesterday. He has kept in daily touch with the department, aides said. He is expected to return shortly for his first formal conference with the trade promotion aides.

Wood, a 1928 graduate of Harvard, was affiliated with the Bayuk Cigar Co., of Philadelphia, until 1929. For two years he served as managing director of Industrial Machinery Co., Ltd., which distributes products of the American Machine & Foundry Co. in Europe.

Printers' Union Accuses A. F. L. of 'Cheap Dramatics'

Fort Worth, Aug. 21 (AP).—Woodruff Randolph of Chicago, secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union, today accused President William Green and the executive council of the American Federation of Labor of "cheap dramatics."

The accusation was made after Frank Morrison, A. F. of L. secretary, read to the I. T. U. convention the text of a resolution adopted by the council at Atlantic City last Friday.

Randolph and President Claude M. Baker of I. T. U. interpreted the resolution to mean the suspension was "conditional" upon continued failure to pay a special assessment and not "automatic," as Green was quoted as having reported in Atlantic City.

Lt. Lohman Starts His 48th Year as D. C. Policeman

Lieut. Harry R. Lohman, who has seen longer service with the Metropolitan Police Department than any other officer, started his forty-eighth year in uniform yesterday just as he started the other 47 years—by reporting for work.

Lieut. Lohman, who will be 70 on December 19, joined the force on August 21, 1892, after working as a field trumpeter in the Marine Corps, a streetcar conductor, and an insurance salesman. Now he wouldn't give up his job at any price, though he was eligible to retire six years ago and carries two bullet wounds in his chest, received in the line of duty 25 years ago.

Asked if he was thinking about retiring, he answered yesterday, "No, I'm waiting to be promoted."

A decline of more than 1,400 accidents for the year ended June 30, 1939, from the previous year, was reported yesterday by the Police Department. Accidents totaled 10,962. Traffic offense charges handled by the corporation counsel's office at Police Court decreased nearly 7,800, totaling 27,714 cases.

More than 8,000 of the traffic cases were speed charges, Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal reported. Driving through red lights and without permits tallied more than 1,000 each.

Another 3,000 were based on charges of disorderly conduct. There were 24 charges of turning in false fire alarms and 1 charge of a false police alarm.

The report showed income of $475,149 from fines and forfeitures, a decrease of approximately $30,000. Police precincts reported more than 23,000 persons forfeited collateral.

There were 490 less jury trials demanded during the past year. There were fewer guilty and not guilty verdicts, directed verdicts, guilty pleas and nolle prosses.

MOST BALDNESS CAUSED BY 'GUESSING'

BALDNESS is preventable in about 90% of all cases. Most men become bald because they guess at the causes of their hair-loss and then apply guesswork lotions or treatments.

Thomas treatment effectively prevents baldness because it replaces guesswork with scientific accuracy and precision. When a Thomas expert examines your scalp he determines exactly which of the 14 local scalp disorders are causing, or have caused your loss of hair. He then directs the 20-year proved Thomas treatment to overcome those specific causes. Your abnormal hair-fall stops; your dandruff disappears; scalp itch ceases; and new hair starts to grow on the thin and bald spots.

Come in and learn more about this reliable method of scalp treatment. No charge is made for a complete scalp examination.

War Problems Of Missions to Be Described

Catholic Students' 11th Convention to Open Tonight at C. U.

Missionaries have come to Washington from distant points to tell the eleventh national convention of the Catholic Students Mission Crusade, beginning tonight, about the problems presented by war and other international complications.

At Catholic University, where the convention opens at 8 o'clock, 800 Catholic students are expected as delegates to hear how America may take a place in the world-wide missionary program of the Catholic Church.

The keynote address, "For the Increase of Religion," will be delivered by the Most Rev. Frank A. Thill, D. D., Bishop of Concordia, executive counsel of the C. S. M. C., at the opening meeting in the gymnasium.

Income Decreased

"Reduced income from European countries—Germnay and Italy used to be great supporters—is one of the problems before the convention, as we plan a more intensive program of mission support," said J. Paul Spaeth, of Cincinnati, director of unit activities. He emphasized losses in China and missionary difficulties.

Missionaries yesterday placed their exhibits in the exposition set up by more than 50 missionary societies in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception. It is open daily from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Father Aloysius Pettit, S. J., of Milwaukee, who will return to India when he has recovered from a tropical disease, explained facts about the work in the Patna Missions, in which there were 3,650 baptisms last year.

Sister Helena, I. C., who saw much strife in China before she returned to this country in May, was arranging Chinese embroideries in the portion of the exposition set aside for the Missionary Sisters of the Immaculate Conception.

Message From Pope

At the opening meeting tonight, a greeting and message from Pope Pius XII will be read by the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, D. D., Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore, acting episcopal host.

The address of welcome will be given by the Right Rev. Mgr. Joseph M. Corrigan, P. A., S. T. D., rector of Catholic University.

One of the principal events of tomorrow's program will be the pontifical field mass at 10 a. m. in the Catholic University Stadium, with the Most Rev. Francis J. L. Beckman, D. D., Archbishop of Dubuque, chairman of the national executive board, C. S. M. C., celebrant.

Panel meetings at 2 p. m. and 4 p. m. tomorrow will deal with various problems of missions. A general meeting on organized mission aid movements is scheduled tomorrow tonight.

The convention, which will close Friday afternoon, is expected to draw more than 2,000.

Donovan Sues Brown for $500 Over Detention

Man Claims He Was Held More Than 6 Hours by D. C. Police

James F. Donovan sued Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, and other police officials, in Municipal Court yesterday for $500 he claims is due him because he was held more than six hours without being shown the warrant on which he was held.

Donovan's attorney, James J. Laughlin, said the suit probably would go to the Court of Appeals and would settle whether the provision penalizing the police for unlawful arrests means what it says.

Donovan claimed he was arrested about 1 p. m. on Saturday, August 12, and held without charge until released by Justice Goldsborough on a writ of habeas corpus Monday, August 14.

Attorney Laughlin invoked a section of the District Legal Code which says anyone committed or detained, or an agent, may demand a copy of the warrant of commitment or detainer, and if not produced by the police, the person so refusing shall forfeit $500.

Called on to pay the $500, besides Maj. Brown, were Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, and Capt. S. J. Marks, commanding No. 12 Precinct.

Police officials declined comment.

Already pending against Maj. Brown, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and several police officers, is Donovan's suit for $25,000 damages for false imprisonment, based on the same arrest.

Five Colored Youths Stage Alexandria Library 'Sit-Down'

All to Face Court Today on Charge Of Disorderly Conduct for Efforts to Compel Extension of Book Privileges

Five colored youths who staged a "sit-down strike" in the Alexandria Library yesterday are scheduled to be arraigned in police court at 10 a. m. today before Judge James Reece Duncan on charges of disorderly conduct.

The youths were arrested after they refused to leave the library at request of Miss Catherine Scoggin, city librarian, who summoned police. When the officers arrived, the boys had taken books from shelves and were seated at a table reading. They were taken to headquarters after ignoring a police order to leave the premises.

The defendants will be represented by S. W. Tucker, colored attorney who recently filed a petition with the corporation court on behalf of George Wilson, colored, seeking a writ of mandamus to compel Miss Scoggin to issue him a card entitling him to library privileges. No decision has been reached by the court, which took the petition under advisement.

Tucker said as far as he knew the "sit down" was not connected with Wilson's petition and to his knowledge the youths were acting on their own initiative.

Donated to the city by Dr. Robert S. Barrett several years ago, the library has been used only by white patrons to date and Wilson's effort to secure a writ giving him full privileges is the first attempt by a colored person to use its facilities.

There are at present no library facilities for colored readers in the city, although the city council recently authorized City Manager Carl Budwesky to ascertain the cost of building a separate branche for colored persons.

The five youths who face hearing today are Otis L. Tucker, 22; Edward Gaddis, 21; Morris Murray, 22; William Ecans, 19, and Clarence Strange, 20. They were released immediately after being booked.

Contest Hinted For $1,500,000 Walters Estate

R. C. Roebling, Brother Of Former Mrs. Hagner, Files to Probate Will

By the Associated Press

Reno, Aug. 21.—Possibility of a contest over the $1,500,000 estate of the late Caroline Roebling Hagner Walters, who died of an accidentally self-inflicted gunshot wound, was seen today with the filing of a petition for probate of her will.

The petition was filed for Robert C. Roebling, of New Jersey, a brother of Mrs. Walters, and for George Cutting, of Virginia, by John S. Belford, Reno attorney.

Cutting and Roebling also filed papers objecting to administration of the estate by Paul A. Walters, husband of the late heiress, and asked the court to stay all administrative proceedings pending hearing of the probate matter.

Divorced Last May

Mrs. Walters was a granddaughter of the late John Roebling, builder of the Brooklyn Bridge. She was divorced last May from socially prominent Alexander B. Hagner, of Washington, and married Walters a few weeks later. Her death July 8 resulted from a bullet wound accidentally inflicted while she was handling a pistol at her Reno home, a coroner's jury found.

The petition filed today said all of her estimated $1,500,000 of real and personal property was acquired prior to her marriage to Walters.

In an original will, dated January 27, 1938, when she was Mrs. Hagner, she left Hagner certain household effects and $50,000 and designated that aside from certain jewelry, clothing and so on left to their two daughters, the rest of the estate was to be held in trust for him and the children.

Cutting and Hagner were named as trustees.

Hagner Bequests Revoked

Subsequently a codicil to the will revoked the bequests to Hagner because of their impending separation. It pointed out the two had reached a private property settlement agreement.

July 12 Walters filed the petition for special letters of administration in her estate, alleging she left a personal estate valued at about $350,000 and real estate outside Nevada worth about $115,000.

The special letters were granted pending probate of the will. Today's petition named these heirs, Margaret Allison Hagner, 8, a daughter, of Washington; Alexandra Caroline Hagner, 2, a daughter, of Washington; Blanche O'Brien, mother, of Seattle; Allison Van Der Elst, sister, of Belgian Legation, Vienna; Robert C. Roebling, brother, of Princeton, N. J., and Paul A. Walters, husband, of Reno.

Russ-Nazi Pact Is Seen as Step To Old Accord

2 Powers Maintained Close Relations for Years Before Hitler

By the Associated Press

By deciding to conclude a nonaggression pact, Germany and Soviet Russia have undertaken to restore close relations which existed after the World War and until Adolf Hitler came to power in 1933.

By moving to enter a friendly agreement with the Soviet, Hitler is believed by some observers to have given weight to the advice of many German military leaders who always have advocated co-operation between Germany and Russia, which they look upon as Germany's natural reservoir for raw materials.

German-Russian friendship dates back to Bismarck, the "iron chancellor" of Germany, who favored Russia as a possible ally in European politics in order that Germany never might have to fight a war on two fronts.

Recent Relations Puzzling

He was planning to renew an old "re-insurance" pact with Czarist Russia when Emporer Wilhelm II dropped him as chancellor.

Russia then turned to France and Britain. Germany found herself opposed East and West when the World War came. Following the World War, relations became close.

In very recent years, however, their relations have puzzled many observers. Officially and publicly the bitterest of peacetime enemies, the two countries maintained prosperous trade relations until 1935. In several other ways they belied the constant hammering at each other's political and social conceptions.

One of the first acts undertaken by Hitler after he became German chancellor was to renew Germany's nonaggression agreement with Russia. The original document was signed April 24, 1926, when Germany, with a sizable Communist representation in her government, was on friendly terms with Russia. Hitler's renewal took place May 5, 1933.

The treaty and its renewal were each to endure seven years. The letter of the pact survived growing suspicion and tension between the two nations when their ideological differences became sharply divergent.

In the post-war reconstruction conferences, Germany and Russia were paid small heed as the victorious powers mapped out the future of the world they had won. The apple cart was upset, however, when the underdogs entered the Genoa Conference in 1922 and announced they had signed a treaty at Rapallo.

The Rapallo treaty was extended at Berlin later in the year. During the next four years, the two countries came ever closer politically and economically.

Germany, regaining a financial foothold after its devastating inflation, issued in 1926 a revolving credit of 300,000,000 Reichsmarks for the purchase of German industrial goods by Soviet Russia. Russia met her payments promptly, and German industry received great benefit from the agreement. Within a short time, the credits were extended to 800,000,000 Reichsmarks.

Trade Slumps Sharply

With increasing tension the last three or four years, however, trade relations were affected adversely. By last year, the volume had shrunk to 100,000,000 marks (about $40,000,000).

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former economics minister and Reichsbank president, was a strong proponent of the Russian trade treaty. Despite his warnings Germany needed Russia as a source of raw materials and as a customer, the Nazi Party continued berating Soviet Russia. Trade dwindled.

There had been reports for years before the rise of the Nazis that Germany, estopped from training her own army and manufacturing her own war machine, secretly was training officers and men in Russia. Trade figures showed Germany, during this period, sold Russia huge quantities of machinery, much of which could be used in the manufacture of munitions.

Nazi attacks on communism, however, and Hitler's avowed desire to incorporate Russia's Ukraine into the German Reich, caused trade losses.

It was announced trade negotiations were under way. Finally, on Sunday, it was announced a trade agreement had been concluded, providing a German credit of 200,000,000 marks (about $80,000,000), for Russian purchases in Germany.

Nazis Need Soviet Trade

A Commerce Department memorandum asserted yesterday that the significant part of the new Russo-German trade agreement was that "Germany needs the Soviet business badly enough to make concessions never before offered."

The memorandum, which did not touch on the political implications, if any, of the trade agreement, indicated a belief there would be little effect on Russian-American trade.

It emphasized that the new agreement is only the latest of a series of similar agreements signed by the two countries, beginning in 1926. Such agreements were made, for instance, in 1934 and 1935.

Pointing out that the United States has supplanted Germany since the World War as the principal foreign supplier of goods to Russia, the memorandum added:

"It seems unlikely that the special needs of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics over the next two years can be satisfied in Germany, or for that matter, anywhere but in the United States.

"The new trade agreement just signed thus may be characterized as a new attempt by Germany at reinstatement as chief exporter to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, by offering a new, though comparatively small credit on longer terms—seven years—than any previous arrangement, and on a five per cent interest basis, the lowest rate ever quoted for Soviet long-term credits abroad."

The memorandum also pointed out that because German factories are so busy making armaments and other things needed within Germany, they have had difficulty in recent years in filling Soviet orders and may have similar trouble under the new agreement.

A part of the memorandum was a table showing that in spite of Germany's frequent commercial credits to Russia, German merchandise sales to Russia have declined almost steadily from a post war peak of $211,318,000 in 1931 to $9,512,000 in the first ten months of 1938, the latest period for which figures are available.

and going of high-ranking officers. Overhead, more military planes roared by than has been the case in days.

The city otherwise seemed to be devoid of military activity, the inference being everybody was on duty at the Polish frontier.

At Gleiwitz, in Upper Silesia, a battery of three heavy field mortars rumbled through the main thoroughfare today. The equipment and personnel train following it was half a mile long.

[Nearly 2,000,000 German and Polish troops in full war kit tonight were reported within easy striking distance of each other along the frontier, the United Press said, adding it was evident there had been a marked speed-up in the strategic movements of the two countries' armed forces in the past 48 hours.

[Foreign observers believed that, of Germany's estimated 2,000,000 men under arms, about 1,000,000 were within striking distance of Poland. The Poles have between 1,000,000 and 1,300,000 men under arms, mostly near German territory.

[Germany was reported to have 300,000 men massed in East Prussia, 400,000 between the Polish Corridor and Frankfurt-Am-Oder and 300,000 in Slovakia.

1899 Classes Called

[German reservists and classes as far back as 1899 still were being called to the colors.

[Foreign attaches believed Germany will have finished the first phase of her actual preparations for war by late Tuesday. Germany's fortifications along the Rhine also are fully manned, and the entire Rhineland was "blacked out" tonight.—Editor's note.]

"Everybody has a presentment and feeling of the approach of great and important decisions in the world," the Zeitung article said.

The paper called attention to the hurried return of Prime Minister Chamberlain and the British foreign secretary to London and asked what kind of a pact the British government would sign with Poland to formalize the interim mutual-assistance agreement.

Briton's Fleeing Germany

Warsaw, Aug. 21 (AP).—Britons in Poland were reported today to have been advised by the British embassy to leave as soon as possible "in view of the considerable danger of a rupture in German-Polish relations."

Several American tourists applied at the United States embassy for advice whether they should cancel their stay, and received the following statement:

"The embassy is watching the situation with great care and will take every appropriate measure necessary to protect American interests and citizens in Poland in any emergency that may arise."

[British families began leaving Berlin tonight, the United Press said.

[Several British families left Berlin for the border by train tonight, including three British journalists. All left on their own initiative. Others will follow tomorrow. Several French newspaper correspondents also prepared to leave.—Editor's note.]

Poland Calls Reserves

London (Tuesday), Aug. 22 (INS).—The Daily Express, in a dispatch from Warsaw today, said more reserve classes have been called up to strengthen the divisions facing the German-Slovak frontiers. The dispatch stated Poland has 1,200,000 troops in the frontier area.

of the Polish problem remained a question.

Certainly, responsible observers said, Germany will not take any final action in the direction of Poland for a day or two.

But once signatures are affixed to the Russian nonaggression pact, Germany will have one less reason to fear involvement with Poland, it was stated.

What effect the new agreement will have on Germany's promises to Japan under terms of the anti-Comintern pact—to which Italy also is a signatory—could not be known immediately.

But German sources here stated "you may be sure that angle has been taken care of."

Oil, Wheat For Reich

The announcement of the nonaggression pact followed by one day conclusion of an important trade agreement which gives Germany access to Russia's oil, timber and wheat.

The rapprochement with Russia, therefore took place along several fronts with breath-taking speed.

Russia and Germany, after abusing each other for years and after squabbling about the ideological differences of Nazism and Communism which seemed to be insurmountable, came overnight to terms of what seems to be close friendship.

The agreement to conclude the pact with Russia caused a tremendous sensation in all European capitals, it was indicated by fragmentary excerpts from newspapers of many countries which the German official news agency (DNB) brought to Berlin early Tuesday.

The agency kept its wire open long after the usual closing time to let Berlin know what a sensation the action of the German government was creating.

Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, broke tradition by using red ink in its late city edition.

A headline 7 inches high said "Non-Aggression Pact Germany-Soviet Union."

Russia Confirms Parley

Moscow, Aug. 22 (AP).—Tass, the official Soviet news agency, in a communique early today said German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop was coming to Moscow "for the purpose of negotiations" on a German-Russian nonaggression pact.

The Tass communique said:

"After the signing of the trade agreement, there emerged the problem of improving political relations between Germany and the U. S. S. R. An exchange of opinion established the presence of a desire to relieve the strain of political relations between both countries to eliminate the threat of war and sign a nonaggression pact. In connection with this, Von Ribbentrop is coming to Moscow within a few days for the purpose of negotiations."

Diplomatic quarters were thunderstruck by the development and foresaw an immediate explosion of the ten-day old military staff talks here with Britain and France.

Von Ribbentrop will be the first high Nazi official, according to diplomats, ever to visit Moscow.

British and French quarters were reported stunned by the news. The short-lived military talks appeared as good as dead. The tripower conversations had been resumed only Monday after a three-day lapse.

The immediate result of Pravda's prediction yesterday had been to reopen the military staff talks among Britain, France and Russia with new vigor.

British Cabinet Called for Extra Session

German-Soviet Pact Expected to Be Major Subject

Special Cable to The Post

London, Aug. 21.—After a day of consultations with Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and other advisers, Prime Minister Chamberlain decided this evening the deepening crisis in Europe was serious enough to require a full-fledged meeting of the British cabinet tomorrow in place of the informal "meeting of ministers" originally planned.

Announcement of the German-Soviet nonaggressive pact, however, upset all calculations as to the meeting's agenda, and was expected to become the major topic of discussion.

The only absentee is expected to be Lord Maugham, lord chancellor, who is in Canada. All tthe defense ministers will attend, including War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha, who stopped off in Paris on his way back from Cannes today, to confer with Premier Daladier.

Important Action Hinted

Many observers thought Chamberlain's move foreshadowed major decisions by the government which would require the sanction of the full cabinet. Reports persisted, although without official confirmation, that the government might adopt important additional measures of military preparedness, issue a blunt warning to Chancellor Hitler and, perhaps, recall Parliament in special session.

In its news bulletins tonight, which also were transmitted in German, the British Broadcasting Corporation stated Britain's position and its pledges to Warsaw already had been made clear beyond doubt.

The Daily Express and the Evening Standard reported today that Germany had quietly bought up in London, during the last few weeks, large stocks of such essential war commodities as copper, nickel, rubber, tin and lead. With nearly every order, the newspaper said, was the disquieting stipulation that shipments should reach Germany not later than September 1.

There is no official embargo on the export of war materials, although the government has the power to earmark reserve stores for its requirements.

Market men attribute the recent jump in the prices of copper and rubber to large scale German purchases.

It was estimated that one-third of Britain's stocks of rubber and one-quarter of its metal supplies had gone to Germany.

Chamberlain pigeon-holed his plans to resume his vacation immediately after tomorrow's cabinet tmeeting. He is now expected to remain in London for a few days at least.

Bonnet Returns to Paris

Paris, Aug. 21 (AP).—Foreign Minister Bonnet returned unexpectedly to Paris tonight for a conference with Premier Daladier on the Danzig situation after the latter had issued calls for two emergency cabinet sessions.

Bonnet had been expected in Paris tomorrow afternoon in time for the first of the two cabinet meetings, called by Daladier after an hour's conference with British War Minister Hore-Belisha. The foreign minister left Paris only yesterday for a vacation.

Immediately after seeing Daladier, Bonnet conferred with the British charge d'affaires, Ronald Campbell.

In the meantime, Daladier conferred with his naval minister, Cesar Campinchi.

French diplomatic sources suggested that the meeting tomorrow had been called to ratify "extraordinary decisions" to be made at a session of key British cabinet members tomorrow morning.

Financial sources said that a large Berlin firm had placed an order for "more than a million dollars worth" of French textiles for delivery September 15, "and paid cash in advance."

Argentina to Limit Imports in Move To Save Currency

Buenos Aires, Aug. 21 (AP).—Argentina, determined to maintain her currency in the face of unfavorable world markets, will announce tomorrow an extension of strict control over all imports.

The action will supplement decrees of last November which resulted in almost a 50 per cent reduction in United States sales to this country.

The new program also will include exportation of gold to meet the current year's unfavorable balances, if necessary, and establishment of a "frozen" exchange rate of 20 paper pesos for each pound sterling for imports formerly admitted under free exchange markets.

R. I. Campbell Named To Yugoslavia Post

London, Aug. 21 (AP).—The King tonight approved the appointment of Ronald Ian Campbell, now envoy extraordinary to Paris, to be Minister to Yugoslavia. Campbell was attached to the Embassy at Washington for nine years, last serving as counselor in 1931.

World Capitals Amazed, See Balance of Power Upset

schluss. The opinion was expressed that following actual signing of the treaty Germany will present Poland with a 24-hour ultimatum.

Washington. — State Department comment was lacking, but officials and diplomats viewed the Anglo-French hopes for Soviet aid as doomed and believed the accord would upset completely the world balance of power, immeasurably strengthening Germany's hand in forcing a quick settlement of the Danzig issue.

Budapest. — Officials in Southeastern Europe frankly said the pact may mark a major turning point in history and might well lead to the collapse of Poland. Slovakia was jubilant, Hungary was frightened, as was Rumania. Bulgaria was relieved, since the pact apparently obviated the necessity of a choice between Russia and Germany. Yugoslavia was pessimistic, fearing new pressure from Germany.

The British foreign office had "no immediate comment," but the press editorially reflected an attitude of stunned surprise.

Axis Pact Held Canceled

"If the report is confirmed," said the Daily Mail, "it means an end of the Franco-Russian treaty for mutual assistance in event of attack. It also cancels out the anti-comintern pacts."

The Daily Herald said "Parliament clearly must be called "back into session."

If arranged as reported, said the Herald, the German-Russian pact will represent "one of the most astounding and shocking reversals of policy in history."

Navy orders tonight disclosed that the battle cruisers Hood and Repulse had left their Scapa flow base in Scotland last Friday for an unannounced destination.

The Soviets have negotiated nonaggression pacts with other neighboring powers, but all of these contain a clause leaving the Soviets free to act if the other signatory should resort to aggression against any third country.

If a German-Soviet pact should follow this pattern, Russia would be free to fight Germany should Hitler commit aggression against any other European country.

In any event, the mere announcement is likely to affect British domestic politics as well as British foreign policy inasmuch as the Laborite and Liberal opposition in Parliament repeatedly has warned Prime Minister Chamberlain that Germany would make an agreement with the Soviets unless he beat Hitler to it.

Japanese foreign office officials were disgruntled by the news and planned a series of Government conferences during the day to discuss the situation.

It was said that Japanese army leaders, who have been trying to force the government to adhere to the Italo-German alliance, were dealt a staggering blow in Germany's decision to come to an agreement with Russia.

Poles Wait on Allies

Observers in Warsaw speculated that a Soviet refusal to join forces with Britain and France might have been one of the conditions laid down in the long, secret negotiations between Berlin and Moscow.

Official quarters refused at midnight to comment, preferring to learn what the new British and French moves will be before taking a stand.

Political quarters were inclined to be skeptical of the final results of the negotiations, and pointed out that the question of the existing Franco-Soviet mutual assistance pact will have to be carefully considered.

It was stated that the chief reason on the part of the Soviets for agreeing to a nonaggression pact with Germany is Russia's desire to keep out of European affairs—and her anxiety over the Far Eastern situation. Also, that Soviet home affairs will not allow Russia to join in European politics.

In southeastern Europe, the future of the cabinets of Neville Chamberlain in London and of Edouard Daladier in Paris was believed to be involved.

For Balkan countries, the nonaggression treaty raised the possibility of close cooperation between a growing Germany and a giant Russia, which might have untold consequences for these smaller countries located between them.

Complete shifts in Europe's opposing camps were predicted as a result of what one diplomat dolefully called "Russia's joining the anticomintern pact."

Officials at Bratislava, capital of Slovakia, predicted that their little nation would receive generous slices of Poland.

Hungary feared the effect of the combined Nazi doctrine of Germany and the Communist creed of Russia on her society.

Rumanians Fear Loss

Rumanians remembered they held Bessarabia, a territory secured from Russia, after the World War, and held other territory desired by Hungary and Bulgaria.

Bulgaria has been divided between those favoring Germany and those favoring "Father Ivan" as Russia is called. It was said that Bulgarians could now get together with the Nazis and the Communists joining hands. Visions of quick recovery of territory from Rumania were before Bulgarian eyes.

Yugoslavia was stunned by the news. Pessimistic officials could see little future for Yugoslavia except to "knuckle under."

Everywhere there was, however, one thought expressed—that Britain must have suspected some pact was on its way. This was given as an explanation of why the London government had treated Japan with such delicacy in the past weeks.

Many persons predicted revival of the old Anglo-Japanese military alliance.

Danzig Seen War Fading

An official statement was not available in Danzig but one well-informed Nazi said:

"Naturally the probabilities of war from the present situation still exist, but we believe this lessens the possibilities of hostilities. This is a great step toward a happy solution."

It was indicated on high authority in Washington that consummation of such an agreement between two of the world's greatest military nations—although not tantamount to an alliance—probably would spur President Roosevelt's drive to force Congressional revision of United States neutrality legislation.

The State Department, caught completely by surprise, declined to comment officially pending receipt of formal advices.

Some Here Skeptical

Some quarters were skeptical, however, that a nonaggression treaty actually would be concluded. They believed the German announcement might be invented to influence Poland's allies at the present crucial moment or that Russia might be resorting to "power politics" in an effort to force Great Britain and France to meet her demands for an outright military alliance.

Effect such a pact would have on the Far Eastern situation was given particular attention in official quarters.

Without the aid of Russia, military authorities said, a strong anti-Nazi eastern front would be impossible.

Military strategists said any sort of a military agreement between Germany and Russia not only would improve Germany's chances of eventually gaining her desires in Poland but would give her a freer hand to gain further economic and political concessions in southern and southeastern Europe.

Axis Smash-Up Forecast

Italy, also, it was added, would have a great deal more "voice" in demanding concessions from both France and Britain in the Mediterranean.

A Polish Embassy spokesman here declared, however, the accord will in no way weaken Poland's resolve to resist forcibly any German attempt to annex Danzig or the Polish Corridor.

Some officials wondered whether a complete orientation of German policy and a smash-up of the Rome-Berlin axis may be in the offing.

Officials here have heard for more than a year of "nightmare" reports that Russia and Germany might set up an alliance to dominate Europe. A left-wing element in the Nazi party, officials heard, has long advocated that course.

Mussolini in Accord

Until now, however, officials doubted Hitler would exercise the flip-flop. Last night's announcement was accepted by some as pointing a trend toward such an alliance.

The conjecture of some diplomats in Rome was that Mussolini was heartily in accord with this apparent manner of weakening the Anglo-French front, and expected it to lead not only to German victory in the claims on Poland, but to satisfaction of Italy's claims on France.

Italians pointed out that Italy herself has had a treaty of friendship and nonaggresion with Soviet Russia since 1933.

In 1937, when Italy joined Germany and Japan in the anti-Comintern pact, Italy contended it was not aimed at Russia, but only at the spread of communism to other countries.

The Paris press this morning professed not to be greatly surprised. "Will Russia now adhere to the anticomintern pact?" was the sarcastic question posed by Oeuvre.

Ordre, which is friendly to the Soviets, the Communist Humanite and the Socialist paper Populaire buried the brief German news agency announcement of the pact on inside pages.

Rumania to Trade Oil to Germany For Heavy Guns

Bucharest, Aug. 21 (INS).—Rumania today lifted her embargo on sales of oil to Germany and agreed to accept a big consignment of German-made arms in barter for oil.

A contract has been signed for the delivery of the first shipment of 60,000 tons of oil to the Reich immediately, in exchange for a shipment of heavy artillery.

Last week Rumania refused further oil shipments to Berlin and Rome because she was not paid in cash.

U. S. Hastens Defense Plans On All Fronts

Army and Navy Check Supplies And Munitions

By the United Press.

President Roosevelt's multi-billion dollar national defense program is being accelerated on all fronts due to increasing tension in Europe, it was learned yesterday.

It was disclosed that the Army and Navy high commands are making a detailed reappraisal of defense preparations, including the status of battleship construction, production of munitions, gearing of industry to meet war needs, availability of raw materials, personnel and other pertinent data.

Results of the survey are expected to be presented to the new war resources board which holds its second meeting tomorrow.

Stettinius Heads Survey

Heading the group, which is charged with directing industrial mobilization in event of war, is Edward Stettinius, jr., chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, who has been conferring with Assistant Secretary of War Johnson and Acting Secretary of the Navy Edison.

Johnson and Edison were reluctant to discuss reasons for the defense survey but another official said the results would be of vast importance to staffs of the Army and Navy, "enabling them to see exactly where we are along the line" and to plug whatever loopholes exist.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press reports that several more industrialists may be added soon to the resources board.

The six who now compose the board include no representatives of fuel, transportation and other industries vital in war.

Serving without even the $1-a-year stipend paid civilian volunteer advisers and executives of the World War, the businessmen took home masses of data for study over the week-end after their initial session here Friday. Four arranged to meet again tomorrow with Army and Navy officials. Ninety-two officers in Washington and key manufacturing cities are devoting their full time to industrial blueprints.

At the same time, the defense speedup has the aircraft industry booming and employment in shipyards and arsenals is mounting as a result of the largest Army and Navy and foreign orders since the World War.

Aircraft and engine plants have unfilled orders aggregating more than $300,000,000. Their total sales last year were only about $88,000,000. Labor Department figures show wage earners in plane manufacturing plants increased from 24,739 in January to 35,935 at the end of June.

Navy Yards Expanding

Expanding navy yards are preparing to add 13,000 civilian employes by January 1 to the 62,000 already at work. More than 100 warships and auxiliaries are on the ways or ordered.

Commercial shipyards have expanded thier forces to nearly 50,000 and within two years naval experts expect possibly 200,000 men to be employed.

Some 14,000 are turning out guns and other material at the Army's manufacturing arsenals, a gain of 4,000 within a year.

Preparedness Urged

Louis Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War, said last night forebodings of war abroad "increase the determination of our Government that the United States shall not become embroiled in armed conflict if . . . we can preserve peace with national honor."

The hope for peace, he said, lies in the availability of adequate military establishments and the assurance of effective industrial mobilization.

"This Administration has determined," he said in a radio address, "that should war again be forced upon us there will be no repetition of the chaos of hurried and confused efforts, and the waste and extravagance which have always ruled our belated military preparations."

Pacific Islands Expedition Set

The rock formations of the South-Central Pacific islands and the geological history of the Pacific Ocean Basin will be studied by an expedition sponsored by the National Geographic Society and the University of Virginia, the society announced yesterday.

The study is expected to consume about a year. The United States Coast Guard will co-operate. It will be directed by Prof. Wilbur A. Nelson, of the university staff.

The scientists will study magnetism of the earth, gravity variations, marine biology, earthquakes, collect samples of the ocean bottom and measure the thickness of ocean bottom sediment. The date for starting the expedition was not announced.

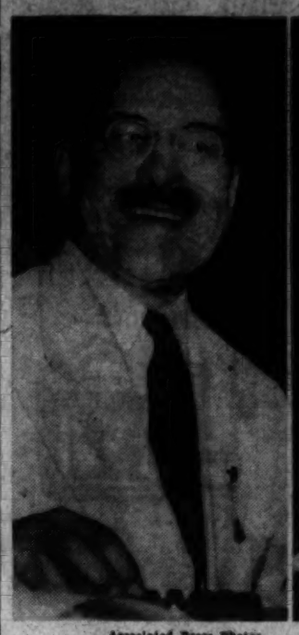
Kuhn to Face Dies Again On Bund Ties With Germany



Associated Press Photos.
DR. JOHN H. SHERMAN

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
BARON VON SPIEGEL

President of Tampa University, Dr. John Harvey Sherman, yesterday told the Dies Committee that Baron Edgar von Speigel, German consul-general at New Orleans, had offered books to his university on behalf of the Nazi government

Miss Vooros' testimony was in sharp variance. Dies said other witnesses will testify to a link. Agents of foreign governments are required to register at the State Department, and Dies emphasized that bund officials never have complied.

Pro-Fascists Next

Hearings today will revert to the large group of so-called pro-Fascist organizations, with some of which Kuhn professed a desire to co-operate in a political third-party front.

Also due to be invited to the stand as volunteer witnesses before bund hearings are concluded are a number of former German diplomatic officials residing in this country, who have broken with the Nazi government. Among them, it was said, is a former member of the German Embassy staff here. In accordance with the committee's rule, names of witnesses were not disclosed in advance.

President Sherman, of Tampa University, testified the New Orleans consul general of Germany told him that donations of books had been made to other universities and "this was a practice they followed to encourage the study of German in American colleges."

Tulane Chief Quoted

Later, at a meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges in Memphis, Sherman said he talked to President Rufus Harris, of Tulane University, about Baron von Peckelsheim. He said President Harris told him "he was quite discontented with the activities of the baron around his campus and that the baron had snuggld up to the members of his faculty."

The Tampa University head said his interview with von Peckelsheim followed a call from a "stranger," later identified as Ernest Berger, German consular agent at Tampa. He said Berger told him of a "friend" he thought could be induced to give the university some books. After agreeing to meet the prospective donor, Berger called later to postpone the appointment and disclosed for the first time that his "friend" was the German consul general, Sherman said.

When he asked Von Peckelsheim if he was "the gentleman giving us the books," he said he replied: "Not I, but my government." Sherman said that before he told the German official he was not interested and the interview broke up in "mutual recriminations," he sought to draw the baron out. He said the consul general asked him pointedly whether he was satisfied with the university's present German professor.

Under questioning by Rhea Whitley, committee counsel, Sherman testified that Von Peckelsheim told him "that the fact that we had no quotas on Jews and that we had Jews on our board was a mistake, and that with further experience we would regret it."

Sherman told the committee Tampa University's German professor, a native of Viennese, was not sympathetic with the Nazi regime and came here to become an American citizen "because he was not sympathetic with conditions there.

"He is frankly democratic and liberal," said Sherman. Some six months after he joined the faculty, he said a number of attacks "through innuendo" were launched against Kraus, with complaints that he did not speak correct German, and assaults on his personal character. He said they were all checked and found to be untrue.

"We traced these attacks and found the sources to be un-democratic, and then the attacks died down," said the witness.

Harris Denies Quotation

Griffin, Ga., Aug. 21 (AP).—President Rufus Harris of Tulane University tonight denied he had said a German consul "snuggled up to the members of his faculty."

Harris, now vacationing here, issued this statement:

"My meeting with President Sherman in Memphis . . . last March was to hear his statement which he had written to me previously of an alleged improper proposal by the German consul to the University of Tampa . . .

"I made no statement that the consul had 'snuggled up to members of the Tulane faculty, whatever that may mean, nor did I suggest that he had engaged in any sort of improper activities at Tulane.

"Furthermore I may add that I do not believe he would attempt to do so. I did, however, approve the vigorous resentment expressed by President Sherman and his conduct in showing his resentment."

a gradual reduction of trade barriers.

From all except Luxembourg came word the foreign ministers and economic experts would attend the parley, which the Oslo Dagblatt said definitely would strive for a formula for a joint peace appeal to the great powers.

In Copenhagen it was reported that Switzerland's foreign secretary, Dr. Guiseppe Motta, also would join the conference.

Foreign Secretaries Halvdan Koht, of Norway; Richard J. Sandler, of Sweden, and Eljas Erkko, of Finland, will fly to Brussels tomorrow and preliminary discussions were expected to get under way at once.

P. Munch, of Denmark, and Eelco N. van Kleffens, of the Netherlands, also were expected tomorrow.

Sweden's newspapers declared the initiative for the conference undoubtedly was King Leopold's and pointed to his friendly relations with Italy and Great Britain as a helpful factor.

Bruno Walter's Daughter Slain

Zurich, Switzerland, Aug. 21 (AP). The slaying of the daughter of Bruno Walter, famed conductor and refugee from Germany at the hands of her husband who then committed suicide, was disclosed here today.

Police announced last Friday that a "foreign architect" had committed suicide after slaying his wife, but it did not become known the woman was Walter's daughter until today when he canceled an engagement to lead the Mozart Musical Festival at Lucerne.

Food Short In Tientsin's Worst Flood

Losses Inestimable; Water-Soaked Japanese Sentries Stay at Posts

By the Associated Press

Tientsin, Aug. 21.—Swirling waters rose rapidly in the Tientsin area tonight as this north China city of 1,300,000 lay virtually prostrated under its worst flood disaster in history.

Overflow waters from the Hai River and other streams covered most of Tientsin and outlying areas. Official reports on the loss of lives and property were lacking, but officials said casualties and damage would be heavy.

Cessation of the rains in Tientsin proper brought hopes that the flood crest might be reached tomorrow, but most of the flood waters were coming from the interior, where the rains were continuing and the prospect of immediate relief was slight.

Most food stores, which normally carry only limited stocks, were flooded. Autnorities said, however, that an acute food emergency had not yet arisen.

Health officials said the city's major task would come once the flood waters begin to recede, leaving behind the bodies of human beings and animals who drowned.

They said it would take days, possibly weeks, for the flood waters to drain off to the sea and that this would increase the menace of pestilence.

The British Concession was among the hardest hit areas. Its water supply failed today, adding to the misery caused by the loss of its electric power supply yesterday.

Barracks housing British troops were inundated and the soldiers were forced to the rooftops.

Many of the barriers thrown up by the Japanese when they blockaded the British and French concessions June 14, were washed away, but water-soaked Japanese sentries remained at their posts and continued to search the few persons attempting to leave or enter the areas.

Independent Hungary Vital, Declares Csaky

By the Associated Press

Budapest, Aug. 21.—Foreign Minister Count Csaky declared tonight within a few hours after his return from talks with German and Italian leaders that "an independent and strong Hungary is an indispensable factor for the political balance of Central Europe."

The declaration, included in a statement issued through the official Hungarian news agency, was considered by diplomats as a direct answer to reports Hungary was "buckling under" to Nazi demands for use of Hungarian territory and resources in case of conflict over Danzig. It was viewed as a move to allay anxiety over Hungary's present position.

The statement came after the foreign minister conferred throughout the day with Premier Count Paul Teleky, ostensibly on his talks in Rome and Salzburg.

No Demands Made

Count Csaky asserted "neither in Italy nor Germany was anything asked or demanded or begged from the Hungarian government or the foreign minister."

"Hungary fortunately has friends in every country," he then declared. "I ask them to do their best with their government and friends. Those who try to loosen old and intimate friendships are working against the maintenance of peace and against the life interests of Hungary."

Diplomats pointed out that, although Italy and Germany are friends of Hungary, their oldest and most intimate friendship is with Poland.

Nazis Look for "Co-operation"

Berlin, Aug. 21 (AP).—Nazi quarters expressed certainty today that Hungary would cast her lot with Germany and Italy, come what may. These quarters said Hungarian Foreign Minister Count Csaky was for "100 per cent co-operation."

All talk of possible friction or lack of unanimity between Hungary and the axis powers was declared futile.

Shushan Indicted In La. Fee Fraud

man, Harris & Co., with the approval of Shushan and assistance of Waguespack, then a member of the board, obtained a contract to refinance $5,485,000 of levee board bonds for a fee of 25 per cent of the savings. These savings were represented as approximately $2,000,000, but actually amounted to only $729,000.

After payment of about $12,000 to Charles Fitere, now deceased, as a bribe for acting as a spy on competitors, the five men divided $398,220.01 as follows: Shushan, $132,740; Newman and Harris, $99,550 each; Waguespack, $46,450.01, and Miller, $19,911.

Another lesser Long lieutenant was drawn into the Federal drive against corruption today when State Senator Clarence A. Lorio, of Baton Rouge, was indicted on a mail fraud charge, accused of using his influence at Louisiana State University to gain approval of electrical contracts on raised bids, splitting half of a profit of $12,600 obtained through this work.

Dr. Smith Indicted Again

Dr. James Monroe Smith, former president of scandal-rocked Louisiana State University, was indicted today on charges of income tax evasion of $9,252.90 in 1936.

Huey Long made Shushan president of the levee board in 1929, which place he held until October, 1935, when he resigned after his income tax trial.

The great $4,000,000 Shushan Airport, named in honor of Shushan, was renamed New Orleans Airport a fortnight ago when Shushan refused to come before the levee board to explain his part in the bond deal.

Government attorneys today made no effort to hide their disappointment at the death of Dr. J. A. Shaw, found dead last night, gun in hand, but expressed determination to go ahead. Shaw was to have been the principal witness against Leche and Weiss in charges they conspired to violate the Connally "hot oil" act.

The Red Cross At 75

As the Red Cross commemorates its seventy-fifth anniversary today, it commands the support of almost the entire civilized world. Societies using this emblem and dedicated to the task of relieving suffering in war or peace, are now functioning in 63 countries. The Red Cross has undoubtedly earned the distinction of being the greatest humanitarian organization in history.

The Red Cross came into being through the heroic efforts of Henri Dunant, a Geneva gentleman whose Swiss nationality is recalled by the similarity of the Red Cross flag to that of Switzerland. Dunant had been appalled by the suffering of thousands of wounded men left unattended on the plains of Lombardy after the battle of Solferino in 1859. He had himself established an emergency hospital and given what aid he could to friend and foe alike. Out of that experience came a realization of the need for an international agency of mercy to function wherever war leaves its wreckage.

Five years of persistent effort were necessary to bring about the signing of the Geneva convention, establishing the Red Cross on August 22, 1864. Sixteen governments adhered to the original treaty. The United States, then engaged in civil war, was not among them. It was not until 1882 that this country became a party to the convention, largely through the efforts of Clara Barton who had previously organized the American Red Cross. Two years later Miss Barton was instrumental in greatly expanding the usefulness of the international organization. She was one of the leaders who secured an amendment to the Geneva convention empowering Red Cross units to aid victims of peace-time disasters as well as those of armed conflict.

Today the Red Cross is a symbol of mercy and neighborly service to the suffering wherever calamities occur. Despite their genius and zeal in devising new means of destruction, governments have come to recognize the desirability of an international Good Samaritan which sees the pitiful victims of battle not as friends or enemies, but only as human beings in need of succor.

It remains ironical that nations so effectively organized through the Red Cross to minimize the horrors of war are still so ineffective in their efforts to cope with the problems that lead to war.

Less Perfect Union

When the Founding Fathers gathered in Philadelphia 152 years ago, to draft a Constitution for the United States, their supreme purpose was to form "a more perfect union" than that which had existed under the Articles of Confederation.

The magnitude of their design has been demonstrated in manifold ways in the years since 1787. Lately, however, "the more perfect union" has been threatened by the rise of dangerous, if contradictory, tendencies.

On the one hand, there has been a rapid increase in Federal power at the expense of the States. On the other hand the States, through one subterfuge or another, have begun to surround themselves with what are, in effect, customs barriers that interfere with the free and unrestricted flow of goods in interstate commerce. And now, in at least one important corner of the Nation, the revenue needs of a harassed municipality and its subordinate communities have created additional obstacles to travel, of a kind reminiscent of Confederation days.

New York, so far as motorists are concerned, is now an island surrounded by tolls. Those driving to the metropolis have discovered that with the exception of a few undesirable routes they must pay to get into the city and pay when they leave it. The George Washington Bridge costs 50 cents to cross; so do the tunnels under the Hudson. The older bridges connecting the boroughs are free. But a toll is required on the newer bridges. And now the northern approach to New York, via the highways running through Connecticut and Westchester County, is becoming increasingly subject to the exaction of tribute.

Not long ago a toll was ordered for the Merritt Parkway, which leads into New York from Connecticut. Westchester County has followed this lead, by imposing a toll on the Hutchinson River Parkway. And there is also a toll at one entrance of the Hendrik Hudson Parkway, which enters Manhattan from the west.

Should the example set by New York be followed in other communities—and there is nothing that so encourages imitation as the discovery of a new form of taxation—the toll gate may become as familiar to automobile drivers as the gasoline station. It is slim consolation to reflect that the development of the one is bound to lead to the decline of the other.

Russia Plays A Card

Amid the maze of reports and rumors from Europe's feverish capitals the conclusion of a Russo-German reciprocal trade agreement stands out as a hard, significant and in some ways highly unpalatable fact. Its importance lies not so much in the arrangements actually made, though these alone are far-reaching. More arresting is the timing of the announcement made simultaneously in Berlin and Moscow on Sunday night.

The commercial agreement between the two totalitarian states is made public at a moment when it is clear that the Anglo-French efforts to bring Russia into the anti-aggression pact have bogged down completely. Negotiations to this end, between London and Paris on the one hand and Moscow on the other, have now dragged along for nearly five months. The waning hope that they would lead somewhere was recently revived when staff discussions between officers of the three armies were initiated without regard to the failure to reach a fundamental accord. That hope fades again with the conclusion of the Russo-German trade pact.

It is not merely that Moscow has concluded this German treaty with a dispatch which emphasizes the dilatory nature of the political negotiations with London and Paris. The major point is that the Russo-German treaty, coming at this time, is in effect a declaration of Russian neutrality in the event of war between Germany and Poland.

That is implicit in the terms of the treaty, whereby Germany advances $80,000,000 in credits to Russia for purchases of German goods, agreeing in return to take $72,000,000 of Russian produce within the next two years. And it is further emphasized by the interpretation of the official Soviet press. Pravda, the chief organ of the Communist Party, yesterday voiced editorial anticipation of "further improvement of not only economic, but also political relations between the U. S. S. R. and Germany."

The increasing friendliness between the Nazi and Communist dictatorships occasions no surprise to those who realize the close underlying similarity of these political philosophies and the important respects in which their national interests dovetail. Whether the shift of Russian policy towards cooperation with Germany was well under way before Munich, or whether that agreement forced the trend now obvious, is a question for historians to debate. Very apparent is the fact that a Russo-German accord is now actually developing.

The Russo-German trend towards appeasement vis-a-vis each other has, of course, been instrumental in all the recent political maneuverings in Europe. Even if no other factors were involved, it would explain the present British anxiety to maintain Poland, and the Baltic states, as barriers between direct Russo-German contact. It would also explain the German denunciation of British policy as one of "encirclement," which makes no sense at all unless Poland is regarded as a barrier separating a potentially friendly Germany and Russia.

By rapidly concluding an important commercial treaty with Germany, and by announcing it at this moment, Moscow proclaims to the world that Russia, at any rate, will be no party to "encirclement" designs. The effect, of course, will be to stiffen rather than diminish Hitler's demands for the latest of his developing series of "final settlements."

The effect on Great Britain and France is more difficult to gauge. They have gone so far in guarantees to Poland and other eastern European states that to ease up in resistance to further German aggression would now be difficult. On the other hand, the portent of Russian neutrality, combined with Japanese aggression in the Far East and the studied indifference of the United States to Anglo-French needs, is bound to be a strongly restraining factor in London and Paris.

And the latest development is equally certain to be disturbing in Warsaw, where the difference between Russian assistance and Russian indifference is also the difference between relative strength and virtual helplessness in the event of a frontal attack from Germany.

Advisory Polls

Officials who are studying reorganization of the District government may find interest in a report by the International City Managers Association that three American cities have recently made use of public opinion polls. Several years ago Commissioner Allen suggested use of that method of finding out what the people want in Washington.

The city council of Syracuse asked voters to decide whether or not that municipality should adopt daylight-saving time. Similarly, the council of Winnetka, Ill., obtained an expression of public opinion as to a grade-crossing elimination program by circulating postcards, with a return card attached, among citizens entitled to vote. The city fathers of Montclair, N. J., asked for public guidance in effecting essential economies in the municipal budget.

In each case these cities, unlike Washington, have governments of their own. But they concluded that the election of councilmen is not an entirely satisfactory means of determining public opinion on specific issues. Direct appeals to the wishes of citizens for whom municipal services are maintained can be successfully made only when important and clear-cut issues are to be decided. Within those limits, however, the usefulness of advisory polls seems to have been established.

Washington would doubtless find this technique particularly valuable. So long as suffrage is denied the District, Congress could at least set up a strong appointive council or commission of local citizens with authority to ascertain the will of the people on municipal issues. A considerable measure of self-government could thus be attained without exercise of the franchise on election days.

Since President Roosevelt restored Mr. Allen to his post on the Board of Commissioners for the special purpose of furthering reorganization of the local government, he may find occasion to revive the suggestion of advisory polls in the District. Certainly that plan is worth considering along with other means of giving Washington a larger degree of home rule.

The Wrong Direction

One factor seems to have been chiefly responsible for defeat of the bill to extend the United States Housing Authority's slum-clearance activities. The House refused to consider that measure because of the public expense it would entail. The attack was directed, not against slum clearance as such, but against what a majority of Congressmen believe to be exorbitant housing benefits provided by the USHA.

A great deal of misinformation regarding the work of the USHA went into the record during the debate. Perhaps if the House had fully understood the issue before it, the vote would have been different. But the fact remains that the USHA has been extravagant in the granting of subsidies. And that weakness in its policy made it an easy victim of an assault that in many respects was misleading and unfair.

It is to be hoped that the question of continuing the slum-clearance program will be laid before Congress once more when it reassembles in January. This work is of vital importance to the entire country, not as a means of priming the industrial pump or of securing a wider distribution of income, as one USHA official recently contended; but as a means of wiping out demoralizing and unhealthful living conditions. It should not be halted merely for want of policy adjustments that would ease the drain upon the public purse.

If the USHA is wise, it will curtail its subsidies before its request for broader borrowing and lending powers is again pressed in the House of Representatives. Instead, however, that organization seems to be moving in the opposite direction. Last week it announced the trimming of $3.62 from the average monthly rental of 748 dwellings in the Lockefield Garden Apartments at Indianapolis. The new "average shelter rent," excluding utility charges, will amount to only $11.54 per dwelling per month.

This is not a USHA project. It was built by the old PWA Housing Division. But its rents are being cut in line with USHA policy. Administrator Straus estimates that the new charges, with 3 per cent of the units vacant, will be sufficient to pay the cost of management, operation, maintenance, insurance and an annual payment to the city in lieu of taxes; also to build up a reserve fund for future repairs and replacements. In other words, the Government has completely written off the development cost of this project.

One effect of the reduced rents will be to force a considerable number of moderate-income families now living in the project to move, "as soon as they find decent homes elsewhere within their financial reach." It would be unreasonable, of course, for any governmental agency to provide housing for merely the cost of operation and maintenance to families earning as much as $2,000 a year. But it seems even more anomalous to be forcing out families who can afford to pay a reasonable rent for these comfortable living quarters in order that they may be let to other families that require larger government subsidies.

Moves of this sort tend to confirm the suspicion of skeptics that the USHA is more interested in bringing about a redistribution of national income than in reclaiming the slums. Unless that impression can be corrected, the USHA bill is likely to encounter even more formidable opposition in 1940 than it did this year.

Too Hot For The Navy?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Several times during the recent hot spell, Federal employes have been allowed to go home when their non-airconditioned offices have become too hot for work.

Sweltering employes of the Navy Department, incarcerated in the hot ovens that comprise the third floor of the Munitions Building where the actual working temperature has frequently exceeded 95 degrees, cannot help wondering why they have been compelled to work until the regular quitting time when their next-door neighbors, employes of the War Department, whose lot as regards working conditions is no worse than the Navy's, have been released from duty.

Only once this year has the Navy been allowed to go home. This might not be so bad if provisions were available in the building for employes who feel temporarily under the weather and are urgently in need of some place to relax for a few minutes. The general dispensary of the Navy, located in the building, is available to civilian employes only in case of absolute emergency. Other facilities for rest and relaxation are not provided.

Wouldn't it be nice if a little humanity were exercised on behalf of the thousands of Federal workers who labor in this building? NAVY "BLUE."

Brickbat For Britain

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There was a time not so long ago when a man, be he ever so humble, was ever under the watchful eye of Great Britain. The empire rulers of those days were men of courage, strength and vision. Crises were settled as they appeared, and Britain had friends. If not faced and adjusted as they arise, crises have a cumulative tendency; they pile up. And that is the present predicament.

A strong man is the last to look for trouble. But, when it comes he does not crawl; he fights. Had Great Britain stood alone for justice after the Great War, the world would not now be in such a hopeless muddle. For, one betrayal begets another. The Treaty of Versailles which denied justice to Montenegro and Armenia is due for the final knockout.

The Ship of State is steadily drifting toward the breakers, and there is need of a pilot whose faith, skill and loyalty are above suspicion. The best way to avoid war is to have nations know that we are ready to fight. That is the spirit that built up the British Empire and the only spirit that will maintain it . . . . notwithstanding all the blather of pacifists and appeasers.

John Bull is the target for taunts, threats, insults and humiliation from every angle of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis, and appears before the world as an emasculated warrior. And, none to do him honor.

Is Old John Bull with his tail

Pole And Poles

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The contribution, by Congress, of $340,000 out of the public treasury, to defray the expenses of Admiral Byrd's expedition to take possession of the South Pole, was possibly due to a misapprehension of Hitler's threat against the Poles.

"Justice And Formality"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On behalf of the Bar Association of the District of Columbia, and myself personally, I want to say to you how deeply grateful I am for the editorial appearing in your paper of August 19, entitled "Justice and Formality." To my mind this is an excellent statement of the subject matter, and is bound to be effective.

The Washington Post is constantly giving recurring evidence of its deep interest in the civic betterment of the City of Washington, and of the simplification of legal procedure in an effort to bring the administration of justice closer to the people, and to make the word "law" more synonymous with the word "justice."

SEFTON DARR,

Training Of Reserve Officers

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Judging from the publicity seen these days, the War Department is making great strides in defensive preparations. More airplanes, more guns, ammunitions, etc., are steadily being acquired. Singularly enough however, very little is being said about the men behind the guns.

Is the War Department still using 1917 ideas, regulations and training methods on its personnel? Aside from the R. O. T. C. for second lieutenants and the expansion of the Air Service which was pushed on it, the War Department is doing little to recruit, train and otherwise prepare men for an emergency. This more particularly is true with respect to reserve officers in the higher grades.

It is reported that more than 95 per cent of the officers of the World War were reserves. This ratio to regular officers will probably be about the same in future engagements. But is the War Department doing anything for the reserve officer? Not much. The young reserve officers just out of college are strung along for a few years, but let them try to advance, say from captain to higher grades, and they find regulations and red tape will discourage most from further advancement.

If you happen to be a high public official or a West Point graduate it may be different but these are few compared to the number of officers required in war times. Older reserve officers unfit for active duty are allowed to retain their commissions and places which the younger, active men should be given as an advancement and encouragement.

The chief reason for this is to save these higher rank places for young officers of the Regular Army in event of war. By the simple expedient of a physical check-up of the older, higher-ranking reserve officers, they will be dropped immediately in case of war and the young Regular Army officers will be stepped up. Aside from better pay, these young regulars will also be farther from the front lines in safer positions. The higher the rank the farther back these officers will be from the front lines.

It all works out very simply except for the reserve officer, who bears the brunt of war but not the emoluments, rank and pay. Remember, it takes a large percentage of first and second lieutenants at the front to lead the bayonet charge. The mortality is exceedingly high—no one knows that better than the regular officers. It would seem in simple justice that he who must actually be on the front lines to die or to win the battles should receive more consideration in the way of training, promotions and a vote as to how he will be used in the crucial test. E. M. SMITH.

Corporate Propaganda

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I thank you for the courteous reference to the report on the National Association of Manufacturers which appeared in your editorial today, entitled "Civil Rights For All." I was surprised, however, to note that the committee sought to impose restrictions upon the free expression of opinion. It indeed would be ironic if this committee should advocate restrictions on the right of any person to express his opinions.

The N. A. M. is an association not of persons, but of corporations. The sole issue raised was whether it is proper for a group of corporations acting through an association to spend money to influence political elections. The corrupt practices act prohibits a corporation individually from making contributions "in connection with political elections." Does not, therefore, the spirit of this law extend to a group of corporations acting jointly?

President Theodore Roosevelt on December 3, 1906, in recommending the enactment of the corrupt practices act said: "Let individuals contribute as they desire; but let us prohibit in effective fashion all corporations from making contributions for any political purpose, directly or indirectly."

The N. A. M. is an association not of individuals, but of corporations, and its dues and contributions are received from corporate funds. Corporate funds are, in theory and should be in fact, stockholders' funds. Persons, not corporations, vote in political elections. Let persons, not corporations, be the deciding factors at elections.

Think For Yourself

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Freedom of speech, of the press, of religion, is a power in the right arm of the common people that must be exercised to be kept alive. Now is the time for all good men and women to come to the aid of this power in the right arm of the common people if they don't want it lost to them forever. If the common people lose this power, it will be the fault of the common people. People accept that which is not appreciated, not used or discarded, without compunction of conscience.

There are a lot of fine thoughts, bright ideas, possible solutions, inspirations, prophecies, practical pointers and experimental notions lying around idle, or dying in the brain of the small folks of this earth. If these thoughts were taken out of these mental garrets, burnished up and put to work, there would be no fear or belief in any kind of Wizard of Oz.

The voice of the people is the voice of God—so we believe in a democracy. How about raising your voice while there is yet time? Are you afraid? Of what? If we don't want the big bloated bullies to get the running start of us, why not do something, say something and think something for ourselves? Do we deserve anything if we are not willing to knock, to seek—if we want to find? Do we deserve even the things of this earth if we sit mentally idle and accept favors of the progress of other minds? Why not contribute something to the sum total of life out of your own head?

By the sweat of the brow we shall eat bread, may apply to use of small brains as well as big brains. Do you think anything on war, on the farm situation, on anything? Then say so or take what's coming and don't squawk.

Sur-Rebuttal

Dear Mr. Pendelton Hogan: Now that Miss Katharine Brush has had her say about men and you've had your say about women, I'd like to put in my two cents' worth. Who am I? I am the girl who gets boy. I am the breaker-upper of homes. I am the country lass who wanders through men's dreams. I am the slinky one out of Patou by Horst. I am the brain child of Mr. O'Hara, Mr. Arlen, Mr. Frankau, yourself and all the other writing gents. I am, to be brief, the frump in fiction!

My face, thanks to you, Mr. Hogan, and the other Bright and Bookish boys, wouldn't launch a dinghy much less a thousand ships. My clothes never seem to have the remotest connection with current styles. And my hair! Guillame himself would throw in the tongs at mere sight of my locks which, according to Joe Hergesheimer, are "pale and quite scanty."

Everything usually starts out quite well. You and the other male authors describe a countryside, draw a nice word picture of what the cows and chickens are up to, and otherwise beat around a literary bush until all your characters are introduced. Then comes your heroine. That would be me, Mr. Hogan.

According to Mr. Sinclair Lewis, I am wearing a "gingham work dress molded to the curve from shoulder to breast." That might be enough to make Elmer Gantry lay his Bible down. But Mr. Lewis should remember that he isn't writing Little Prudy Goes to the Country. That gingham gag belongs in a song or up in the attic with Grandma's jet thingamabob.

"Cool as a blossomy young tree in her summer frock" writes Edgar Johnson as I pop into sight on page 17 of "The Praying Mantis." Can't you just see me—breezes rustling through my branches, bobolinks building nests in my hair? Next thing you know, I'll be shedding my leaves in the last chapter.

Am I ever seen in a voluptuous lame? Do I get around in the best sellers done up in good old black relieved simply by junk jewelry? Am I allowed to bask in broadtail in a single book? Does my creator ever see to it that I am streamlined and wave-set and perfumed as befits my position in literature? Not on your life, Mr. Hogan. Instead, I am rigged up in a couple of ill-fitting phrases and dangling participles. If my participles don't dangle, then my skirts do. If fashion decrees them long, mine are short and vice versa. Why won't you authors give as much time to your heroines' hemlines as to your publishers' deadlines?

As if this were not enough, here I am "a pretty plump thing in a trailing ruffly, flouncy dress, a bit large" for me. That's Charles Norris' idea of putting one over on Maggy Rouff and Lanvin. Sort of Elsa Maxwell-crossed-by-Mary Pickford effect. Somehow I can't believe that Mr. Norris made that up all by himself. It sounds like a bit of cozy collaboration on the part of Kathleen. Oh, if you male authors would only stop dragging realism in by its ruffles.

Sometimes I am what the lovelorn columns deplore as "the other woman." Then it really is amusing to see you and the boys swivelling around in your swivel chairs, consulting Roget for a devastating description. Mr. John O'Hara, for instance, thinks that the common denominator of all women is a penthouse. Silly boy! And while he was looking to his language, I was running around all over New York in a mink coat without a stitch on underneath. The book reviewers weren't quite sure whether to ignore that in their reviews or rush to the telephone and put in a call to "Butterfield 8" . . .

Elizabeth Hawes has opined that "fashion is spinach." That's not news to me. It was years ago that Sir James Barrie said that I was a "long stalk of loveliness." Doesn't that just make you want to dash for the salt? Sprinkle me with a sprig of parsley here and there, Mr. Hogan, and I'm sure no hero could resist me. Especially the whimsical ones. And with my hair like tawny cornstalks" a la Michael Arlen, I resemble Ceres on a rampage.

And you're no exception, Mr. Hogan. You make me wear my hair in plaits on page 8 and I looked like something on a whatnot. On the very next page, I'm biting my lips, acting wistfully resigned, and "assuming lightness" as I talk. No wonder your hero marries the other girl.

From head to foot, I'm style minus, whether it's you who are writing about me or Bernard DeVoto. According to this otherwise capable gentleman, I'm not even built for comfort. "Shoes were French," once wrote Mr. DeVoto, and his heroine's instep was "a line aching with loveliness." Yet I'm supposed to smile and be gallant and if I weren't the heroine I'd be cursing because those idiotic shoes were half a size too short. But gals in best sellers are supposed to overlook pumps that pain.

Then there are the British Boys, whose idea of clothes is something in which to outdo the weather. It's downright nasty, I think, when Mr. Walpole has me "wearing a black dress that fitted . . . badly." But it's the absolute limit when Hugh makes me forego "any kind of make-up." Maybe that's why they say all good Englishmen go to Paris when they die. It's a kind of celestial sop, you know, for that fog-in-the-face fetish to which they're bound by birth and beef.

Coningsby Dawson is another Englishman who apparently doesn't seem to realize that "A Path to Paradise," as far as I'm concerned, is one which leads to Arden or Rubenstein. With never a thought to skin or lashes, he just sat down and typed me a face "instinct with longing, yet longing that was impersonal." A pretty phrase but one that caused plenty of trouble between the hero and me. We'd get together for a couple of paragraphs and then bingo! Suddenly my face would cloud up with a "longing that was impersonal." How was the startled man to know that it was just my pores longing for a lift.

Business Recovering

By Mark Sullivan

Many Impediments

BUSINESS SEEMS to be recovering—not very conspicuously, yet definitely. There is room for recovery beyond anything so far seen, almost beyond anything dreamed. The quantity of construction needed in all lines, the overcoming of the slack due to ten years of depression, the mere bringing of the country's industrial plant up to date—would require several years of maximum activity, maximum employment. In addition, our share of bringing the rest of the world up to date would create further years of maximum activity.

Sometime, somehow, this recovery will take place. To bet against that would be to bet that civilization has passed a peak, and is downward bound. There are persons who assert this. It may be so. But to act on the assumption that this is so would be both unsafe and unwise.

Against recovery there are many impediments. One is the condition of Europe, the intermittent tension and the constant uncertainty. That impediment to recovery we cannot control. Another obstacle is the attitude of President Roosevelt's Administration.

At present, Mr. Roosevelt has business, and also Congress, caught in a kind of "squeeze play." Mr. Rosevelt says to Congress, in effect: "If you had given me the money I wanted to spend and lend, and otherwise let me have my way, business would recover. Because you didn't let me have what I wanted, I think business will not recover. And you, Congress, will be to blame."

So Congress, in order to justify itself, and for many other reasons, wants business to recover. And business, for reasons of its own, wants desperately to recover.

"Squeeze Play" Bad For Business

BUSINESS STARTS to recover. But at once business bumps its head against the squeeze play. Business encounters several conditions, created by Mr. Roosevelt directly or indirectly, which make recovery difficult. No need to specify these conditions. They are the same conditions that have kept business from recovering during several years past. One of the conditions—to mention only one out of at least seven major ones—is excessive spending by the Administration.

If, now, business fails to recover, then Mr. Roosevelt will use that failure as a reason to demand that Congress next January give him more money to spend. That is the "squeeze play."

In a parallel way, the radical New Dealers within the Administration have business in a similar squeeze play. What is meant by the radical New Deal officeholders, is illustrated by the case of Mr. Amlie.

Some months ago Mr. Roosevelt appointed Thomas R. Amlie, of Wisconsin, to be an Interstate Commerce Commissioner. Objection was raised—it was said Amlie was a radical. He was examined by a Senate committee. It turned out Amlie had said, among other things: "The end of the profit system is at hand . . . The only practicable policy for the United States is one aimed at a fundamental revision of the present social order on broad collectivist principles."

Congress Appears To Want Recovery

BECAUSE MR. AMLIE, quite honestly, held this and similar ideas, the Senate considered that Mr. Amlie, if an official of the Government, would hardly help business recovery. He would be more likely, consciously or unconsciously, to have a mental attitude that would work against recovery of the existing order, and thereby bring the other system, collectivism, which Mr. Amlie believes in. Consequently the Senate would not confirm Amlie as Interstate Commerce Commissioner. Thereupon Mr. Roosevelt appointed him to another office, a smaller office which does not require Senate confirmation.

Now there are hundreds of Amlies in the Administration, probably thousands. Many were appointed in the early days of the New Deal, before the Senate was scrutinizing appointees as it does now. Many were appointed to offices over which the Senate does not have power of confirmation. It is not too much to say that the Mr. Amlies of varying degrees, create the prevailing atmosphere of official Washington.

Some are outright sympathizers with Communist principles. Some believe in milder forms of collectivism. To such as these, business recovery is a thing not to hope for but to hope against. Others, without having a new order of society definitely in mind, are lukewarm about the present order. They doubt whether the present order is worth saving, or whether it can be saved. This is far short of the kind of faith in our present system that is needed for recovery.

As against this widespread atmosphere within the Administration, there is Congress. Congress wants recovery. Congress in its recent session took some steps to help recovery. The Congress that meets next January, composed of the same persons, will take further steps. And there is reason to expect that the Presidential election next year may have an outcome favorable to recovery.

Germany Today

By H. P. Matthews

II. Contrasts In The Third Reich

Special Correspondence of The Post

Berlin.

A visitor to Germany today cannot fail to be struck by a curious contrast.

His first impression is of being in a country which is in the midst of a boom of almost unparalleled proportions. New buildings are to be found everywhere—government buildings, factories, party offices, private houses, barracks. On all sides he hears complaints of the impossibility of finding workers for factory and farm.

On the other hand he constantly finds evidence of acute shortages of every kind of necessity. He sees queues waiting for the weekly ration of a quarter of a pound of coffee; he is informed that "there will be no eggs until tomorrow evening;" in many towns he seeks in vain for butter and apples in the shops.

The contrast is not lost on the German people themselves. In Berlin a couplet is being passed from mouth to mouth:

"Wir haben kein Butter, kein Kaffee, kein Ei, Dafur gibt's die neue Reichskanzlei."

"We have no butter, no coffee and no eggs,
But instead we have got the new Reichschancery."

THERE IS evidence of intensive building activity everywhere. In Berlin, Hitler has a new Chancery, Goering a new Air Ministry, and Goebbels a new Ministry of Propaganda.

Street after street of flats and offices is being pulled down to make room for the boulevards which are to cross the city from north to south and from east to west.

In Munich, a city which seems singularly untroubled by traffic congestion, an underground railway is to be built. Cologne, also, is to have its underground. Many of Berlin's railway stations are to be removed from their present sites and replaced by others farther from the center of the town; the River Spree, which meandered through the Berlin Tiergarten with a distressing lack of symmetry, is being straightened out.

In Mittenwald, once a small Alpine town principally devoted to the entertainment of summer tourists and the manufacture of violins, there are vast new barracks, and singing troops march beneath your windows with full war equipment in the small hours of the morning. In Munich, a whole street has been demolished so as to provide a fitting approach to the new "House of German Art."

Not long ago Hitler, looking out of the window of the new Artists' Club, which he has founded in Munich, caught sight of a large and unsightly building. "It spoils the view," he announced, "it must be removed." So it was removed.

BUILDING and town-planning are Hitler's favorite recreation. He insists that his time shall be so arranged that he may have opportunities for discussing with his architects grandiose projects for making of Berlin a capital worthy of the Greater Germany. Intensive building activity is just one more factor contributing to the formidible tempo of life in Germany today.

At the present time the German government is attempting to increase the speed of rearmament; to push the manufacture of synthetic raw materials in the interests of self-sufficiency; to increase German exports; to push forward rationalization so as to combat the acute shortage of labor; to build the great line of fortifications on the western frontier; to rebuild Berlin and other German cities.

It is attempting to do all this at a time when the army is permanently in a state of semi-mobilization, and when the life of the country is dislocated every six months by an international crisis.

An inevitable consequence of the concentration upon rearmament and public works has been the difficulties which Germany has experienced in the realm of foreign trade.

Rearmament has first claim on available supplies of raw materials, and the factories are fully occupied with armament orders. In consequence it is impossible for Germany to produce the goods which her customers abroad are only too ready to buy. German officials make no secret of the fact that they could easily sell more goods to Russia, to Poland and to the Balkan countries were it not for the fact that the German economy finds it difficult to produce the goods which those countries would willingly buy.

THE GERMAN government is, of course, perfectly well aware of this fact. But it conceives of rearmament as a long-term investment. Already that investment has yielded substantial dividends in the form of Austria, the Sudetenland, Bohemia, Moravia and Memel. By her intense concentration on rearmament Germany is creating problems in the field of foreign trade which she may seek to solve by the employment of her immense military strength.

Up to the present, however, Germany has come no nearer to solving her foreign trade problem by her territorial acquisitions. Austria and the territories of the former Czecho-Slovakia have enabled her to replenish in some degree her depleted stocks of gold and foreign exchange, but they have made her more, rather than less, dependent upon foreign trade. For, though she has gained political and economic control of the new territories, she has not gained control of the markets upon which those territories depended.

IN VIEW of the tasks which Hitler has set the German economy it is scarcely surprising that one's dominant impression of Germany today is an impression of feverish "hustle." The workmen who put up the decorations for Hitler's birthday celebrations worked day and night; so did the men who built the new Chancery.

Throughout the armaments industry factories are working 60 hours a week. If a public holiday is granted for some Nazi celebration, the workmen will as often as not be obliged to make up at some other time the hours which have been lost.

The immense tasks which the German government has set itself, and the shortages of raw material and of labor which are everywhere apparent, have faced the bureaucracy with a host of pressing problems, and have necessitated a constant increase in the apparatus for controlling every branch of economic activity.

The employer must apply to the authorities before taking on or dismissing labor; the workman cannot change his job without permission; the employer must haggle with the authorities over the allotment of available supplies of raw materials. Whilst the workman is feeling the strain of long hours of work, the employer is subjected to a baffling stream of ordinances, often contradictory, which emanate from the various branches of a bureaucracy whose efficiency is seriously impaired by inter-departmental jealousy.

SEEN FROM the outside, the Nazi bureaucracy looks alarmingly thorough and efficient. From the inside it often looks very different.

A fruit-canning concern, which had acquired its fruit, was unable to start canning it because of the lack of tin. When the tin arrived, the labor was suddenly withdrawn for work on fortifications in the Rhineland. By the time both tin and labor were available, the fruit had gone bad.

Fair Enough

Credit Goes To Irey

THANKS TO THE American habit of thinking in bunches and the activities of the Edgar Hoover clack of journalists, the Department of Justice has received credit in the public mind for victories which were prepared by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Sandy Klein, a reporter who covers the Treasury, recently revealed that the case against Tom Pendergast in Kansas City was worked up by accountants operating under Elmer Irey, the chief investigator of the Internal Revenue. The Department of Justice merely prosecuted Pendergast on evidence obtained by Irey's men, and it was the same force of investigators who built the case against Al Capone, although Hoover is widely believed to have been the man who caged the most powerful criminal of the rough-and-tumble type, that this country has ever honored with its perverse pride. Hoover is a great cop, but his volunteer press agents and his public are inclined to credit him for feats which belong to Irey.

In Louisiana a few years ago, the Internal Revenue, as a Treasury agency, prepared the income tax cases against Huey Long's men, and the Department of Justice handled the prosecution, such as it was. The ambiguities of the revenue act are such that the Internal Revenue may descend to political coercion, and in the Louisiana affair this motive was suggested. When the settlements were made and the indictments were dismissed by the Department of Justice on the ground that there had been "a change of atmosphere" following Huey Long's death, the two departments, Treasury and Justice, were in a fix. One or the other was left out on a limb. Either the Treasury worked up cases against political enemies of the New Deal who didn't deserve indictment of justice, or eased up after the second Louisiana purchase.

Justice Department Appears At Fault

LATELY IT HAS been reported from Louisiana that there is a suspicion of tampering in one of the trials that failed, and if that is true, then, the Justice Department would seem to be responsible, for, after all, the prosecution should protect its witnesses and guard the grand jury and trial jury.

The Justice Department will now conduct the prosecution of Moe Annenberg and others, including some who are not yet indicted, in the great race-betting case, which will cause a political earthquake in Chicago. But the Treasury started combing Annenberg's affairs more than two years ago, and has worked on them persistently all this time.

Here again, there may be a suggestion of political harassment, because Annenberg bought into the politics of Pennsylvania on the Republican side and assisted in the fight which licked Gov. Earle. But that argument jumps the track at the point where the prosecution crosses over into the Chicago city administration, which is not only Democratic but New Deal and third term.

The Annenberg and Chicago jobs are Treasury or Internal Revenue cases. If the Department of Justice had been interested in prosecuting for violations of other Federal laws, including trick laws, a little enterprise might have produced indictments long ago. Surely those people must have made the error at one time or another of using the mails in the promotion of a regime as large and corrupt as theirs is alleged to have been.

Treasury In Miami Long Before Hoover

HOOVER RECENTLY visited Miami, and now the Department of Justice is about to become actively righteous there, but the fact is that the Treasury was in there a long time ago, checking on the slot-machine operators and those politicians with whom they did business. The fact that Miami is the winter quarters of the underworld east of the Missouri, cannot be exploited as a Hoover discovery. It has been conceded for years, although some of the best citizens of Miami have always deplored mention of the matter.

The Waterbury, Conn., prosecutions were a State affair, and the convictions are a matter of no little encouragement, to those who hold that Kansas City, Chicago, Miami and Louisiana default their responsibilities and place themselves in receivership, so to speak, when they call on the Federal Government to perform jobs which are properly the duties of the local police and prosecutors. In Waterbury, incidentally, as in Louisiana at present, the initiative was not official.

Hour Of Decision

By Barnet Nover

Europe: Five Minutes To Twelve

TWENTY-FIVE years ago this week, Germany's military might reached its apogee.

In the east, the great Russian steamroller which had managed, through its sheer momentum to penetrate deep into East Prussia, was halted and wrecked at Tannenberg. In the west, the armies of the Kaiser were sweeping all before them on the road to Paris. Victory appeared certain. The Battle of the Marne was not to occur until the first week in September.

Today, Europe is again on the eve of great and decisive events involving the fate of the world.

THE ORDER to march has not yet been given to the millions of men now under arms. Perhaps the order will not be given. Perhaps Europe will continue to live in that twilight state between peace and war with the ultimate victory in this bloodless struggle won by the nation or nations whose nerves are strongest. But there is no assurance of this. On the contrary the indications point to a decision in the very near future.

The sands are running out. Every move that has been made by the European powers during these last months has made an indefinite postponement of a showdown less and less likely. And the area of peaceful maneuver has steadily grown less.

WHAT FORM will that showdown take? There was a showdown last year and it took the form of surrender by the western democracies. Because they felt themselves unprepared, divided at heart, fearful of war as the worst of all evils, they gave way to Hitler. That was, as they saw it, the only way that peace could be preserved.

Will history repeat itself? The next few days may tell. Every report out of London and Paris speaks of the determination of the French and British peoples and governments to resist further aggression. Every report out of Warsaw tells of the determination of the Poles to fight rather than submit to a peaceful partition. And, on the other hand, everything that Germany has been doing during the last weeks and months suggests that Hitler is preparing to get what he is after by war if he cannot have it any other way.

AT THE TIME of the Czecho-Slovak crisis last year the European democracies could comfort themselves with the thought that even with the loss of the Sudetenland, Czecho-Slovakia would still remain a viable state. Their hopes have been belied by events.

It is possible that some of the British and French leaders did at one time feel that if Hitler could be appeased by Danzig, Danzig was not too great a price to pay for peace. They know better now. For the inspired German press which faithfully echoes the views of the government has made it clear that the Third Reich will not be satisfied with anything less than the return of all the territory taken from Germany and given to Poland. That means not only Danzig but also the Corridor and Upper Silesia. And it may mean much more.

In other words, the choice offered Poland is that between war and suicide. There is no reason to believe she will choose the latter. And if she fights, Great Britain and France are solemnly committed to fighting on her side.

THE SITUATION is one to give Hitler pause. There is no indication whatever that it has. The occupation of Slovakia, the tremendous pressure applied to Hungary—these are but the latest proofs of the Fuehrer's determination to force the issue and by war, if necessary.

Perhaps he calculates that if British and French and Polish nerves have held up to now they will give way when the zero hour is actually at hand. And it may be that he has decided that he must go ahead regardless of what Poland and her allies may say or do about it.

In either case he can take real comfort in the commercial agreement which he has just concluded with Soviet Russia.

AT ANY OTHER moment than this such an agreement would probably have aroused little more than passing notice. No far-reaching conclusions as to the trend of Russian policy were drawn from the conclusion by Moscow, recently, of a commercial pact with Germany's partner, Italy.

Russia is not the only nation that does business with Germany. The very supplies the Reich has needed for her rearmament program have come, in no small measure, from countries she may be fighting before very long. Thus it is entirely possible to consider the German-Russian deal at its face value. By it Russia receives credit on very favorable terms and can use that credit to get machines and other necessities. By it Germany will be able to tap Russia for needed timber and petroleum and manganese and other commodities.

However, the fact that the agreement was concluded at a moment when European tensions are reaching the breaking point gives it a political significance which cannot be ignored, whether so intended or not. For it will certainly not diminish the belief held in Berlin that, should it come to a war over Danzig and the Corridor, Poland will fight alone.

NEVERTHELESS, there is the fact that Russia has little to gain, much to lose by the destruction of the Polish barrier to German hegemony in Eastern Europe. To give aid and comfort to German expansion would mean the perpetration of the same mistake that Poland made when, in making her deal with the Third Reich in 1934, and later in participating in the partition of Czecho-Slovakia she permitted short-run interests to outweigh long-run considerations.

It remains a possibility, if a diminishing one in view of Ribbentrop's flight to Moscow, that the signature of the trade pact with Germany at this time will be used by Moscow as a lever to bring Great Britain and France around.

The subsequent course of the staff conversations being held in Moscow should, therefore, be most revealing. But these conversations cannot be prolonged very much longer without being overtaken by the very crisis they were presumably designed to avert.

Warrenton Speeding Horse Show Activity

Aim Is to Make 40-Year-Old Event Second Only to Madison Square Garden Exposition; Date Is Labor Day Week-End

By Dudley Harmon

Warrentonians are very busy these days at their favorite activity—organizing a horse show. Undaunted by the current heat wave, a committee of leading citizens is deep in plans for the two-day exhibition to be held Saturday, September 2, and Monday, eptember 4.

The event promises to be extra gala this year as, besides taking place Labor Day week-end, it will mark the fortieth anniversary of the Warrenton show. In those 40 years the exhibition has changed from a local get-together which specialized mostly in breeding classes and drew mostly farmers to an event of great chi-chi which attracts fashionables from Washington, New York and other cities. The enterprising committee this year has ambitiously adopted as its slogan "Second Only to Madison Square Garden," referring to the famous horse show held there annually.

In the old days between 8,000 and 10,000 country squires rallied to every Warrenton show, and often there were as many as 70 to 80 horses entered in a class. Now attendance averages 5,000 and hunters make up the majority of entries.

Forty years ago practically the entire county moved in on the show, bearing picnic lunches, but today there are apt to be present more diplomats from Washington than farmers. The informal picnics have been succeeded by a round of dinners and dances.

Cuttings and Winmills Head Entertainment Committee

Labor Day week-end will be packed full with festivities centering about the horse show. Members of the entertainment committee of the Horse Show Association are Mr. and Mrs. George W. Cutting, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, Mrs. Francis T. Greene, Mrs. Melville Church 2d, Mrs. James C. Hamilton, the Misses Lucie Duer, Dorothy Neyhart and Jane Wilbur, J. North Fletcher and E. Kenneth Jenkins.

Miss Neyhart and Mrs. Hamilton will give a luncheon Saturday for judges, members of the committee and out-of-town exhibitors. The same group will meet again for tea that afternoon when Mr. Fletcher, who is president of the association, and his mother, Mrs. L. Victor Froment, will entertain at Crestone after the show. That night there will be a dinner dance at the Warrenton Country Club and the Young Democrats Club of Fauquier County will hold its annual horse show dance at Meetze.

Sunday Parties Start With Subscription Luncheon

Sunday there'll be a string of parties, including a subscription luncheon at the famous North Wales Club and a tea at Clovelly, the home of Mrs. Winmill, on Springs road. The directors of the association will give a luncheon Labor Day in the grill room of the Warren Green Hotel for the judges, committee and out-of-town exhibitors, and the gala week-end will be brought to a close with a subscription dance that night at the Warrenton Country Club.

Miss Neyhart, Mrs. Arnold Scruten and W. Murray Black are in charge of boxes and parking spaces for the show, which takes place in idyllic surroundings. The grounds of the association are surrounded by Lombardy poplars and tall cedars, with the Blue Ridge Mountains rising in the background.

New Hostess for Danish Legation

Harris & Ewing

Mme. Henrik de Kauffmann, wife of Denmark's newly arrived Minister here, snapped with her Lhassa terrier, who comes all the way from Tibet. Mme. de Kauffmann will leave in about a fortnight for a stay in North Haven, Me., until the autumn. She and the Minister arrived on Sunday evening and are staying at the Shoreham

Mme. de Kauffmann Unpacks, But Will Soon Go to Maine

Wife of New Danish Minister Plans To Visit Parents, Rear Admiral and Mrs. William MacDougal, at North Haven

Mme. de Kauffmann, wife of the Danish Minister and the Capital's newest diplomatic hostess, is busy unpacking her belongings after her arrival Sunday in the Capital, but will repack a suitcase very shortly to be off again. It took only a day in the Capital to convince her that the Washington heat is all it's cracked up to be, so she will leave in about two weeks to join her parents, Rear Admiral and Mrs. William D. MacDougal, at North Haven, Me.

The envoy and his pretty, titian-haired wife are staying at the Shoreham temporarily. They will wait until the first of the year before taking a house. Whether it will be the residence at 1620 Belmont street, occupied by Mr. de Kauffmann's predecessor, Otto Wadsted, has not yet been decided.

The newly arrived diplomatic couple brought with them to Washington their favorite pet, Aitus, a Lhassa terrier, acquired during a trip to Tibet. They left behind their daughters, Tilda, 11, and Lisa, 8, as their mother thought it would be better to wait for cooler weather to bring them to the Capital. The children are with their grandparents, Rear Admiral and Mrs. MacDougal.

In Norway, where M. and Mme. de Kauffmann were stationed before coming to the United States, the Minister and his wife became proficient skiers. Even in the August heat, the diplomat's wife is looking forward to journeys to snow-covered hills, come winter.

But until then, swimming and golfing (although Mme. de Kauffmann insists that neither she nor the Minister is very expert at golfing) will provide recreation until the round of entertainment starts with the opening of the social season.

Misses Bunker And Bolling Return Sept. 21

Signora Rosso Will Accompany Girls Here From Europe

Arriving in New York aboard the Conte di Savoia on September 21 will be Miss Adele Bunker and Miss Barbara Bolling, with their passports virtually worn thin after a seven-month tour of Europe.

Having left here on February 21 in a daze of anticipation, the two young girls, both debutante age, will return seasoned travelers. Accompanying them here will be Miss Bunker's mother, Signora Rosso, the former Mrs. Wilkinson Bunker, wife of the Italian Ambassador to Russia.

When the two girls sailed for Europe last winter their immediate destination was Moscow, where they were the guests of the Ambassador and Signora Rosso. However, they decided to stop off and view Paris and Berlin en route.

They should be able to talk rings around their contemporaries by the time they again step on American soil. Mrs. Richard Bolling's mail in the last few months has been filled with glorious accounts of embassy life in Moscow. One of their more unusual trips was a jaunt into the south of Russia, where they traveled over the Caucasus Mountains and the Black Sea.

Visited Norway And Sweden

With Signori Rosso the two girls visited in Norway and Sweden this spring, where they stayed with friends in Oslo and Stockholm. After viewing the beauties of the Scandinavian scenery, the three took a plane back to Russia.

En route home the party of travelers will go to Odessa, sailing from there to Constantinople. After a brief trip to Athens they will go to the Island of Rhodes—a small paradise owned by Italy. From there they will go to Naples, spending one week in Italy. The two girls accompanied by Signora Rosso will tour Florence and Rome before sailing from Genoa on September 14 for America.

The Ambassador and Signora Rosso hit the headlines last season when they served hot dogs, American style, at a fancy dress ball they gave at the embassy in Moscow in honor of the two girls. Each year, it seems, it is the custom for the embassies and legations to take turns giving fancy dress balls, and because the two young ladies were visiting the Rossos, they requested permission to be hosts. Anticipating the ball the two girls had purchased their costumes in Berlin.

Signora Rosso To Visit Capital

Miss Bolling, who has an excellent voice and plays the piano well, delighted her Moscow audience with a rendition of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Signora Rosso, who is well known here where she made her home for many years and met the then Ambassador from Italy to the United States, undoubtedly will include a visit to Washington in her stay in America. She will probably visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Wilkinson, in Evanston, Ill.

Miss Bunker divides her time between visits to Washington and New York City, where she stops with her father, Arthur H. Bunker.

Miss Cutler to Wed Mr. T. S. Amussen

Of interest to Washington is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Earle N. Cutler, of Plowpenny Hill, Morristown, N. J., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anne Nelson Cutler, to Theodore S. Amussen, son of Mrs. Theodore S. Amussen, of Chevy Chase, Md., and the late Mr. Amussen.

The prospective bride was graduated from Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., and was introduced to society in 1934. She is a member of the Morristown Junior League.

Mr. Amussen is a graduate of the Brooks School and also studied at Harvard and at the Sorbonne, in Paris. He is a grandson of Mrs. Harold Russell, of Brookline, Mass., and is with Farrar & Rinehart, Inc., New York publishers.

Your Figure Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain.

New York, Aug. 21.

THOUSANDS of women stood around with their mouths open while the Sofia Girls, of Sweden, demonstrated exercises that looked like dancing. Their grace and beauty of movement were a revelation to the American woman who takes up exercises as a last resort—usually when she wakes up to the fact that she has lost her figure!

As a matter of fact, this particular brand of Swedish gymnastics makes use of the principle of relaxed rhythm which makes good dancing such a joy to behold.

All Got Rhythm

Mrs. Maja Carlquist, instructor of the troupe, is convinced that a sense of rhythm lies latent in everyone. But we lose it, she says, through the unnatural lives we lead and it must be reawakened through rhythmical exercises.

The Sofia Girls started their exercise at the age of 7, when they started their schooling. Mrs. Carliquist thinks there must be something wrong with American women from girlhood, "because they have such big stomachs!" She believes that we eat far too much and exercise far too little.

Rhythmical exercises are not new in this country, but they are usually stressed for their value in inducing relaxation. Probably the alleviation of tension should be the main object for many of you. Whatever your reason for exercising, try to get as much rhythm as possible in these simple exercises borrowed from the lovely young Sofia Girls.

Skip Sidewards

1. Hold the arms straight out at the sides, shoulder-level, but do not have them stiff. Now, skip sidewards in long, bounding steps. You may have to skip in a circle, but that's all right. The main thing is to keep it up for two to three minutes without breaking the pace.

Fashion Right—Fore and Aft

There has been so much talk this season of fore and aft detail in the new frocks that it's a relief to find a style that has everything—both before and behind. Here are two views of a dress that casts decided charm to the front through its bodice, which is gathered on to a deep V-yoke and fitted into a slim waistline. The inky-black sheer skirt is plain in front—plays pranks in the rear. It buttons down the back and ends in soft gathers and a bustle bow for flippancy. The plain neckline is its own foil for costume jewelry

The Gentler Sex

'Horse and Buggy' Thanksgiving

AN ARMY of 30,577,898 embattled women will war against President Roosevelt's plan to hold Thanksgiving a week earlier this year. This announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, founder and president of the Do Something About It League.

Mrs. DeGoofey

The famous reformer was in a belligerent mood as she addressed her press conference.

"It is simply outrageous," she declared, "to try to modernize Thanksgiving any further. It is already too new-fangled as it is with people chasing around to football games and cocktail parties and going joyriding and listening to the radio! What we need, I tell you, is to go back—back to the simple holidays of our forefathers!

"But, Mrs. DeGoofey," protested a perennial writer of Thanksgiving news stories, "is it not true that the Puritans themselves held Thanksgiving on varying dates?"

"That makes no difference," was the retort. "Abe Lincoln set Thanksgiving for the last Thursday in November and what was good enough for Abe is good enough for me. And now since the issue has been raised, I am going to seize this psychological moment to launch my national 'go back' movement."

The reporters opened their note-books and eagerly waited with pencils poised.

Search of Attics In Prospect

"You may quote me as saying," continued Mrs. DeGoofey, "and by the way, don't forget that the 'G' in Goofey is capitalized—that the Do Something About It League of 30,577,898 intrepid women will not only oppose any change in date for Thanksgiving, but will demand that the day be observed exactly as our Puritan forefathers observed it—in the American way."

"Won't that injure retail trade?" asked a financial writer.

"No, indeed. It will stimulate trade. Think of all the costumes that will have to be purchased—Pilgram hats and capes, basques, fichus, boots, guns, Indian regalia, witches' bonnets—oh the idea is tremendous! One gigantic national costume party! Then think of the food angle—everything cooked over open fireplaces in big iron pots. Why that item alone should put the iron industry on its feet and save at least 10,000 antique shoppes from bankruptcy."

"How will people entertain themselves at this old-fashioned Thanksgiving of yours, Mrs. DeGoofey?" asked a movie critic.

"They will ALL go to church in the morning," replied Mrs. DeGoofey.

"Then in the afternoon go to a football game?" asked a sports writer.

"Indeed not! They will entertain themselves with truly old-fashioned American pursuits as bundling parties and witch burnings."

"What is a bundling party, Mrs. DeGoofey?" asked a gossip columnist.

"Well, you moderns might define it as 'necking in cellophane.' But I shall insist that 'bundlers' wear the complete Puritan costume which somewhat resembles that of an early day football player."

Candidates Sought For Witch Burnings

"Do you really intend to hold witch burnings?" eagerly asked an editorial commentator.

"Yes indeed!" was the reply. "Don't you love the idea? I am so intrigued by it myself that I shall broadcast an appeal at once for suggestions for candidates. I can think of several right now, offhand, though unfortunately they are in Europe. Now just as soon as we get our list of suspected witches compiled, the Do Something About It League will begin rounding them up so they will be nice and fat for Thanksgiving.

"Also, to make our Thanksgiving observance truly old fashioned and American we are going to have all radios shut off during the day . . . No newspapers will be published, no one will be permitted to drive a motor car, ride a bicycle, fly an airplane, go to a movie or use a bathtub. I am going to see to it that people spend Thanksgiving decently and quietly just as Gov. Bradford intended. You may quote me as saying that I am sick and tired of all this change and upset of tradition."

"But Mrs. DeGoofey," interrupted a political writer, "I have always understood that as a professional reformer you were strongly in favor of change——"

"Certainly I am! But—only when I make the changes myself!"

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Aug. 21

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—There's another snippity hangout for "cafe society" at the Fair now. The excellent restaurant at the Romanian Bldg., where I dined two weeks ago, has been taken over by Felix Ferry who runs a swanky night club in the winter, and Gene Cavalerro, also a top caterer to the swells, and the opening was no end fancy. Among the grandees on opening night were Errol Flynn, the movie giant, flanked by two beautiful girls, Renee de Marco, the dancer, and Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke, of the "Tuxedo Park Set". Oh, it was just so swell! . . .

And here's a line I love from the society column. Dated Narragansett, R. I., it read: "The biggest thrill since the hurricane was the arrival here of Leila Barnett, cousin of the Duchess of Windsor". Poor old Narragansett certainly must be up against it for thrills, hey? . . .

We took mighty good care of Molly and Catherine, young daughter of Gov. Stark of Missouri when they went around the Fair grounds on the eve of Missouri day. Two big G-Men were their escorts, since their distinguished papa had been threatened after that clean-up of a situation in Kansas City.

Lounging pajamas for the ladies have had a bigger play this summer than ever before. They have ranged from chaste and simple blues to very fancy ones made of rayon satin, with a white blouse and raspberry trousers. Little fancy for me at my age, perhaps, but certainly hot stuff for some girls.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Life Seems Such a Bore to Attractive, Popular Girl of 19; She Asks How to Be Happy

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: This letter may seem to you silly and childish, but I am stating the simple truth. I am a girl of 19, attractive (as they say), go out with the boys three to five times a week, have a pretty good job, although it could be better—and I don't enjoy any of these things. I am miserable and unhappy. I can find nothing at all that interests me. I try to picture myself falling madly in love with some man, as most girls of my age do, but it doesn't happen and probably never will.

All that ever excites me is something that worries me, such as losing my job, for instance. If I could find something that would make me happy, I would be a different person, I think. Life to me is just a habit or a routine. Sometimes I feel like jumping off the monument, or something similar. Can you help me? BORED.

DEAR BORED: There are some individuals, few in numbers and rare in kind, who can be perfectly happy doing little or nothing. They are the natural-born loafers, philosophers and whittlers, who are happiest when thinking their own thoughts in leisure and solitude. But you don't happen to be that kind of person. You belong to the great majority, who will always be happiest when they are busiest.

Mentally, physically and spiritually, you are going flabby for lack of positive action. Your whole reaction to life is negative. You are bored to death because you haven't got your teeth into anything. You are waiting for things to happen, instead of getting busy bringing them to pass.

Marie Beynon Ray, in a recent book entitled, "Two Lifetimes in One" (Bobbs-Merrill Co.), comes to grips with pessimistic personalities such as yours, takes them apart and shows them what makes them so miserable. Then she goes further and shows them how to be happy. The recipe is simple: work and more work—interesting, varied and adventurous work. The difference between the happy and successful people and those others who are chronically depressed is the difference between intelligently directed, maximum functioning, on the one hand; and aimless indolence, on the other hand. The one radiates vital enjoyment of life; the other exudes melancholy from every pore.

It is a generally recognized psychological truism that emotion follows action. By which I mean to say that if you were to adopt the attitude of being interested in something, an emotional upsurge of genuine interest would follow. Therefore, rather than wait to "get interested" in something before pursuing that interest, the thing for you to do is plan sufficient and suitable activities and then follow through.

This brings us to the question of what activities to plan. It appears to be a fact that you feel yourself buried in a "dead-end" job. What are you doing to correct that situation? As an employed 19-year-old girl, it is safe to assume that you have had little special or cultural education, of the vocational school or college class room sort. A course of study leading toward professional advancement, or even general intellectual development, seems indicated, therefore.

No doubt you lead a largely sedentary life—office work by day; and movies, dancing, dining or motoring by night. What about physical exercise out of doors? It would be my guess that you do very little swimming, riding, hiking, boating, golfing and bicycling; that tennis, badminton and such-like invigorating games are not included in your repertory of diversions. So here is another front on which to get busy. For no matter what sports you may be dabbling in at the moment, they are not enough, as witness your doldrums.

In the final analysis, no one can help you but yourself. No one is going to take you by the nose and lead you through your paces. You must be your own goal-maker and campaign-manager. As commander-in-chief of your energies, you must hereafter refrain from brooding over your allegedly miserable state and employ your imagination in forseeing a happier situation, in which you are the heroine. Having visualized that situation, you must plot a logical course of action leading to its realization.

Unquestionably this course will involve continual work and play, regularly relieved by wholesome play. For I have observed that the happiest and most successful persons are, almost invariably, those who make it a rule to play—when they're playing—just as hard as they work, when they're working. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

SIX little Blackfeet Indians from Montana—including Shirley Temple's recent leading man and Aloysius Chief Crow, wearing his grandfather's hair—borrowed a piece of Washington greensward yesterday to do the grass dance of their forefathers.

Although their ancestors used the dance to implore the gods for good pasture land, the little boys were merely passing the time till lunch and practising up for their stint at the convention of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade that begins today.

Bare to the waist, so their convention badges had to be pinned to their pants, the bronze boys were outfitted with war bonnets of eagle feathers, with elk hide garments and with plentiful beadwork.

As the dance came to a sudden stop, Martin Good Rider, who played with Shirley Temple in "Susannah of the Mounties," showed his mastery of American slang in an interview.

"I think Shirley is swell. She was a good pupil when I taught her the old Indian dances. But she'd have been a better one if she hadn't been dancing all these new kinds of dances so much," he said.

"Phooey! We can't do one of our best dances at the convention because we haven't the horses to be in it," he deplored, with the aid of the slang.

"In New York when I was attending to business," Father Cullen said, "they spent their time riding up and down on elevators—a novelty to them. In Michigan, on our way here, we passed a riding academy, and nothing would do but we must stop and let the boys take a ride, which they've been missing since they left the reservation."

Aloysius Chief Crow, whose own hair grows in long braids, wore the hair of his dead grandfather, dangling down his back. The ropes of white beads around the boy's neck also belonged to the grandfather, who was a chief. George Black Bear, instead of wearing eagle feathers, covered his head with a porcupine hide with colored hairs jutting from it.

Elevators, ham and eggs and a salt water swim were named among the boys' favorite diversions while they're exploring the East. They expect to add Niagara Falls to their sightseeing before the week is over.

On the Blackfeet Reservation in Northwest Montana they are taught at the Holy Family Mission by Ursuline Sisters. In the booth of the Marquette League among the exhibits at Catholic University, the boys will sing and dance at intervals during the convention, beginning today. Father Cullen will be there to point out that $1,750,000 has been collected and sent by the league in 30 years to Indian missions in the United States and Alaska, and that 212 chapels have been donated by people through the league.

Can an Auto Count?—It Can With This Gadget

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways for the District, is supervising an experiment with this "electric-eye," which records the number of autos that pass the District Building. The device is attached to the end of a metal tape which is stretched across the street on a level with the pavement. Cars crossing it record their own count. Counting the cars is part of a city-wide 18-month traffic survey. Two dozen "human adding machines"—employes who will count the volume and type of motor vehicles passing certain spots in the city—will soon be employed to assist in the survey

Million D. C. Park Trees' Diet Checked

$40,000 Cost Will Include Operations Where Needed; 85 Added to Staff

The National Capital Parks office yesterday began a check-up to see whether the more than 1,000,000 trees in Washington parks are getting enough to eat—and if not, why not.

With $40,000 to be used on this "emergency" project, the first of 50 extra tree surgeons and 35 laborers started the job on the White House lawn. When the staff is completed, the work will be extended throughout the city and to the memorial highways.

"It'll be just like a hospital going-over for individuals and we will operate where necessary," Frank T. Gartside, acting superintendent, said. "This is the most tree-conscious city in the world, probably, and there's no rest for the departments trying to protect the city's vast tree investment."

Trees with pale complexions or with leaves getting brown before autumn will be looked at carefully. Their diet may be found to be unbalanced, or perhaps their roots need air and water.

Every healthy tree must have nitrogen, phosphoric acid, and potash. An expert can tell at a glance if any of these are lacking.

"We feed a tree immediately after we learn it needs it," Gartside said. "The effect is the same as giving a person a shot in the arm. We often find in the most-used parks that a tree is perishing for water because the ground is packed so hard."

Another project with which the office is concerned now is that of seeing that no trees and shrubs are lost because of the new airport. Several thousands of each are being moved to new locations.

In addition to the 1,000,000 plus park trees, Washington has more than 125,000 home-grown trees along its streets. These are under the supervision of the division of trees and parking of the District Government, which is headed by Cliff Lanham.

Even more of a problem than the park trees, which have less competition from concrete and water pipes, the street trees are replaced and added to at the rate of between 3,500 and 4,000 each year.

Lanham sticks to the hardier varieties such as maples, oaks and sycamores. These are grown in two municipal nurseries.

Purse Trick Robs Woman Of $1,600 Here

Completely outdone, Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas, 40, colored, of 1612 D street southeast, yesterday set the police after a colored woman named Mrs. Smith and a colored man with a yen for red neckties and such tricks as can get $1,600 from a woman.

Mrs. Thomas was in the rest room of a department store when Mrs. Smith came up, saying that she was Mrs. Smith and doing a lot of talking besides. So Mrs. Thomas walked off with Mrs. Smith and when they reached the corner of Eighth and I streets a colored man wearing a red necktie was seen by Mrs. Smith to pick up a pocketbook.

He walked over, announcing that he had found $3,600. If they would be discreetly quiet—and put up a little money for good faith—he'd split. Mrs. Smith said that she would kick in $2,000. Mrs. Thomas went to the Perpetual Building Association, Eleventh and E streets northwest, and drew $1,600, throwing this into the good faith deal. Then Mrs. Smith and the man went to the "bank to divide the money," telling Mrs. Thomas to wait until they returned.

Capital News In Brief

Check Bounces

A customer phoned a paint store at 5608 Connecticut avenue northwest, and ordered 300 pounds of white lead, 3 gallons of flattening oil, five pounds of putty, and 5 gallons of linseed oil. He gave definite instructions as to where the order was to be delivered, and when the delivery truck arrived wrote out a check for the necessary $45.

The store manager reported to police that the check "bounced" yesterday, and police are seeking the customer.

Trouble-Shooter Trouble

A service station employe answering a trouble call last night found himself in trouble instead.

William Parr, of Bradbury Heights, Md., left the station in the 600 block of H street northwest, and drove as instructed to a Maine avenue address. As he pulled up, so did a large auto. Two men jumped out and attempted to rob him, but Parr successfully defended himself, and drove off his assailants.

Egg Assault Charged

Norris Bartlett, 29, of 204 O street southwest, was charged with assult with a dangerous weapon yesterday at Fourth Precinct—the dangerous weapon being a milk bottle and a dozen eggs which he allegedly hurled at a passing taxicab, smashing a window.

Prepared to Travel

A half moon and bright stars shone from a clear sky last night and 5,000 listeners returned to the Watergate to hear the postponed Sunset Symphony Concert by the National Symphony Orchestra. Guest Conductor Guy Frasier Harrison and Reino Luoma, piano soloist, look over a score before playing struction. After this hectic story came a fantasy by Sibelius, "The Swan of Tuonela," a peacefully floating airy dream with even less substance than the Debussy work.

Slightly baffled by these three selections, the audience applauded the announcement of the next, the still more modern but more easily understood "Sailor's Dance," from Gliere's proletarian ballet, "The Red Poppy." Sturdy, firm, full-bodied and unmistakable, the stirring theme marched faster and faster to its giddy climax.

Two other popular selections, the "Emperor Waltz" and Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody followed the Rachmaninoff concerto. Sometimes apparently motionless, sometimes seeming to leap at the orchestra, Harrison brought out every ounce of color in these last works, the alternate tenderness and exuberance of the waltz, the bold majesty and the giddy playfulness of the Hungarian Rhapsody.

After the thunderous finish of this final number on the program, Harrison announced as an encore "that beautifully quiet piece by Kreisler, Liebesleid, or Love's Sorrow." Still seeking contrasts, he followed it with the "companion piece by the same composer, Liebesfreud, Love's Joy." And when after these two dainty melodies the audience still applauded, he changed to the robust mockery of Victor Herbert's "March of the Toys."

Still the audience would not go and Harrison, throwing up his arms in good-humored despair, announced "We have only one more encore left, Turkey in the Straw, in Percy Grainger's arrangement." When it was over, the orchestra laid down its instruments to join the audience in a farewell salvo of cheers.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

At his second concert as guest conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra last evening at the Potomac Watergate, Guy Fraser Harrison presented a program largely compounded of familiar works certain to please a summer audience. It was a well-chosen program, ranging chronologically from 1821 to 1927 and emphasizing several crucial points in the development of music, and it was directed with a verve that stimulated the players to their best efforts.

The parade of the composers was headed by Carl Maria von Weber, the fragile but fiery little man who altered the course of German opera with "Der Freischuetz," and it was the overture to this epochal work that represented him. When this opera was produced in Berlin 118 years ago, the favorite dramatic composer in that city was Spontini, the advocate of pseudo-clacissim, and the public was surprised to find itself listening to a fairy-tale drawn from Teutonic folklore. The surprise quickly turned in to delight, and the auditors, among whom were Mendelssohn, Meyerbeer, Hoffmann and Heine, cheered a new leader.

Spontini was so completely in favor with the Prussian court that the censorship would not allow the Berlin newspapers to print any adverse criticism. He got wind of Weber's heretical enterprise and tried to forestall and crush its possible success by producing immediately beforehand his grand opera, "Olympia," in which the stage was crowded with huge choruses, 38 trumpeters and a pair of elephants. But this pomp and pageantry failed of the desired effect, and it was Spontini who slid down the declivity. "Olympia" has long since gone the way of forgotten music, while "Der Frieschuetz" is very much alive.

Mr. Harrison's next choice, Debussy's prelude to Stephane Mallarne's cryptic poem, "L'Apres-midi d'un Faune," reminds us how rapidly a novelty can become an accepted thing. It seems but yesterday that the idiom of Debussy was strange almost to the point of unintelligibility, and now it is clarity itself compared to the puzzles of atonal composers. Faithfully reflecting his period, Debussy did in music what the impressionists were doing in painting, and his tonal pictures parallel those canvas landscapes in which mauve trees cast indigo shadows across ultramarine grass.

The following two pieces offered absolute contrast, the humor of Paul Dukas' orchestral scherzo, "L'Apprenti Sorcier," confronting the melancholy of Sibelius' "The Swan of Tuonela." The one is a vivacious Gallic pleasantry, and the other a brooding meditation upon mortality, for Tuonela is the Hades of Finnish folklore, the mist-shrouded habitation of the dead.

Closing the first part of the program was "Yablochko," the most popular number from Gliere's ballet, "Krasni Mak." Gliere, who belongs to the generation of Rakhmaninov, did not join his compatriot in exile at the time of the Russian revolution, but cast his lot with the new regime. His ballet is an avowed work of communistic propaganda, but in the case of this lively sailors' dance, the political influence amounts to nothing at all.

Rakmaninov had his turn after the intermission with his C minor piano concerto, in which the capable young soloist was Reino Luoma. Because of the circumstances under which it was written, this concerto is an interesting psychological document. In the full tide of his creative impulse, he was suddenly plunged, at the age of 27, into an inexplicable mental lethargy; he had no desire to compose and imagined that the end of his career had come. With faint hope of a cure, he took treatments from Dr. Nikolai Dahl, a forerunner of Coue, who restored him to normal activity by the method of suggestion.

Blue Plains Home Taxed, Says Haskell

Building Program Necessary to Meet Needs in 1940-41, D. C. Board Is Told

The steadily increasing population of the Blue Plains Home for the Aged and Infirm will result in the institution becoming unable to accommodate its inmates by 1940 or 1941 unless a building program is caried on, Supt. Frank B. Haskell advised the Board of Public Welfare in his annual report yesterday.

He said the home was already overcrowded, with an average population of more than 700 for the last six months. The population increasese at the rate of about 50 persons per year. During the past year, he pointed out, there has been an increase of 67.

Only the white women's ward is not overcrowded, Haskell reported. He said 12 white men were sleeping in one of the sun parlors, and that similar arrangements must be made if any more colored men come to Blue Plains.

Haskell asked for an increase in personnel, explaining that the 13 employes in the infirmary could not properly care for 130 bed patients and others in the sick wards.

The maintenance cost, the superintendent said, is "lower than it should be."

Other imperative needs of the institution listed by Haskell:

An annual $12,000 appropriation for repairs.

A new boiler plant.

Repairs to several small buildings.

Pointing to the limited facilities, Haskell said, "It is hard to keep these old people happy and contented in such a crowded condition . . . It is remarkable that we have had so little complaint or discontent among our people. The large majority of them seem to be contented and appreciative of the surroundings."

Hygiene Clinic Expansion Cuts D. C. Stillbirths

Maternal Death Rate Also Lowered, WPA Health Institute Told

The increase in Health Department maternal and child hygiene clinics has helped to reduce stillbirths and the maternity death rate caused by syphilis, Dr. J. Bay Jacobs, the department's maternal welfare clinic director, yesterday told the District WPA Health Institute.

He said the 1936 maternal death rate here of 6.5 in every 1,000 births had been reduced to 5.5 in 1938, due in part to the ten clinics in operation. Two years ago, he sadi, only three clinics were functioning.

In 1937, he said, the clinics treated 688 patients, compared to almost 4,000 in the following year. He ascribed a "substantial reduction" in the stillbirth rate to the fact that 245 infected expectant mothers received treament for syphilis.

Kronheim Objects To Ad Club's Fight On Circular Ban

Milton S. Kronheim, beverage wholesaler and member of the Advertising Club, yesterday announced he had filed a protest with Club President Alvin Q. Ehrlick against the action of its board of directors in objecting to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board's proposed regulations governing advertising of liquors.

Kronheim criticized the club for not giving interested members an opportunity for discussion. The club recently filed a report with the ABC arguing that the proposed ban of handbill and circular advertising was discriminatory, and objected to rules for reducing the size of signs and wall displays.

Following the banquet, the boys held a snake dance around a large bonfire, built on the camp's athletic field.

Silver Spring Woman Dies in 8-Story Plunge

A 31-year-old Silver Spring woman who escaped death in a fall down the stairway of an office building last January, was killed in an eighth-floor plunge from the roof of the Medical Science Building, 1726 I street northwest, yesterday.

Mrs. Margaret R. Kincannon, 7715 Chicago avenue, Silver Spring, went to the medical building in the company of a housekeeper, Mrs. Etta Wells, of the same address, supposedly for dental treatment.

According to District police, Mrs. Kincannon was found at the foot of the second flight of stairs in the Transportation Building January 17. She recovered from multiple fractures of the legs and arms and internal injuries.

Repair of Damage To Sewer Will Cost $25,000

Investigation of the Poplar Point-Blue Plains outfall sewer, damaged August 11 by a slide during construction of a parallel relief sewer, revealed a 350-foot crack in the conduit wall, which will cost about $25,000 to repair, Engineer Commissioner McCoach announced yesterday.

He indicated that until the repairs are made the New Jersey avenue pumping station must continue to dump sewage into the Anacostia river, which thus will be polluted from New Jersey avenue south to the Potomac.

Plumbing Strike Peace Talks Halted

300 Men Out; Nine Contractors Sign With Union, Increasing Pay Rate

Negotiations in the day-old strike of 300 union plumbers came to a standstill last night, after union representatives reported a break in the strike with the signing of nine new contracts granting $1 per day pay raises.

Ernest S. Ott, union business agent, said the nine contractors signed after negotiating individually with the union. Negotiations came to a standstill, he said, when the Plumber's Guild telegraphed to its unit members ordering a halt to the conciliation talks.

Meanwhile, the Conciliation Service of the Labor Department was reported as making little headway in its efforts to arrange a meeting between representatives of 200 striking sand and gravel unionists and officials of the Smoot Sand & Gravel Co.

Plumbers yesterday walked out on construction jobs, including the National Gallery of Art, Doctors' Hospital, St. Elizabeths Hospital, the District Morgue, the District Jail, Police Court, Maryland University and Gallinger Hospital.

Most of these projects are less than half-finished, and the walkout of plumbers will halt essential installation of pipes and other basic pumbing.

Despite the discontinuation of plumbing installation at the struck projects, other work continued, although at a slightly slower pace, a survey showed.

Marshals to Evict Lovenbein in Parking Lot Row

Deputy marshals will advance on the parking lot on the site of the new Municipal Center at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning to evict Samuel Lovenbein, who declared yesterday he would not go.

The marshals will be armed with a writ of restitution issued by the Municipal Court when the District Commissioners sued to get the parking lot back from Lovenbein, who stopped paying rent two months ago.

"I won't leave that lot voluntarily," Lovenbein said.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Another Child Prodigy Battles the High "C's"

Jacqueline Nash Hailed as Sensational 'Find;' Popularity Vote Is Close at the Capitol; This, That and the Other About the Theater

THEY ONLY COME ALONG at the rate of about one to a generation or two, but invariably they create a considerable, if sometimes brief, furore. I mean these prodigious juvenile soprani endowed with miraculous voices.

BELL

There seems to be no immediate threat to the preeminence of the charming Miss Deanna Durbin as the foremost of the youthful songbirds, but along about 1941, or thereabouts, it is just possible that she may have a serious challenger in Jacqueline Nash, now aged nine. Little Mistress Nash is the amazing child coloratura, known as the "Galli Curci of the auto camps," who interpolates an operatic aria in "They Shall Have Music," the Samuel Goldwyn production in which Jascha Heifetz and his violin are the stars.

Jacqueline was discovered singing operatic arias in an auto camp and so astounded a Goldwyn talent scout that he hastened back to his own camp and prevailed upon the powers that be to write a part into the Heifetz picture for her. High "C" is said, to all intents and purposes, to represent Miss Nash's middle register. Occasionally her high notes are interfered with slightly by the fact that her baby teeth are just falling out, but that is a mere "mechanical" difficulty of only temporary importance.

Mrs. Minette B. Nash and her daughter arrived in Hollywood from their home in Toronto several months ago and immediately fell victim to a quick succession of misfortunes. First their automobile—their only means of transportation home—was demolished by a runaway truck, then burglars broke in and stole all of their wordly goods and to cap the climax of ill fortune, Mrs. Nash suffered a severe attack of influenza. I would not be sure that Jacqueline sang through all these disasters, but, at least, she did not lose her voice.

The talented Miss Nash, incidentally, is by way of being a bit of a trouper for one of her years. At the age of 3½ she established the record of being the youngest singer ever to have stood before a microphone for the Canadian Broadcasting Co. on a nation-wide hook-up. Her singing in "They Shall Have Music," furthermore, is incidental to a dramatic appearance as "leading lady" to young Gene Reynolds. Thus, she makes her screen debut, as Deanna did, both as vocalist and actress.

We shall see what we shall see.

This sort of sensational "find" always brings to mind the Methven Sisters, who appeared years ago with the late Eddie Foy in "Over the River," a musicalized version of an old Hoyt farce. One of the Methvens had a voice that not only reached high "C," but kept right on soaring up to "C" in altissimo. The top of her range sounded more like a bird note than one of the human voice, but was sustained sufficiently long to demonstrate that she had outdistanced most of the instruments in the accompanying orchestra. And that was the last that was ever heard of Miss Methven, so far as I know. I trust a similar early obscurity may not await Jacqueline Nash.

The voting for the most popular member of the cast of the "Going Native" revue, now on the stage at Loew's Capitol, is both brisk and close. A tabulation of the votes through Sunday night put Sylvia Kaplowitz and her Accordion Septet out in front with 681 votes. Marjorie King, soprano, was second, with 595; Evelyn Foster, "Miss Washington of 1939," third, with 548; the Capitol's talented usher, Robert Youmans, and his xylophone, fourth, with 500, and Banks Murray, jr., the fledgling master of ceremonies, in the running with 498.

Bernadette Crouch, the brilliant young singing member of the Kaplowitz ensemble, has been singled out by many in the balloting, as has also Catherine DeThierry, whose jitterbugging is one of the hits of the Little German Band's "Dead End" number.

Balloting will continue through Thursday night. The final winner and some two lucky voters will receive valuable jewelry prizes from the Ross Co., F street jewelry house across the street from the Capitol.

What with those five de luxe performances a day, instead of the usual four, I wouldn't give you better than 11 to 10, but it would not surprise a lot of people if "The Old Maid" went a second week at the Earle. Despite the extended schedule—beginning at 9:30 a. m.—the house seems not to be big enough to hold the crowds milling around to see Bette Davis, Miriam Hopkins and Jane Bryan in an exceptional picture. Friday broke all opening-day records, with Saturday and Sunday holding the pace to crack the house record for week-end attendance.

The Chevy Chase Dairy Band, under the conductorship of Edward J. Ruby, will make its only appearance in the Summer Festival series in the National Sylvan Theater tonight at 7:30. The band will offer a half-hour concert preceding the performance of "Hail, Nero" by the Troupers of East Washington Community Center, under the direction of L. Zaff Rogers.

It is worth remembering that Greta Garbo and Charles Boyer begin a revival engagement in "Conquest," the poignant romance of Napoleon and the Countess Marie Walewska, on the screen at the Little Theater today. Boyer's Napoleon marks the peak of his screen achievement in this column's book. And Garbo is not so far from the top of her form, either.

Because the announcement of his engagement said merely "Sunday, Monday and Tuesday," without dates, we had Tex Ritter currently at the Atlas Theater, 1331 H street northeast, one day last week. That was a balk in any man's league. Tex, the vocal star of stage, screen and radio, and his Musical Tornadoes come to the Atlas next Sunday for three days. So now you know. (Personal aside to Managing Director Charlie Olive, of the Atlas: Thanks a million.)

Production of "Macbeth" is under way at the Glen Echo Playhouse. It will be presented for four days, beginning Tuesday, September 5, with Margaret Mary Edmonston as Lady Macbeth, Theodore Smith as Macbeth, John Sikken as Banquo and Forney Reese doubling as Duncan and the Doctor. Mrs. Robert Crichton and Mrs. Webster Patterson, veterans of the Robert Mantell production, and Mrs. L. Zaff Rogers will be seen as the three witches.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 21.—Now that our actors have presented a united front and Government has taken an active interest in picture affairs, we should, since we've got their attention, put through a labor law as they have in England and other countries. And permit only those foreign actors and actresses to enter who can't be duplicated here due to their peculiar talents. And keep our jobs in our own country where the need is so great, instead of opening gates to every Tom, Dick and Harry who happen to have relatives in the right places.

HOPPER

You can't land in England till you've signed a paper swearing you're only a tourist with no intention of seeking employment. In other words, you agree to spend your money instead of going in to get theirs. Come on now, everybody—this is the time to put it across. And maybe by Thanksgiving, whenever it comes this year, we'll all have something to give thanks for.

Strange, that at this very time our Harold Schuster goes to England to direct George Bernard Shaw's "Major Barbara." Schuster made "Wings of the Morning" last time he was there, and Shaw was impressed. Due largely to him that 37 unemployed English directors went to Parliament and protested against influx of American directors. However, with Shaw's backing, he'll have no trouble and he and wife will be aboard the Mauretania first time it chugs up the Thames to London.

At Dave Chasen's the other night, Big Boy Williams was giving out with talk about what a swell-natured fellow he is. Two minutes later, Orson Welles walked in. Big Boy insulted him and ripped off his tie for no reason. Or could it have been those whiskers?

The Vic Flemings have lamps made of antique copper cuspidors and Early American tin candle molds in their new Bel Air domicile. Handy, huh?

Manager of Tropics was kidding two youngsters who set up a lemonade stand in front of his place. Told them he feared their competition. "We're sorry, mister. You know how it is—business is business." And he bought a glass.

Norma and Mischa Auer have adopted a 6-months-old baby and named her Zoe Auer. They have a boy, 5. Decided they needed a fourth at bridge.

Just because his best girl thinks he's got something that Bob Taylor and the other glamour boys hasn't—and wrote Wes Ruggles about him—Chief Boatswain's Mate A. E. Benton, of the U. S. Coast Guard, may get a feature role in "Arizona." Wes is testing him this week.

Ada Mae Moore has a job unique even in Hollywood. Rents snakes to film companies, by the yard. Ten dollars a day gets you a first-class gopher, $50 for a guaranteed python. And wishes there were more jungle pictures. Tells me snakes like to be stroked under the chin. Whose chin?

"Golden Boy" has turned into a golden joy for Columbia. Director Mamoulin has that common homsey touch. Stanwyck, her usual vital self. But Lee Cobb stole the picture. Biggest laugh was the line: "When a man hits his wife it's the first step to fascism." Bill Holden's a star already. Goes back to Paramount where he's under contract, and will do "Golden Gloves" for them. What is he—"The Goose That Laid the Golden Egg?"

Watched ten thousand fans sitting on bleachers on Hollywood boulevard that cost $200 to build for a night, listening to an occasional cheer for a favorite star (Wally Beery very popular). So few big stars like Taylor, Gable, Hedy LaMarr turn out for those mobs. There is a stream of newcomers the fans don't recognize.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

By Margaret Anglin.

(Stage and radio actress, who is today's guest columnist for Leonard Lyons.)

AFTER having been a stage actress almost all of my life, I have now turned to radio. But, then, it never is to late to learn. I found that out when John Golden told me he turned from bricklaying to play-producing. Edgar Rice Burroughs sold insurance before he began plotting the adventures of "Tarzan." Elmer Rice quit the legal profession to write, as did Leonard Lyons, whose estimable niche I am now trying to fill. And so on.

I THINK it's wonderful to take on new interests after old ones begin to stale. Not that the theater could ever bore me. For along with my radio chores, I'd be on the boards this fall just like that if a good vehicle popped out of the mail. Attention, Messrs. Sidney Howard and Kaufman and Hart. But, radio acting is still the theater. It is a department different enough to furnish a new and vitalizing tang. Alternating between the wireless and the footlights would be an ideal arrangement.

Show business has been and still is enormously generous to me. I am duly appreciative. Besides taking care of me financially, it is endowing me with enough memories to match the endless sets in Cain's Warehouse.

IT IS funny that you always look back with a kindly feeling towards the past. All the heart-break, the struggles, the ironies, which formed such a bitter patern then become almost comic in retrospect. Which is one of the reasons, I suspect, that most performers regard their debut days as the golden era of show business. Possibly the current era is a little hard-pressed to match some of the by-gone days in glamor and sentiment. But don't worry. The stage and screen and radio of today are manufacturing a goodly share of their own, and I am grateful to be a small part of the passing parade.

I REMEMBER when a frightened college youngster got his notice on the opening night of a "Ziegfeld Follies." I dropped back to see a friend and there he was, completely done in and ready to quit. But he didn't, and today Jack Whiting is one of our better song and dance men.

ONE SULTRY August afternoon a worried looking writer vaulted the railing in Charles Frohman's office and cornered the showman in his den. There was a little matter of a play of his which had been resting on Mr. Frohman's desk for over a month. What was the producer going to do with it?

"You look like an athlete," said Frohman.

"I am," was the reply, "I played football at Harvard."

"Good," said Frohman, "kick this script as far as you can."

So the playwright, Owen Davis, walked out and wrote a few hundred successful pieces, among them a Pultizer Prize winner.

JIMMY CAGNEY was a bell-hop at the Lambs Club, running errands and delivering cigarettes and soda backstage at the plays, and Amos 'n' Andy were a black-face vaudeville team playing the Canadian provinces because Manhattan bookers didn't think they were funny enough for the big-time.

On the personal side, the biggest emotional wallop I ever received was the day we first did "Electra" in the Greek Theater of the University of California, right there in the Berkeley mountains. At the play's end, there was a dead silence, I was cold with fear that we had failed. Then it came, a steady mounting roar of appreciation and applause. The effect of a Greek play on an audience is tremendous. There is no "break" of any kind, no intermissions. The emotion mounts and carries the listeners along. In the end there is the stillness of death and then the deluge.

TOO BAD Greek plays are done so seldom. It seems there aren't enough people interested in them to return a producer's investment. But, even with public support, you couldn't give Greek drama night after night. It takes too much out of the players.

Repertory seems to be the answer for the theater's distress, in my opinion. Under such a system you could successfully offer Greek drama now and then. The Metropolitan Opear House is nothing more than a repertory theater. "Tristan and Isolde" is their most successful opera, but a sustained run of "Tristan" would fare badly at the boxoffie, I'm afraid.

THE THEATER of today still needs revitalization. Several showmen will tell you that the World's Fair has hurt the profession of playacting. But don't repeat that to Sam Harris or Brock Pemberton or Arthur Hopkins. They, as intelligent and reputable producers, will tell you it's always a bad season for bad scripts.

Piano of Royalty Now in Pictures

A fabulously expensive piano which once was played for crowned heads of Europe, has found its way to Hollywood and new fame on the motion picture set.

Purchased by the German Ambassador to England 50 years ago for $12,500, the famous instrument has begun a new career in "The World on Parade." Gold inlay and French polish, hand rubbed for months until it became a glassy smoothness, are distinctive features.

Fire Wagons Roll, Almost, At Roadside

By Nelson B. Bell

It is not until the third of the four acts of "The Still Alarm" that hilarious excitement reaches its zenith at the Roadside Theater this week.

When those two fine-grained and highly polished fire horses go plunging with stationary fury down the street with their one-dimensional fire engine to rescue Elinore Fordham from the burning building in which she has been trapped by that dastard, John Bird, alias Gorman, the Roadside's mechanical department transcends even its earlier melodramatic triumphs in beaverboard railroading!

The rescue in the next scene that marks the climax of this sturdy old drama of the "fire laddies," first produced at the Fourteenth Street Theater, New York, in 1887, came off with a trifle more realism and elicited audience cheers that must have been heard for miles over the otherwise sleeping Maryland countryside. All that ailed the fire run was that the flickering lights devised to give action to the scene failed to flick, making a study in still life out of what ostensibly is a thundering bit of frenzy. Better luck next time.

Up to this juncture, "The Still Alarm" is a conventional melodrama of the old school, with its four acts and eight scenes written with a hissing line for the villain and a cheering line for the hero and heroine in every speech. There are scads of each in some of the passages of grandoise dialogue that tell a story of vile intrigue and sterling virtue that moves from Franklin Fordham's palatial mansion, through Mrs. Manley's modest flat to the firehouse and the mid-city holocaust and back again.

Arthur Manley is done dirt through the machinations of the resourceful Mr. Bird, who holds the incriminating letter, his eye on Mr. Fordham's comely daughter and the whip hand over the weakling who had abducted her sister and reported her dead. So Arthur gets his old job back in the fire department, after Mr. Fordham has fired him without cause, and that is practically the end of Mr. Bird and his heinous schemes. You have to be a pretty hot number not to be quenched by one of these redshirted lads.

Betty Gray, at the piano this week, instead of on the stage, cools out the house between scenes as inspiration for some lusty community singing.

But the big wallop is chasing that fire engine!

Olney

When next the Confederate army is called to the colors, it will be to trounce those of us who roar with delight whenever Lucia Lull brings forth her bitingly satirical honey-haired daughter of the South. The little blonde, who scored so in "Kiss The Boys Goodbye" several weeks ago, is playing a similar role in "Strictly Dishonorable" this week at the Olney.

For Isabelle Parry, of Mississippi, is just an elder sister of Miss Booth's Cindy Lou and if there is anyone who can whip off a "sweet young thing" of the South any better than Miss Lull, we would like to see her. Not once does she step out of character while the audience holds up the performance by its laughter.

This traveler from south of the Mason-Dixon Line is given some natty lines by Author Preston Sturges. The one we will laugh at longest—always with the reservation that Miss Lull's intonation be employed—is that remark while the Italian opera tenor is slipping his pajamas over her head. Says she: "Oh, I'll bet in grandma's day the men used to get awful impatient 'cause she had so many clothes to take off!"

Which makes "Strictly Dishonorable" sound bawdy. It is, but it is neatly so. The comedy first appeared near the end of the prohibition area and explains why the little Mississippi girl got tired of her fiance from West Orange, N. J., while they were in a New York speakeasy. He is a thoroughly stuffy fellow and there is no doubt that Isabelle was right when she threw him over for a handsome Italian tenor.

Miss Lull is, naturally, the center of interest. William Bishop plays the tenor and is generally pretty good at it, although last night, in the excitement of that merry second act, he threw his Italian accent into the wings. It was probably quite as well, for Mr. Bishop is an adept ladies' man. Fred Sherman had a fine time as the boor from New Jersey, but Lex Lindsay's Irish cop might have a little more shamrock. But it is Miss Lull's evening and a swell evening at that.

Glen Echo Park

Wally Stoefler, the handsome maestro, who made such a hit at the Spanish Garden ballroom, Glen Echo Park, last spring, with his "soft shoe" rhythm band, returned last night. From the way he was welcomed by thousands of dancers, it seemed as if a prodigal son had returned. Wally was certainly welcomed with open arms by all the swingsters, dancers and jitterbugs.

Wally brought the same beautiful Thelma Mitchell with him. Naturally, most people like to feast their eyes upon feminine beauty, so everyone was happy to see Thelma again. Those who heard her sing last night insist that her voice is lovelier than ever. (She still wants to be a newspaper woman.)

Houston Davis, Wally's trap drummer and clown de luxe, is back in all his glory. While he was away he certainly did not forget how to smack the hides. Davis holds the world's record for drum roll, with a continuous six hours 30 minutes 30 second record.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Aug. 21.—The shapely Earl Carroll beauties will vie with some of our other movie Venuses in the revue Carroll is scheduled to make for Paramount. He'll call his gay musical comedy "Hollywood Portals," and it will be produced at the Earl Carroll restaurant, converted into a sound stage for the occasion. The plot, as outlined, has a mystery angle, with comedy galore.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Because Carroll has set his heart on having Mary Martin ("My Heart Belongs to Daddy") as the star and William Holden as the boy, the revue won't be produced until late fall. Mary, you see, must first keep a New York engagement after she finishes "Victor Herbert." So far, Holden, the latest Hollywood rave, hasn't made a picture at Paramount, his home studio, so this may be his first.

The scramble for John Wayne is amusing. Until he made "Stagecoach," he was lucky to get a job at Republic. Since "Stagecoach" every producer in the business has asked for him in the Gary Cooper roles that require a typical Western hero. His coming year is all mapped out. He goes to Hal Roach for "Captain Cautious," by Kenneth Roberts, author of "Northwest Passage." But before Hal can borrow him, he has to make a Walter Wanger picture and "Wagons Westward" for his home studio, Republic. If possible, John Ford will be borrowed to direct him at Republic and if Ford accepts, he will be the highest salaried director to ever set foot on this lot.

Busy day today for Joan Blondell. She discussed costarring with Jack Benny in "Buck Benny Rides Again," and also plans for going to England with Dick Powell. If she can arrange to leave her movie engagements and Dick is free from his radio obligations, they will join the movie celebrities who have been commanded by the King and Queen of England for special performances. So many of our boys and girls have been "commandeered" that Hollywood will be a lonesome place come October 18. P. S.: Joan, from latest reports, has signed with "Buck Benny."

Heard a very amusing story about Cobina Wright, jr., and young Robert Stack, who is in Deanna Durbin's new picture. Bob met Cobina for the first time at a tea given in her honor by Myra Kingsley. He liked her so well, he remained after all the guests had left and trailed along with the young debutante and Cesar Romero, Hollywood's prize dancer and most popular beau. Talk is he gave "Butch" Romero some real competition for the young lady's favor. Not bad for Bobby, who is in his early 20s.

Mrs. Wayne Morris, the former "Bubbles" Shinasi, had her young husband and her mother extremely anxious over the week-end. Only 19 and very fragile, the heiress-bride is expecting a visit from the stork, but so serious was her condition Saturday and Sunday there was fear their hopes might not materialize. Today the expectant mother was reported better and everyone breathed a sigh of relief, for these two youngsters have been so happy over the prospect of parenthood.

Snapshots of Hollywood Collected at Random: Orchestra Leader Charles Barnet, Dorothy Lamour's much publicized heart beat, arrives Wednesday to see Dorothea Kent, his real girl friend; Lana Turner and Greg Bautzer surprised Hollywood by appearing together at the Troc; Baby Sandy must have gotten under Mischa Auer's skin, for now he and his wife have adopted a girl; Richard Gully and Andy Lawler are in the Jack Warner party leaving early next month for Europe; Countess di Frasso was paid a handsome sum by the Italian government for her villa near Rome; the Pepi D'Albrews are celebrating two years of wedded bliss Thursday and the Danny Dankers are cocktailing about 100 friends the same night; very cute invitations sent out by Fannie Brice in Baby Snooks language for a cocktail party next Sunday.

Orry Kelly is back from Australia and very happy to be home; Ronald Colman returned from deep-sea fishing without a marlin strike; Lillian Gish met Mary Pickford when she arrived today at Pasadena.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

*X WASHINGTON: TUESDAY, AUGUST 22, 1939 13

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Have you had your light summer reading? Then we recommend the delightful whimsy of George P. Marshall, who is being quoted daily in the football dispatches from Spokane, Washington, where his Redskins are training. When Mister Marshall clears his throat, calls the correspondents to bend an ear, and then profoundly tells what he knows about football—it's wunn'erful.

POVICH

At last reports Mister Marshall, with a sweeping gesture of his arm toward the Redskins' practice field, was telling the boys at Spokane that "There is a better squad than the one that won the world professional football championship for Washington in 1937." There was no report that Marshall smiled when he said that, Stranger.

Mr. Marshall did not smile despite the fact that when last seen in the National Professional Football League his Redskins were limping off the gridiron at the Polo Grounds after being walloped 36-0 by the New York Giants. And not so long before they barely escaped with their lives at Wrigley Field, Chicago, where the nasty old Bears nosed them out, 36-6.

"I tell you we can't miss," thundered Mr. Marshall to the correspondents the other day in discussing the 1939 championship, and echo answers "Can't miss what—the second division?" Certainly the prophetic utterances of the Redskin owner are not very reassuring to Washington football fans. It was last year about this time that Mister Marshall was 'round and about proclaiming that "We won't miss Cliff Battles."

At that, however, Mr. Marshall was partially correct. The Redskins did not miss Battles, except when they needed a touchdown or somebody to put a stop to those forward passes that were being completed in Redskin territory. Other than that they did not miss Battles at all, at all.

They Didn't Forget Battles—They Forgot Abbitt

"This is the best Redskin team in history," Marshall is quoted as saying and somebody must have told him that. He didn't fetch any football laurels for himself last year when he was around telling the folks positively that "This fellow Jack Abbitt will make Washington fans forget Cliff Battles." A month later Abbitt was shipped to a place called Hazelton, Pa., and was successfully forgotten by both Marshall and the Washington fans. But somehow the memory of Cliff Battles making runs of 75, 85 and 90 yards against the Giants sort of persisted.

Let's take a look at this 1939 team that Marshall calls the greatest in Redskin history. First off, it has a swell coach, who unfortunately is restricted to the bench when the opening whistle blows. It has the same line and ends of last season, and Washington fans would prefer to forget that line of 1938. Any time it was offside on the defense and incurred a five-yard penalty there was reason for thanks. Usually the opposition didn't stop at five yards through that Washington line.

There isn't a new face at the important tackle jobs and that isn't encouraging. Turk Edwards spent most of last season on his All-American posterior and appeared as washed-up as the rough-dry bundle out of tub No. 8. Jim Barber was none too sprightly himself last season and these aging fellows get tired very quickly in pro football. But Wee Willie Wilkins and Bill Young were good enough last season only to understudy such as Edwards and Barber.

"We've got two of the best guards the Pacific Coast ever turned out in Framan and Slavinski," declares Mr. Marshall, who should be told that Pacific Coast football isn't pro football. They'll assist Clem Stralka and Jim Karcher who last year were usually in need of assistance when the opposition started to roll.

Andy Farkas Will Carry Most of Burden

"If Sammy Baugh is hurt, we've got other passers like Frank Filchock and Jimmy German," points out Marshall, but if Baugh is hurt it won't make much difference who takes his job. Filchock and German can't pass with Baugh and 50 per cent of the Redskins' effectiveness on the offense will automatically vanish with Slingin' Sammy. Baugh had, for Baugh, a poor season last year, but he was still the best passer in the league notwithstanding Ed Danowsky's better average.

And when the Redskins keep Baugh in the lineup, they're sacrificing something defensively. The tall Texan has improved in his play against forward passes, but he has never been any bulwark as a safety man against running plays. He's not built right to make a vicious tackle in the first place, and last year it was no trouble for hard-running ball carriers to shake him off and gallop goalward. A fellow named Battles used to be a very good safety man for the Redskins. He could be depended on to get his man.

The only established ball-carrying threat in the Redskins' backfield is Andy Farkas, and he is not completely established. There's always some doubt as to which way Farkas is going to run, for example. At Detroit last year he was embarrassed to discover that he had carried the ball across his own goal and made a safety which he happily rectified later in the game by scoring the winning touchdown.

But Farkas has a habit of getting hurt in action, due doubtless to the ferocity with which he plays the game. And in the pro league there are fellows who are willing to play the game with him on that basis. If and when Farkas is hurt, you can scan the Redskin backfield for days and discover nobody who is a threat to break loose.

There will be Dick Todd, of course, and he comes recommended to the Redskins as one of the hottest articles in college football last season. But Todd will have to be a slick sort to gain any ground through two sets of linemen—the opposition's and his own. Ah, there, George.

Philadelphia Given 7 Hits By Niggeling

Redlegs, Revamped, Batter Two Pitchers; Fifth Inning Is Leaders' Clincher

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 21.—Cincinnati's desperate Reds, smarting under yesterday's double defeat, revamped their line-up and slapped two pitchers for nine hits and a 7-to-0 victory over the Phillies behind Rookie John Niggeling's airtight pitching today.

The victory, coupled with St. Louis' setback at Brooklyn, boosted the Reds' first place margin to four and one-half games.

Paced by Willard Hershberger, catching in place of Ernie Lombardi, and Frank McCormick, the league leaders did all of their scoring in two innings. McCormick's single with the bases loaded and Hershberger's single with two on base accounted for four runs in the fifth inning and drove Ike Pearson to the showers while Ray Harrell walked in Hershberger and Billy Myers singled to score two more runs in the eighth.

Manager Bill McKechnie used Eddie Joost at second in place of "Junie" Frey, who has a bruised heel and Lou Riggs was at third, while Bill Werber nursed a banged-up finger on the sidelines.

Niggerling, obtained from Indianapolis last week, was never in trouble and his single started the Reds' fifth-inning uprising. Myers followed with a sacrifice and was safe when Pearson fumbled the bunt. Joost advanced both men with a sacrifice and Ival Goodman walked to fill the bases. McCormick's single scored Niggeling and Myers, and Hershberger followed with another single to score Goodman and McCormick.

Hershberger led off with a double in the eighth, Craft walked and West advanced both with a sacrifice. Riggs walked to fill the bases and Harrell passed Niggeling to force in Hershberger.

Australia's First Team Wins Doubles

By the United Press.

Chestnut Hill, Mass., Aug. 21.—The national doubles championship trophy was packed tonight for its fourth journey to foreign shores—and for the third time the address was Australia.

That country's crack combine of Jack Bromwich and Adrian Quist defeated their fellow countrymen, giant Jack Crawford and Harry Hopman, 8—6, 6—1, 6—4, today before a slender gallery of 1,500 in the first all-foreign final in 58 years.

The 20-year-old Bromwich and his debonair partner took slightly over an hour and a half to complete their conquest of the older combine, playing as a team for the first time in seven years, on the lush lawn of famed Longwood Cricket Club.

Davis Cup Tune-Up

Bromwich and Quist, who successively routed United States Davis Cup hopefuls Gene Mako and Jack Tidball and Wimbledon Champions Bobby Riggs and Elwood Cooke, used the match as a tune-up for their interzone Davis Cup final appearance against Yugo-Slavia here later in the week.

Bromwich, a two-handed racqueteer and youngest man on the court, was also the best as he outdrove and outsteadied his more experienced opponents. He failed to drop service even once in the three sets and had 28 placements, 5 more than Crawford, a master of finesse. He also had only 12 outs, 4 less than the canny Hopman, Australia's Davis Cup champion.

Crawford, world's top-ranked singles player in 1933, and Hopman started smoothly in the first set and battled on even terms until their younger opponents broke Harry's service in the tenth and fourteenth games to win the set. Quist and Bromwich raced through the second set in 18 minutes with accurate placements and sharp volleys which caught their slower rivals flat-footed. The third set was a little more closely contested, but Bromwich and Quist had the situation well in hand.

Marble-Fabyan Win

In the clubhouse after the match Crawford intimated he and his partner could have used other tactics to better advantage. He said he was troubled in his service and volleys by an injured left foot.

Blonde Alice Marble, of Hollywood, and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, petite Boston veteran, won the world's doubles crown for the third straight year by defeating the British Wightman Cup team of Kay Stammers and Mrs. Freda James Hammersley, 7—5, 8—6.

It was the tenth major tournament victory for the Californian and Mrs. Fabyan, who have dropped but five sets in some 50 matches since they paired two years ago at Rye, N. Y.

Miss Marble later teamed with Hopman to annex the mixed doubles crown against Mrs. Fabyan and Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Oreg., 9—7, 6—4. Miss Marble also won the title last year with Don Budge.

Chase Hurls In Night Game At Cleveland

Harris Plans to Use All Material on Tour Of West to Get Line

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

En Route to Cleveland, Aug. 21.—A tall, dark and unhandsome fellow has an 8:30 p. m. date tomorrow evening. He is Ken Chase. The engagement has been made for him with the Cleveland Indians by Manager Bucky Harris of the Nats. He'll be Washington's pitcher in the Nats' second venture under the lights.

The Nats are faring into the West for a one-game series with the Indians before heading for other points on a tour that represents their last bid for fifth place or, mayhap, fourth. At Detroit they will come to hand-to-hand grips with the Tigers in a three-game series for fifth place which is now 10½ games distant.

Manager Harris will be attempting to peer into the Nats' 1940 picture during the nine days in the West. His rookie pitchers will get every chance to make bids for jobs, and there is the possibility also that Harris will attempt to seek new positions for two of his veterans—Cecil Travis and Buddy Lewis.

Plans to Shift Travis

With the acquisition of a $40,000 shortstop in Jimmy Pofahl, who will join the Nats' next Spring, Harris is eager to find another position for Travis in the event he does not trade the player. The suspicion has long been held that Travis could be converted into a first baseman and the current trip may be the scene of the attempt.

Travis is the key figure in many of the Nats' 1940 plans. Clark Griffith would not be averse to trading him to Detroit for Rudy York or to Chicago for pitching strength, and there is also a possibility that Travis may also return to his old post at third base. That change would be occasioned by an attempt to make an outfielder of Buddy Lewis.

During the past two years Lewis at third base has been no improvement, defensively, over Travis who formerly held the job. And Harris values Lewis' hitting so much that he may seek to retain it by placing Lewis in the outfield. Lewis may get his chance to become an outfielder during the road games.

Pitching Problems

The Nats go west beset by the pitching problem that has harassed Harris for the past month. With the injury to Harry Kelley incapacitating him for the rest of the season, Harris has only six able-bodied pitchers at his command—Leonard, Chase, Krakauskas, Appleton, Alexandra and Masterson.

Chase is getting tomorrow's assignment after only two days' rest. He held the Red Sox to only four hits in his last turn.

Two of the Nats oldsters—Sammy West and Buddy Myer—are destined for little action on this trip. Harris wishes to give Johnny Welaj and Bobby Estalella every opportunity to make good in regular outfield posts and it is unthinkable at this point to relieve Rookie Bloodworth with Myer at a time when Bloodworth is proving such a potent package. Bloodworth is already regarded as the Nats' regular second baseman next season.

Sam Breadon Still In Serious Condition

St. Louis, Aug. 21 (INS).—Condition of Sam Breadon, president and owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, tonight was reported by St. John's Hospital attaches as "better, but still serious."

Breadon suffered head injuries and a fractured thumb when thrown from a horse yesterday at his farm near Fenton, Mo. The fall knocked him unconscious about 30 minutes.

Miss Barrett Takes Women's Golf Medal

M. Brown, Mrs. Hill, D. C. Entries, Make Grade; Others Fail

By the Associated Press

Darien, Conn., Aug. 21.—Beatrice Barrett, a good-looking brunette from Minneapolis, played 18 holes of brilliant golf over the long and hazardous Wee Burn Club course today to win the qualifying medal in the forty-third women's national golf championship with a record-breaking score of 74.

One under women's par and only 2 over men's par for a course that has been stretched to the limit, the 22-year-old Mideasterner was two shots better than any other medalist in the tournament's history. Enid Wilson came over from England to lead the field at Exmoor in 1933 with a 76, and that was the best until Miss Barrett walloped her way around today.

Miss Barrett has been a fine golfer for several years. She was a semifinalist her first time out, in 1934; a quarter finalist the next year, and won the Western Women's Open title last year, but generally she has had to play second fiddle to her Minneapolis neighbor, Patty Berg.

Freckle-faced Patty, though, isn't defending the championship. From her home, where she's recovering from an appendectomy, she sent a wire to wish the girls well. Miss Barrett made good use both of the opportunity and her neighbor's advice.

While she set the fastest pace ever, she still was the medalist by a margin of only 1 stroke. Right behind her at 75 came Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, the plump, jovial Greensboro (N. C.) star who had taken the medal outright twice and tied for it once in the three previous championships.

This was by far the lowest-scoring qualifying day the ladies ever have had. Not only did 9 of them come in with scores of 80 or better, but the highest score that won one of the 64 places in tomorrow's first round of match play was 89, and the 89 shooters had to compete in a playoff.

District Champion Marion Brown, of Manor, and Mrs. Bishop Hill, of Congressional, were the only District entries to qualify. Mrs. Myron Davy, Congressional, was only 1 stroke over the minimum, 89, but the other three Capital City ladies finished far down the list.

Miss Brown posted an 86, and Mrs. Hill an 87. Mrs. John W. Godfre, of Beaver Dam, and Mrs. Landra Beach Platt, of Chevy Chase, withdrew. Mrs. Ellen Kincaid Harris, of Beaver Dam, had 94.

Made Three Mistakes

In first-round play Miss Brown has drawn one of the tournament's favorites, Glenna Collett Vare, former national champion, from Philadelphia, while Mrs. Hill will face Harriet Randall, of Indianapolis.

Qualifying cards of District players:

Miss Barrett made only three mistakes all day, and made up for two of them by blasting out of traps and sinking long putts to save her pars. Her lone bogey came on the eighth hole, where she was trapped, came out handsomely but missed a 4-foot putt. A chip that hit the pin and stopped inches from the cup gave her a birdie 4 on the first, and an 8-foot putt on the tenth was good for another. On No. 13 she caught a trap but saved her par by knocking in a 40-footer and on the eighteenth she again hauled one out of the sand and banged in a 10-foot putt to stick to standard figures. The 13 other holes were played in perfect pars, or in regulation and down in two putts each time.

Mrs. Page was only slightly less consistent. Two bad lies, forcing her to use irons instead of woods

Jim Robinson Drops Verdict To Gallagher

Marty Durable In Comeback Bout; Daniels Victor

By Al Hailey

Proof that there's fire in the old gladiator yet was furnished last night by 30-year-old Marty Gallagher, 211-pound Foggy Bottom fighter, when he spotted Jim Robinson, a strapping Philadelphia youngster nine years in age and then punched out an unanimous 10-round decision to start what he hopes is a comeback trail that will lead to whatever reward there may be for "has beens" who can return and still dish it out.

Although he was far from anything sensational, Marty carried the fight the entire ten rounds and appeared surprisingly fresh at the end. There were no knockdowns but Marty, absent from the ring for 18 months, had the 21-year-old 203-pounder in trouble in the eighth round with a punishing body attack and again in the tenth with a two-handed display that did plenty of damage to Jim's person.

Marty opened a cut over Jim's left eye with a curving right in the third round and constantly rubbed, pushed and dragged his glove across it the remainder of the fight. He staggered Robinson with a hard left hook in the sixth round, but Jim laughed it off and came back with a series of left jabs that drove Marty back and finally won the round from him.

Seeking to prove his theory that Irish fighters "do not mature until they are 29 or 30," Marty gained his point but the 2,200 fans seemed to care little about this. They wanted to see rough and ready clean punching, and Marty could not show that to them. All he could do was to drive Jim into the ropes with the sheer weight of his body and then work on him from close quarters, roughing him up in the clinches and giving his body and kidneys a bad beating.

Marty and Jim boxed the first and fourth round on even terms, Robinson won the second and sixth by close margins and the rest went to the pride of Foggy Bottom, who got a big hand from the fans.

Gallagher was lucky to meet a fighter as green as the Philadelphian. His victory probably gains

Clark Griffith Says Gedeon Still Belongs to Washington

Clark Griffith denied yesterday that the Washington club has lost title to First Baseman Elmer Gedeon, now playing with the Nats' Orlando, Fla., farm.

Admitting that Gedeon's contract with the Washington organization was voided by Commissioner Landis, Griffith explained:

"Only our original contract with Gedeon was voided by Landis. We explained to the commissioner that we withheld submitting Gedeon's contract to League President Harridge at Gedeon's request. He did not want the fact that he signed a baseball contract to be known at the time, inasmuch as he had not yet graduated from college.

"The Washington club filed Gedeon's contract three days late. Landis voided that contract, but gave us permission to sign Gedeon to a new contract. He is not a free agent and Landis has ruled that he is still our property."

Judge Landis Rules Gedeon Pact Void

Chicago, Aug. 21 (AP).—The contract of Elmer Gedeon, of the Washington Club of the American League, was declared void today by Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, because the club did not submit proof to William Harridge, league president, and Landis within 20 days.

Gedeon, a recruit infielder, thus became a free agent.

Gedeon signed with the Senators on May 11, but the club did not transmit the contract to the league president until June 3. Landis' ruling said that Washington's failure to comply with the 20-day rule was due to the request of the player that filing of the contract be withheld until after June 1.

Landis served notice that any club failing to comply with the 20-day rule, whether or not the player acquiesces or requests such a violation, will be prohibited from signing the player to a new contract either directly or through a subsidiary club.

Armstrong 5 to 7 Over Ambers Tonight

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 21.—The little guy who never loses a fight and the other little guy who never drops a return match tangle in Yankee Stadium tomorrow night for 15 rounds for the world lightweight championship, in what promises to be the cauliflower "natural" of the year.

One is Hammerin' Henry Armstrong, champion of the lightweights and the welterweights and abdicated emperor of the featherweights. The other is Lew Ambers, swing-singing socker from Herkimer, N. Y., who lost the title to the "Hammer" a year ago in one of the toughest and closest tussles around these parts since Tammany and Fusion went at it.

30,000 Due at Bout

Some 30,000 of the faithful probably will contribute to a gross gate of between $120,000 and $150,000 to see the party, which gets under way about 9 p. m. (E. S. T.).

At this writing, the tussle figures so close that Armstrong, a 1-to-3 favorite in their first meeting, is no better than 5 to 7 now. The odds may go up to 8 or 9 to 5 by the time the gong sounds, but the little Brown Bomber from Los Angeles will definitely not hold the lop-sided edge of a year ago.

Remembering the brittleness of Armstrong's hands in his fight only three months ago with Ernie Roderick in England, and taking some note of the fact the game little colored clouter had a hard week taking off 8 pounds to make the 135-pound limit, many like Ambers slightly to regain the title he won from Tony Canzoneri. This would lead to a third fight between the two for the welterweight laurels this fall, contracts for which have already been signed with the stipulation Lou must wind up on top tomorrow night.

The Big Question

The whole fight seems to revolve around Armstrong's condition. The fearful pace he set in every one of his outings in his skyrocketing rise to fistic heights, which saw him run up a string of 46 straight victories and become the first man in fistic history to hold three titles simultaneously, makes it a large question mark as to just how long he can keep it up. Many of the faithful feel he has passed his peak, that the "perpetual motion" mauling for which he is famous has taken too much out of him.

Then, too, although his handlers claim his hands are stronger than ever, there's no telling just what can happen to a mended bone when it bangs against the side of another man's skull.

Against this, Ambers offers one of the most puzzling types of ringcraft to solve, and has a heart as big as a balloon. He won't be outgamed, he's always on the move in the ring, and, where he was a cream puff puncher in the past, he has suddenly developed a short righthand shot which, his sparmates tell you, is nothing to fool around with. In addition, the Jitterbug Jolter is always better against an opponent the second time he takes him on.

Luke Hamlin Dazzles Foes; Gives 8 Hits

Defeat Puts Redbirds 4½ Games Back of Cincinnati; Sunkel Losing Pitcher

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Aug. 21.—The blazing St. Louis Cardinals were quenched, 7 to 1, today by the dauntless Dodgers, who ever can be counted upon for the unexpected.

BLADES

Working coolly beneath a broiling sun, Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin dazzled the St. Louis sluggers with his fast ball until after the Brooklyn scoring was completed and then coasted home. The defeat, third in 22 decisions for the Cards, put them 4½ games back of the Cincinnati Reds.

Hamlin gave eight hits, but only two of them in the first five innings and permitted no runs until three singles by Lyn Lary, Jim Brown and Enos Slaughter tallied the Redbirds' lone run in the eighth.

In the meantime the Dodgers worked out on young Tom Sunkel and lean Lonnie Warneke for 14 safeties, including Dolph Camilli's twentieth home run of the season.

They sprinted away to a run in the first on Tuck Stainback's double and Art Parks' single, added another in the second on doubles by Manager Leo Durocher and Pete Coscarart, and crushed the Cards under a three-run outbreak in the fifth.

In this inning Parks singled ahead of Camilli's homer. Then Ernie Koy doubled, Al Todd was given an intentional pass, both advanced on a double steal and Koy scored when Catcher Don Padgett threw into left field trying to break up the theft.

Sunkel was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the sixth and Warneke felt the Brooklyn wrath. The Dodgers loaded the bases on a walk and two singles in this inning and one run scored on Camilli's infield out. Then in the seventh singles by Todd and Hamlin and two infield outs brought the final Brooklyn run.

Atlantan Tops Johnny Doeg At Newport

By the Associated Press

Newport, R. I., Aug. 21.—Spurred by the realization that two of the four U. S. Davis Cup team positions are wide open, the Nation's forgotten men of tennis attempted to outdo each other today in the opening round of the twenty-third Newport Casino tennis tournament and wound up in practically a dead heat.

A marathon program that called for the posting of 61 first and second round results, plus 10 defaults, finished without indicating anything more important than the fact that the foreign entry here is pretty weak.

Five of the seven visitors were eliminated in speedy fashion, the exceptions being Jacques Brugnon, the veteran French war horse and his youthful protege, Bernard Destremeau. However, 11 of the 13 domestic seedings swung into action and escaped with only one casualty.

Doeg Is Defeated

Johnny Doeg, of Rumson, N. J., ranked sixth on the long list, drew a first-round bye and then faltered by 6—3, 8—6 when he engaged William Gillespie, of Atlanta, in the second round. All of the other domestic seeded players, with the exception of the third-ranking Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Oreg., who was detained by the national mixed doubles final at Brookline, Mass., survived their first tests.

The opening day's play included the erasures of the Philippine and Cuban Davis Cup teams and Charles Hare, of England. Hare, top-ranked foreigner, failed to pass his first test, a second-round match that went to Chauncey Depew Steele, jr., of New York, 6—2, 3—6, 6—4.

Felicisimo Ampon and Amada Sanchez, Filipinos, who were seeded fourth and fifth, also came to grief in their first matches, as did Guido Connil and Ricardo Morales, the Cubans.

McNeill Sets Pace

Sanchez was eliminated by Gardone Giles, of Salt Lake City, 6—1, 6—2, in the opening round, and Ampon, after drawing a bye, dropped a three-setter to Jack Bushman, of Miami, 8—6, 6—4, 6—3. Gus Ganzemuller, of New York, defeated Connil, 6—3, 8—6, before yielding to Bill Murphy, of Chicago, 6—4, 6—1, in the second round, and Morales lost an extra set sixrounder to James Mahoney, of New York, 5—7, 6—3, 6—2.

Top-seeded Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, set the pace for the homebred favorites by dropping only one game to Howard York, of Philadelphia, and he was accompanied into the third round by Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta; Wayne Sabin, of Portland, Oreg.; Gil Hunt, of Washington, who advanced on a bye and a default; Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla.; Frank Guernsey, of Orlando, Fla., the intercollegiate champion Bob Kamrath, of Austin, Tex.; Hal Surface, of Kansas City; Sutter, of New Orleans, and Henry Prusoff, of Seattle, Wash.

Players of Favorites Have Field Day at Saratoga Track

Jay Jay Wins Feature Race At 4-5 Price

Maetall Is Beaten By a Head; Throttle Wide Takes Down Spoils for Show

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Short-priced favorites had a field day on a heavy, holding track here this muggy afternoon. When Howard Bruce's Jay Jay accounted for the featured Catskill Handicap, it marked the third success for odds-on choices and the fifth in as many events for favorites. Dewitt Page's Maetall, making his first start this year, was beaten a head while holding three lengths margin over B. F. Whitaker's Throttle Wide for second position.

Opera Hat was fourth and Early Delivery last in the field of five. Jay Jay, second to Nedayr in the American Legion Handicap on opening day, closed at 4 to 5. He finished the 6 furlongs in the excellent time of 1:12 1-5 to earn $2,675 in purse money.

Exactly one-third of the original entrants for today's program scratched. Sixty-six were named overnight and 22 were withdrawn. After the recent long dry spell, it seems that Jupe Pluvius decided to get even, for he sent another deluge overnight to add to the rainy siege of the past few days.

Jay Jay ran a good, game race after breaking on the wrong foot. His chances appeared pretty slim for a half mile. During that time the Baltimore-owned 6-year-old had only the sluggish Opera Hat headed. Throttle Wide broke very fast but quickly gave way to the speedy Maetall. The latter looked a winner turning for home, having disposed of Throttle Wide and Early Delivery. Then Jay Jay thrilled his army of backers by gaining ground with every stride. He gradually drew up to the leader and stuck his head in front just before they reached the finish line.

STRANGE TIMES was forwardly placed the entire way and held on with good energy to close. WISE COUNSEL, dwelt slightly when the start came and was away fast and prominently placed for the first half mile, but weakened steadily under pressure. PANDONNA, prominent from the outset, fought it out determinedly with SUZANNE PECK for command, disposed of her and, meeting bold opposition from RISSA through the stretch, held her safe to the end. RISSA, outpaced early, went into contention in a rush and, looming up menacingly midway of the stretch, was unable to reach the leader although continuing strongly. LISTARO moved up gamely on the outside when straightening out on the backstretch and held on well to the close. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADY SOLACE, $7.00, $3.30, $2.70; CHING LING, $3.10, $2.70; GREEDAN, $4.00.

LADY SOLACE, slightly reserved while in near attendance of the pace during the first 3 furlongs, moved up readily when called upon, disposed of CHING LING for the lead after a brief brush and drew out. CHING LING had speed from the outset, opened up a comfortable lead in the run through the backstretch and, while making a game bid to so along with the leader when challenged, was not good enough. GREEDAN, a trailer leaving the backstretch, came willingly in the stretch run, getting up in the concluding stride to wear down MY CREST.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 5:16. Off at 5:17. Winner, L. E. Ogle's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DAYTONIAN, $10.20, $6.50, $3.80; BALAPIN, $6.10, $3.80; LITTLE BANNER, $3.00.

DAYTONIAN outrun his field to the first turn, opened up a good lead and, rated along in front, was never seriously threatened. BALAPIN, in closest chase of the winner throughout, continued with good courage to the close. LITTLE BANNER, as usual a trailer early, closed willingly although unable to reach the first two.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:49. Off at 5:52½. Winner, W. Z. Boeing's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DINAH DESMOND, $12.60, $7.50, $5.10; PEACHYPIE, $8.70, $5.20; WEST ACRE, $9.80.

DINAH DESMOND moved up on the outside in the run through the backstretch, took command nearing the stretch, bore out badly, but straightened out again, went to the front and, despite bearing out badly, was drawing out at the end. PEACHYPIE went to the front straightening out on the backstretch, was rated along under slight restraint and continued with good energy to the close.

ChapmanUrges 'Slum' Cleanup Along River

Assistant Secretary Of Interior Asks $3,000,000 for Work

By Ken Harter.

Oscar L. Chapman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, yesterday urged the expenditure of $3,000,000 to help clean up the "slums" along the waterfront of the Potomac and make the river the finest on the Atlantic seaboard for scenic and sports attraction.

Speaking before committeemen and guests at the 1939 President's Cup Regatta luncheon at the Hotel Harrington, Chapman termed the existing waterfront conditions in the District a "civic disgrace." He said:

"I regret that the dates for Congressional sessions and the President's Cup Regatta do not coincide, because members of Congress should certainly see this water classic to learn what civic minded Washingtonians are doing on their own to improve waterfront conditions. Washington is one of the most beautiful cities in the world and yet the waterfront is a civic disgrace. The District of Columbia should have more money to straighten out this situation."

President John Remon announced that a new "mystery boat" is being built in the 225-cubic-inch-displacement class. Although he could not divulge the name of the builder, it was learned that the specifications are similar to the Voodoo owned by Chauncey J. Hamlin, jr., of Buffalo.

Hamlin's boat is built on two pontoons with a narrow hull.

Andy Duffy, chairman of the regatta starter's committee, who returned yesterday from the Red Bank regatta, said, the Voodoo is one of the fastest boats in the "225" class. It is slow on the turns but it certainly has plenty of speed on the straightaway."

Sam Crooks, of Rumson, N. J.

In the 135-cubic inch displacement class eight entries have already been received. John L. Hyde, jr., who set a world record of 52.173 m. p. h. at Red Bank, N. J., Sunday and Andy Crawford will represent the District in this class.

Other entries received to date are:

Melvin Crook, Montclair, N. J.; Frederick H. Hahn 3d, of Philadelphia; Byron F. Russell, North Long Branch, N. J.; S. Mortimer Auerbach, of Atlantic City; J. W. Hampton, Somers Point, N. J., and Sam Crooks, of Rumson, N. J.

Carr and Boswell Upsets Maritime, 3-0, in Softball Series

Several HundredFans Watch Opening of D. C. Championships; Temple Jarrell Star

Behind Temple Jarrell's three-hit pitching Carr and Boswell, champions of the Prince Georges League, yesterday blanked Maritime Commission, 3-0, to score the first upset of the District softball championships at Eastern Stadium. Two of the winners' runs were unearned as the result of an error by First Baseman Chambers, of the Metro Day League titleholders.

In the other half of the opening double-header, which was witnessed by several hundred fans, Plaza Wine and Liquor, representing the Sunday Morning circuit came through as expected to nose out Carley's Tavern, of the Regal League, 2-1.

Jerry Zanelotti, Plaza's star shortstop, scored the winning run in the fourth. After bunting safely he stole second as the baseman dropped the ball, reached third on an outfield fly and crossed the plate on a passed ball.

An Early Clincher

Carr and Boswell clinched its argument with the favored Maritime ten as early as the second inning. B. Frey bounced a single off the glove of Pitcher Harold Steffes, and then Arnold beat out a slow roller to third. With men on first and second, McLaren's grounder to Chambers and the Maritime Commission threw wildly to home plate and both Frey and Arnold scored.

The third Carr and Boswell run came in the third. B. Frey singled and moved to second on L. Frey's infield out. A wild pitch by Steffes allowed him to reach third from where he tallied on a single by McLaren.

In addition to scoring the winning run for Plaza Wine & Liquor, Zanzallotti, who last year set an individual scoring record for The Post-A.A.U. basketball tournament, played a sparkling game afield. In the second inning he stemmed a promising Carley rally by converting a hard-hit ball into a double play.

Twin Bill Today

There will be another double-header this afternoon in this series to determine the District's representative in the National Softball Champions at Chicago. In the feature Tru-Blu, champion of the Metro Night League and favorite of many to win the local title, will meet Jimmy's Grill, titleholder of the Sherwood Playground League. Abe Rosenfield, Tru-Blu's bespectacled right-hander, who has thrown several no-hitters this season, will take the mound against Paul Grace, Jimmy's up and coming young flinger.

In the other game, which will start simultaneously at 5 o'clock, Taft-Burroughs, of the Taft-Burroughs League, will play Patent Office, winner of the Government League.

District Players Fare Badly In Lancaster Invitation Golf

John Moyer, Shamokin Pro, Gets No Help From Partner, but Wins With 67

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Lancaster, Penn., Aug. 21.—Ten pro-amateur duos from Washington earned far less than their share of the prize money here today in Arthur Thorn's invitation pro-am play over the Lancaster C. C. course as John Moyer, a little known pro from Shamokin, Pa., carried off top honors in the annual event.

Moyer played the course in 67 strokes, five under par, to tie the Baltimore team of Woodholme's pro, Carroll McMasters, and Rodgers Forge amateur, Otto Gringer, with 67. Moyer received no help from his partner, W. Fetterhoff, of the same club, while McMasters and Griner played fine partners for their 67 total. Griner had 71 and McMasters 74.

Moyer's 67 won the pro sweepstakes by three shots over the Winchester, Va., smooth-stroking mentor, Rut Coffey, who duplicated his last year's score with 36-34, 70, for second money in the sweepstakes.

Al Tredor, Manor Club pro, and Leo Walper, driving range owner, tied with Matt Kowal, Leo Deigel's assistant from Philadelphia, for third money. In the pro sweeps, Treder was out in 37 and back in 34 for the 71, while Walper paired Hines of 36 and 35.

Four teams tied for second prize in the professional-amateur play with 68s each, including Coffey and Paul Bennett, Martinsburg; Clarence Doser, Merion pro, and T. S. Panaccin; C. Arena and H. May, of Pensasken, N. J., and James and John Deangelo, of Baldewood Club, Philadelphia.

Seven teams tied at 69 in the professional-amateur play, including George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood pro, and Bobby Brownell, Manor amateur; Walper and Robert Peacock, Indian Spring; two Baltimore teams, Andy Gibson and Edgar Lucas, and Johnny Bass and Spencer Overton, in addition to Harlan Wills, former Woodmont assistant pro, and his amateur partner, C. C. Schrader, also of the nearby Media Country Club. Sixty-six professional-amateur teams competed, but the nationally known stars that usually play, including Henry Picard, Byron Nelson, Felix Serafin and others, were not on the scene.

Walper was the biggest money winner of the District contingent, with his fifth-place tie in the professional-amateur and third-place tie in the pro-sweeps. Treder and Diffenbaugh were the other money winners from the District. Lewis Worshaw, Burning Tree pro, three-putted the eighteenth green to lose a chance to tie in the sweepstakes, while Al Houghton, after playing 11 holes in 1 under par, took an 8 on the twelfth and finally turned in no card.

George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood, and Bobby Brownell, Manor, 36, 33—69.

Lewis Worsham, Burning Tree, and Maury Fitzgerald, Kenwood, 37, 34—71.

Al Jamison and Ralph Bogart, Indian Spring, 36, 36—72.

Al Houghton, unattached, and W. R. McIlvaine, Indian Spring, no card.

Al Treder and H. L. Lacey, Manor, 36, 34—70.

Larry French Bests Lohrman, Cubs Win, 4-3

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 21.—Lefty Larry French bested Bill Lohrman in a hurling duel today to give the Chicago Cubs a 4-3 victory over the New York Giants in the first game of the Bruins' final eastward swing.

His cause imperiled by four Chicago errors, French scattered sever hits effectively and singled with the bases loaded in the fourth for two parts of a three-run rally.

Jim Robinson Drops Verdict To Gallagher

Gallagher Durable, But Not Impressive, In Comeback Bout

him the six-round semifinal bout on the Galento-Nova fight next month in Philadelphia. And it does warrant him a fight with Nathan Mann next month in the Stadium, according to Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn. The results can be nothing less than disastrous, according to Marty's exhibition against Robinson.

Ahearn and Promoter Joe Turner realized $2,037 on the card.

In a raging fight that for sheer action resembled a Hollywood version of a championship match, Maynard Daniels, 192, young Marine Reserve puncher, floored rampaging Jim Wilson, 208, of Harrisburg, Pa., five times in as many rounds before finally knocking him out with a whistling left to the jaw in 45 seconds of the fifth and next to last round of their semifinal fight.

Wilson led off in the first with a fearful left hook into Daniels' solar plexus that resounded like a pistol shot over the stadium and left Maynard a badly shaken young man. In the next round it was unmerciful punching by both boys with caution thrown to the winds. Daniels was taking the worst of it and running away, until in the third he landed a lucky right and sent Wilson down for a count of nine.

Down Again

Swinging and stumbling, Daniels came out in the fourth and sent Wilson down for a nine count again. Wilson came back only to take another smashing right to the jaw that sent him down for another nine. Floored again for no count in the round, he was saved by the bell. Then in the fifth Daniels finished him. He had knocked him down in the first, but Wilson appeared like a Northwestern lumberjack gone berserk and almost had Daniels before he managed to find his mark.

Displaying rare flashes of the old-time punching ability which won him acclaim in the fight business early in the decade, Joe Lipps, 178, Ty Ty, Ga., began his heavyweight comeback by dropping a hard-fought six-round decision to Howard Landgraffe, 192, of Baltimore.

Lipps had Landgraffe on the verge of a knockout in the fourth and gave Howard a bad time in the late rounds. The judge's decision, which surprisingly enough, was unanimous, and Lake's announcement of same virtually dripped with sarcasm. Several ringside observers thought it should have been called a draw.

The night's opener was a suspicious looking affair in which Al Hart, Washington Barracks colored heavyweight, knocked out a badly outclassed Gene Johnson, dusky Philadelphian, in 1 minute 10 seconds of the second round of their ssix-round fight. Johnson, at 190, looked like a featherweight beside the 224-pound Hart. The Philadelphian was down on one knee as Referee Charley Reynolds counted him out. A dynamite-laden right sent Johnson down and out.

In a special eight-round match that followed the main bout, Pablo Danno, 123½, Los Angeles Filipino, upset the favored Al Mancini, 124, of New York, by outslugging him and taking a unanimous decision. Mancini knocked Danno to the canvas for no count midway in the battle, but the rugged Filipino chased Mancini all over the ring with stinging, two-hand punching.

2,000 Compete In Playground Track Events

More than 2,000 boys of all ages, sizes and cretds will be governed by the same will to win this morning in the sixteenth annual city-wide playground track and field meet at Central Stadium. The meet is scheduled from 10 until 3 p. m.

One of the feature events is expected to be the unlimited half-mile run in which a strong field will try to shatter Ben McCullough's 11-year-old record of 2:06.

Johnson-Powell, surprise winner of last year's meet, will be on hand to defend its title. Strong opposition is expected to come from Rosedale and Sherwood who were upset by Phil Fox's boys in 1938.

Brewers, Pepco Are Winners In Play-Off

Railroad Retirement, Fort Myer Beaten In Title Series

In a double-header fraught with tainted runs, Heurich Brewers eliminated Railroad Retirement Board, 16-5, and Pepco handed Fort Myer its first defeat, 8-3, yesterday as the city series is to pick the District's sandlot representative in the National Federation of Amateur Baseball tourney here next month went into the final week of play on Ellipse diamonds.

The losers' humiliation was magnified by the fact that they handed the winning nines a large portion of their runs free of charge. Railroad's second defeat—the first loss was to Fort Myer—puts them out of the running for the city championship.

Heurich's scoring spree against Railroad was virtually ignored by the 1,500 fans, who chose instead to watch the four-hit performance of Pepco's lanky righthander, Bill Helmer.

Six Runs in Fifth

While Heurich turned on a four-run attack in the fourth against Railroad and followed it up with a six-run barrage in the fifth, Pepco scattered its runs and scored in all but the second and fourth innings.

Helmer's pitching performance stole the show for the day and was the only redeeming feature of play by either of the four teams—with the exception of the hitting display of the victors. He allowed Fort Myer two hits in the first six innings and two in the seventh. Weak singles were all the Fort Myer batters could account for, however.

Ed Fitzpatrick, safe at first after beating out a bunt, and Cleo Chumbris, safe on a hard-hit grounder fumbled by Third Baseman Brown, started off Pepco's scoring in the first inning when Jim Scott singled to rightfield and Henderson let the ball go through his legs. Centerfielder Burdzell came in fast, and took the ball and shut off another run by throwing out Joe Tonker, who had walked, at the plate.

Passed Balls Count

At least two other Pepco runs were not beyond question. In the fifth inning, Jot Keegin was walked, stole second, and went to third on a passed ball that gave Tonker a free trip to first also. Another passed ball that occurred on ball four for Scott sent Keegin and Tonker home, Scott going to second on the play when Catcher Vargo's throw to second was dropped by Shortstop Kissinger.

Heurich will play Fort Myer today at 4:30 p. m. on the East Ellipse and the winner will met Pepco tomorrow. Play for the titit will be held Saturday in Griffith Stadium.

WALTER JOHNSON

broadcast the play-by-play description of the

WASHINGTON-CLEVELAND

Game Today

WJSV—3:00 P. M.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 21.—They laughed when mild Will McKechnie looked at the Reds 12½ game lead, a few weeks ago, and said sadly that he was in dire need of another pitcher. Mild Will, they said, was trying to be funny. He had a team which was henpecking the National League more than the Yanks were bulldozing the Americans. He needed another pitcher, they said, about as much as Mr. Ford needed another hub cap.

CONSIDINE

Over the past week-end the wisdom of Will's words became apparent. His team's lead knocked down to 4½ games by the rampaging Cardinals, his two best pitchers ineffective in the clutch, and his second string pitcher belted around unmercifully, Will might have said, "I told you so," to the forbiddingly silent Cincinnati fans, if he didn't have to run to make the train that was to carry him and his reflecting athletes on an Eastern invasion.

In dissecting the now alarmingly diminished lead of the Reds we find that they've won only 40 and lost 35 games in their clashes with the Cards, Cubs, Giants, Brooklyn and Pittsburgh. They amassed their lead by winning 29 out of 34 games against the Bees and Phillies. In addition, Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer won 35 of the first 66 games the Reds won this year. The record of the remainder of the staff was 31 victories and 24 defeats.

Just a .500 Club Without Walters, Derringer

Mild Will, knowing these things that fans and writers generally overlooked, saw that if anything should happen to Walters or Derringer he would have little more than a .500 ball club on his hands. The thing apparently has happened, whether temporary or permanent and, of course, no one is going to give them a good pitcher.

The principal hope of the Reds now is to continue mopping up on their convenient stumblebums, the Bees and Phillies, and continue playing .500 ball against the tougher clubs. It will be good enough to give them their pennant, if they can get a little co-operation from the Eastern clubs when the Cardinals stalk into the several lairs along the Atlantic. The sinister note in all this, for the Reds, is that the Cards are ahead of every Eastern team they've met this year, while the Giants have knocked off the Reds nine out of 15 times.

There was something whimsically typical about the latest adventure of Buck Newsom. The gaunt Ring Lardnerish baseball oddity, who won 20 games for the beleaguered Browns last year, and sold himself to the Tigers this year by beating them until they had headaches, made a dramatic return to St. Louis last Sunday. Some of his friends got together and gave him a Newsom Day and, with a roll of drums, Buck came out to pitch against his old team-mates.

Former Teammates Show Buck No Mercy

The teammates promptly smacked him down. His old friend, Moose Solters, hit him for a double, his close pal, George McQuinn, socked a triple off him, and his former room-mate, Harlan Clift, hit one far up into the bleachers.

No one thought to ask Newsom to explain the defeat that came to him in his hour of triumph. It would have made a good story, for not since Jack Keefe has there been a more inventive mind in baseball. Buck has a sober faced story behind every victory and an anecdote behind every defeat, and all are interesting—including the one in which he attributed a victory, one sizzling day, to the fact that he concealed a handful of large leaves in his hat. They kept him cool, he said.

Buck will carry his newest trophy back to Hartsville, S. C., and put it in his room. It is a curious room, designed by the players. On the walls he has hung cartoons, pictures and clippings. He has them. The cups he has won as the most valuable player of the Sally and Pacific Coast leagues. But the floor is his pride and joy. He pitched out the rug Mrs. Newsom had put there and painted, in nice bright green, red and brown, a baseball playing field on the floor boards.

Flash! Photographer Shoots A Perfect Score at Vandalia

By the Associated Press

Vandalia, Ohio, Aug. 21.—Walter A. Peterson, 55-year-old Lynn, Mass., garage owner, piano tuner and photographer, added the title of trapshooting's champion of champions to his list of achievements today with a perfect score of 100 out of 100.

In climbing to the highest of clay target heights at the Grand American meet, Peterson shot down a field consisting of the champions of all the States and Canadian provinces, eight of whom clicked into a second-place tie at 99.

Peterson, winner of the Massachusetts title this year with 198 out of 200 summed up his victory with:

"Well, I'm surprised. I never expected to beat shooters like Joe and Ned." He referred to Joe Hiestand, the Ohio champion, and Ned Lilly, Michigan king, regarded as the two hottest marksmen in the land.

Victor A. Reinders, of Waukesha, Wis., broke 75 out of 75 in the shoot-off for second place in the champion of champions race, nosing out H. L. Cheek, of Clinton, Ind., son of Ben F. Cheek, who won the Grand American Handicap in 1936.

The others who tied at 99 out of 100 finished the shoot-off in this order:

Guy Cheisman, Spokane, Wash.; E. B. Chamberlain, Martville, N. Y.;

Steelmaking Up 40 Per Cent From 1939 Low

General Business Has Increased Steadily For Past 3 Months

Cleveland, Aug. 21—Business has followed the recovery road for three months, the magazine Steel says today. During the past 90 days a number of indexes have turned upward, some of them sharply when allowance is made for the seasonal factor.

Improvement has been insufficient in duration or extent to indicate conclusively the start of what may be considered a boom. Nevertheless, so far as steel in particular and the metalworking industry in general are concerned, ample evidence is available to suggest a maintenance of further improvement in current activity during the remainder of the year. Beyond 1939, however, a question mark looms large.

Contra-seasonal Gain

Steelmaking has increased about 40 per cent from the 1939 low attained the middle of May. To what extent the upturn has been contrary to the seasonal trend is difficult to determine for the reason that the trend line of pre-depression years no longer prevails. In the six years 1924-1929 steel ingot production from May to July showed an average decrease of a little over 10 per cent. August marked an upward turn to stand only 5 per cent below May output, but not even October, peak month of the second half, recorded an average rate equal to that of May.

Weekly average production this month apparently will be about 28 per cent ahead of that of May, the month in which the downward trend was reversed. Last year the low wah reversed. Last year the low month was June and September showed an average rate 62.5 per cent higher. The other year in which usually sharp recovery occurred in the second half was 1935, when July marked the bottom. Improvement the ensuing three months amounted to 33.5 per cent.

Lumber Shipments 74 Per Cent of 1929

The lumber industry during the week ended August 12 stood at 66 per cent of the seasonal weekly average of production in 1929; 74 per cent of the seasonal weekly average of shipments in 1929; and 84 per cent of the seasonal weekly new business in 1929, according to reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association from regional associations covering the operations of important softwood and hardwood mills.

Reported new orders in the week ended August 12, 1939, were 36 per cent in excess of the seasonal weekly average of 1938 orders. Reported production was 17 per cent above the seasonal weekly average of 1938 production, and shipments were 22 per cent in excess of 1938 seasonal weekly shipments.

Air Express Shipments 28% Above Year Ago

New York, Aug. 21—Air express shipments on a nation-wide scale for June totaled 71,527, an increase of 28 per cent over June, 1938, Railway Express Agency reported today. Gross revenue for June was up 34 per cent.

Shipments for the first six months of the year totaled 392,679, an increase of 23 per cent over the corresponding period of 1938. Gross revenue for the half-year was up 29 per cent, the report said.

War Drums Echo In World's Markets

By the Associated Press

European war tension mounted yesterday as continental capitals saw German demands for Danzig and other Polish territory speeding toward an open showdown.

Stocks and bonds dropped on the New York Stock Exchange. Declines accompanied slipping values in London, Paris and Amsterdam securities markets.

Wheat, vital foodstuff, rose nearly 2 cents a bushel at Chicago to the highest in six weeks, the jump accompanying advances at Winnipeg, Liverpool and Rotterdam.

Copper and rubber, "war staples," were higher in London where heavy recent German purchases of both commodities have created empire criticism.

Imported Silver Jumps 1⅛ Cents To 37 Cents Per Oz.

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—The domestic price for imported silver shot up 1⅛ cents today to 37 cents an ounce in the sharpest gain since the Congressional squabble over Government silver-buying policy in late June. The new price represents a premium of a full 2 cents over the Government base.

Local bullion dealers boosted the quotation in line with another rise in the London market, where it was raised the equivalent of nearly a cent to 37 cents. Scarcity of silver in London was said to be the main factor for the recent rising price curve for the white metal.

Normally, silver men explained, London carries on hand several million ounces to meet unexpected demands. These stocks were cleared out, however, just before the U. S. Treasury cut its buying price to 35 cents an ounce.

Consequently when demand broadened the price was forced up. Poland was believed to be a large purchaser, due to hoarding of silver coins in Danzig.

Retail Advertising Ahead of Last Year

Chicago, Aug. 21—Although the volume of newspaper display advertising placed by retailers during the week ended August 12 was only one-fifth of 1 per cent ahead of the corresponding week of 1938, previous gains have been large enough to hold the cumulative increase for the year at 1.7 per cent, Advertising Age reported today.

Basing its figures on reports covering all newspapers in 78 major cities, the publication declared that during the week ended August 12 retail newspaper advertising volume totaled 14,696,814 lines compered with 14,689,327 lines during the same period of last year.

Wheat Climbs 1 to 3 Cents in War Market

Heavy Buying Marks Trading at Chicago And Winnipeg

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 21.—World wheat markets had an attack of "war jitters" today as prices bounded up 1 to 3 cents a bushel, the sharpest advance in months.

Heavy buying occurred in North American markets, particularly at Chicago and Winnipeg. Chicago quotations closed at the session's best level, 1⅛-2¼ cents higher than Saturday. September wheat closed at 68⅛-68¼, December at 67⅞-68, highest prices paid here in six weeks. Gains at Winnipeg amounted to 2⅛-3⅜ cents. Liverpool closed ¾-1 cent higher and Rotterdam 1-1½ higher.

Some of the strength in North American markets was associated with evidence of greatly expanded foreign demand for wheat coupled with reports of the first sales under the new United States subsidy program. Sales of Canadian wheat to the United Kingdom were estimated at 3,000,000 bushels, largest in some time. Export circles in the East reported sale of 500,000 bushels had been authorized by the subsidy agency at a subsidy figuring around 35 cents a bushel, but this could not be confirmed. The Government did announce, however, that the program had started. About 60,000 to 70,000 bushels of old wheat also were sold.

Other grains followed the wheat trend, corn closing ⅞-1¼ higher; September, 44⅜-44½; December, 43¾; oats, ⅛-½ higher; rye, ⅝-¾ higher; lard, 10-15 higher.

Cotton Futures 5 to 25 Cents A Bale Lower

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—Cotton futures, sensitive to disquieting foreign news dropped 1 to 5 points today. Support was limited most of the day although a little late buying carried the list out of extreme low territory. Foreign selling came mostly from Bombay following a decline in the Indian market which widened price differences with New York.

Hedge pressure reflected better weather throughout the southern cotton belt and consequent heavier movement of lint to market. Cessation of recent heavy rains in Alabama was considered encouraging.

Cottonseed Oil

Cottonseed oil futures joined the list of commodities which advanced today in response to foreign news. Closing levels were up 11 to 14 points. Sales totaled 132 contracts: September 5.55, October 5.66, December 5.79, January 5.86, March 5.98. Crude oil sold in the Southeast and Valley at 4¼ cents; Texas was 4¼@4⅜ nominal.

The Market

A Special Correspondent.

Specter of Hitler Dominates Market, Overcomes Favorable Domestic News; Most Bonds Give Ground With Stocks

New York, Aug. 21.—Der Fuehrer raised der fury in the stock market today and took 1 to 3 points off the values of leading security issues. In sharp contrast with the tone of affairs in the market place was the state of domestic business, which continued to rise. Steel operations started this week at their high for the year while United States Steel sold within an eighth point of its low for the year. Just in passing, this might be considered with reference to the frequently heard assertion that Wall street, international bankers and big industrialists would welcome a war, because of profits which it is supposed they would make. The fact that they would not, and that their business would be immeasurably damaged by the outbreak of hostilities, is why securities drop so sharply every time another crisis appears on the European horizon.

Sixty-five New Lows

If all we had to consider was our own situation, and the earning power of our corporations, the story of today's market would be entirely different. As it was, the list dropped an average of ¾ point. Sixty-five issues were carried to new lows for the year. Trading was not unduly large, amounting to 848,830 shares. All groups of stocks participated in the decline, including the aviations, which presumably would be in a better position to earn money in the event of a war. Wheat was higher, which also was a reflection of the war scare, but gains were moderate. United States Government bonds had their sharpest decline in some months, declines in some of the active issues exceeding a half point.

The heaviest selling came in the morning hours and was based on the week-end accumulation of European news. Foreign markets appeared to have been more alarmed than the American, the situation differing in this respct from the previous periods of tension. The British war loan 3½s sagged to a record low, which meant below the figure touched just before the Munich agreement. Foreign currencies were under pressure, particularly the pound. Paris and Amsterdam reflected heavy selling.

Commodities Rise

At the same time there was a mark-up in prices of war commodities abroad, with activity notable in base metals. Copper and lead were in demand and dispatches from London indicated this caused press criticism because heavy German purchases of these staples are being filled in England, from dwindling supplies.

Wall Street looked at the situation abroad with more calm at the close of the day than it had at the opening. The calling of a peace conference of seven small powers, to meet not later than Wednesday, was a peg on which to hang the revived optimism and several students of the market and world affairs came forward with reasertions that there will be no major war and that security holders are becoming too nervous.

Whereas the trade treaty between Germany and Russia was seen as strengthening the position of the Nazi, at the same time it puts Germany in a position where she would not care to lose this new access to raw materials by risking a war. Tied in with the trade agreement there may well be an understanding that Russia will keep its hands off in the Danzig and Corridor dispute.

All Groups Weaken

No group of stocks was spared in today's selling. Douglas was off 2½ in the weak aviation section. Steel lost 1¼ and Bethlehem 2⅜. Loft, the most active stock, dropped nearly 2 points.

The major statistical news of the day was the operating rate for the steel industry for this week, which was put at 62.2 per cent of capacity, up 0.1 point, and compared with 42.8 per cent a year ago. The outlook for the industry is favorable, as the full effect of purchases by the automobile manufacturers for their 1940 models has not yet been felt.

The bulge in wheat was a direct reflection of war orders and war jitters. Grain markets throughout the world were higher. First sales of United States wheat under the new subsidy program were authorized. The Chicago market closed up 1⅛ to 2¼ cents a bushel. Cotton was lower on increased volume, closing down 1 to 7 points.

Listed bonds tumbled today as the news from Europe assumed an ever more ominous aspect. United States Treasury bonds showed losses ranging to more than a point, and foreign dollar issues dropped 1 to 5 points. Corporate bonds took the same course, whether in the investment or the speculative category. Domestic affairs were hardly considered, as the overwhelming possibility of war dominated the market completely. Trading was only $4,800,000.

Formal dealings in United States Government bonds brought losses from 2-32 point to 1 1-32 points, but the extreme loss was in an inactive issue. Counter trading showed losses, at a late hour, to 26-32 point, with the long-term issues more affected than intermediate and short-dated bonds. Guaranteed issues of the farm and home corporations were idle and lower. Sizable factions were stripped from quotations for best rated utility, railroad and industrial bonds.

European Issues Weakest

Investment issues of American origin naturally were affected by the foreign news far less than comparable issues of European origin. French 7½s fell 4 points, while Belgian and Scandinavian obligations were almost equally weak. The British Empire issues of Canada and Australia lost ground. Italian and Polish bonds fell 2 to 5 points, while German issues sold fractionally lower. Latin-American obligations joined the downward parade, but on a modest basis.

Medium priced railroad liens drifted lower by 1 to 3 points on the small wave of liquidation, which met no buying power of any consequence. Borderline and default rails also drifted lower. Local traction bonds lost a good part of the gains made late last week. Holding company and share privilege bonds receded in line with the general trend, and other special groups also were soft.

New du Pont Pfd. to Retire $6 Debentures

Directors Vote Third Quarter Dividend of $1.25 on the Common

By the Associated Press

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 21.—Directors of E. I. Dupont de Nemours & Co., voted today to call a special meeting of stockholders to act upon an amendment to the certificate of incorporation by which the $4.50 cumulative preferred stock would be increased to 3,000,000 shares from 500,000 and debenture stock would be retired by exchanging it for preferred.

The special meeting is set for September 29. Holders of the stock concerned will be asked to approve an increase in the redemption price of the $4.50 cumulative preferred to $120 a share, plus accumulated dividends to the date of redemption, from $115 a share.

A substantial reduction will be effected in total dividends payable upon the company's senior securities if the proposal is accepted, since the debenture stock is entitled to cumulative dividends of $6 a share annually, in contrast to the $4.50 of the preferred. The ratio of exchange, somewhere between 1 and 1¼ shares of preferred for each debenture share, will be determined later.

Dividends

Directors declared an interim dividend for the third quarter of $1.25 a common share, the same as was paid in each of the two preceding quarters. It is payable September 14 to holders of record August 28.

They also declared a dividend of $1.12½ a share on the $4.50 cumulative no par preferred and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the debenture stock, both payable October 25 to holders of record October 10.

ICC Proposal Halves Erie's Fixed Charges

By the Associated Press

An Interstate Commerce Commission examiner submitted a proposed reorganization plan for the Erie Railroad today, drastically reducing the company's present capitalization and debt of $508,533,630. These would be lowered to $251,358,602, but an additional 2,554,736 shares of no par value common stock would be issued.

Holders of $214,868,100 of existing preferred and common stock would receive 429,736 shares of the new no par stock, while 2,000,000 shares would be issued to holders of outstanding securities. The remaining 125,000 shares would be allocated for unsecured claims and lease liabilities.

In addition, security holders would receive an additional $88,425,147 worth of preferred stock.

The plan, proposed by Examiner Milo Hi Brinkley, also would provide for obtaining $18,000,000 in new money either from the RFC or private channels. ICC officials said the plan, oral arguments on which will be heard November 15, would reduce the Erie's annual fixed charges from approximately $14,000,000 to $7,000,000.

Crop Insurance Corp. Pays Wheat Indemnities

By the Associated Press

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation reported yesterday that it had distributed 2,670,236 bushels of wheat to reimburse more than 11,000 growers for damage to this year's wheat crop. The value of the indemnities, covering disbursements up to August 12, was $1,424,616.

Leroy K. Smith, manager of the corporation, said settlement of losses was nearly completed in the winter wheat belt and in the spring wheat belt was well under way.

The corporation wrote more than 170,000 "all-risk" policies insuring growers up to either 50 or 75 per cent of their average yield. Growers paid premiums representing 7,243,000 bushels.

Steel Operations Rise to 62.2 Per Cent

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—Operations in the steel industry for the current week will advance one-tenth of a point to 62.2 per cent of capacity, highest since Nov. 14, 1938, The American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today. This compared with 62.1 per cent in the preceding week.

A month ago operations were at the rate of 60.6 per cent of capacity, while a year ago they were 42.8 per cent.

Foreign Markets

London, Aug. 21 (AP).—Stock market prices dropped sharply today under impact of heightened fears for the peace of Europe. British 3½ per cent World War loan, leader of top-flight bonds, tumbled to a new 1939 low with a decline of 1⅛ points. Transatlantics sold below parity levels. Coppers declined with the rest of the list despite firm prices for the raw metal. Rubbers were neglected. Kaffirs and oils weakened and the industrial group was marked lower over a broad front. Foreign bonds were unsettled.

Paris, Aug. 21 (AP).—Bourse quotations weakened today largely under influence of lower London and Amsterdam prices. The market was apparently taking the stress of war talk in its stride. Rentes closed 15 to 65 centimes lower, but most industrial stocks displayed some resistance to what little selling appeared. Foreign issues fell back.

Liverpool, Aug. 21 (AP).—General buying against a backdrop of a renewed war menace carried wheat futures 5⅛ to ⅝ penny higher today. Cotton ended 1 point higher to 1 down following early firmness. Hedging and local liquidation caused the reaction.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

The score sheet and the experts say you can't be too much of either. As it is put by a Kansas City champion: "It is a well recognized fact that the so-called perfect bridge player is not a winning player. You've got to vary your game and from time to time make bids which are slightly unorthodox and not precisely in accord with your own system.

The shining unorthodox bid which when cleverly placed determines the success of the hand, is well illustrated in this deal, taken from the Waddington Par contests, which the British players hope will improve their play.

Here are the cards and the bidding up to the crucial point. What decision would you make? Both sides are vulnerable and North is dealer:

	♠ J 9 5 2 ♡ 9 6 ◇ J 10 9 7 5 ♣ 8 4
♠ K Q 7 4 ♡ A 7 2 ◇ 6 4 3 ♣ J 7 5	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ A 6 ♡ 8 5 4 ◇ K 2 ♣ A K Q 10 6 3
	♠ 10 8 3 ♡ K Q J 10 3 ◇ A Q 8 ♣ 9 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♣	1 ♡	1 ♠
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	?

Par in the Waddington contest is a bid three hearts by West, which East promptly carries to three no trump. It is explained this way: The critical bid is West's three hearts; this is well judged, for it should convey to East that this suit is looked after in case three no trump is the best contract. If East's hand is not suitable for no-trump play, then West has the values to play at five clubs after the jump rebid.

As it happens, the three-heart bid tells East just what he wants to know, and he can bid three no trump with the knowledge that a diamond lead will come up to his king.

The play is straightforward, but the defenders have no excuse if they allow the declarer to make more than the ten tricks which he has on top. North should hold on to his spade stop, and there is no end-play, for South, having led the heart king, can keep the diamond ace and the good hearts.

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

Between temptations to steal away to the fair or otherwise enjoy charming San Francisco, delegates to the biennial convention of the National Federation of Federal Employees will give some serious attention to the pressing problems of retirement legislation and to extension of classification to the field service.

"Failure at the last session of Congress—through an utterly indefensible set of circumstances—of the Ramspect bill liberalizing the present retirement law, disappointing as it was, only can cause the N. F. F. E. to redouble its efforts in behalf of such a measure which is actuarially sound, beneficial to the employes and fair and reasonable to the Government and the taxpayers," it was said yesterday by Luther C. Steward, the organization's president.

The convention will be the largest in the N. F. F. E.'s history, drawing delegates from every State and several of the American possessions. The sessions open September 4.

S. M. Barrett, whose gifts at press agentry two years ago made the Interior Department Recreation Association one of the best known organizations in Washington, now resigns as editor of the I. D. R. A. News. Barrett so acts because of his transfer, several months ago to a position in the PWA, now removed from the Interior bailiwick.

Incidentally, the I. D. R. A. holds its third field day and outing Saturday at Fort Hunt, featuring bicycle polo, races, swimming, horseshoe pitching, badminton, softball and the election of a "Miss Interior" for 1940. I. D. R. A. President Edward J. Kelly has appointed John M. Wilkinson as chairman and field marshal for the day. To aid him are: Jack Marchant, who will direct the bicycle polo; Tex Guinan, swimming instructor; Tom Lehning, target pistol instructor; Ed Kruse, director of horseshoe pitching, and Skip Bailey, who will oversee the softball matches.

The first of approximately 300 new inspectors for the Wage-Hour Division began a thorough schooling yesterday. Among the students are several women. Maj. Arthur L. Fletcher, the enforcement chief, has laid down a policy for the group. They are to be firm but not roughnecks, he said. The school here will be duplicated by others in various parts of the country, affording short but solid instruction in the ways of detecting fair labor standards act violations.

Carlton R. Willett, who has been with the ICC longer than any employe with but one exception, retires from the service at the close of this month. He entered the commission as a clerk January 27, 1890. He was transferred to the Bureau of Valuation in 1914, being placed in charge of the supply room. He has served in that capacity to the present time. Before coming to the commission, Willett was employed in 1888 and 1889 as a page in the House of Representatives.

"Mr. Willett has gone about his duties through the years in a quiet, unassuming and efficient manner," it was said of him in the ICC's employe journal.

Which seems about the highest tribute that could be paid a public servant.

ADRIANA

By George Dyer

A Story of Love and Intrigue in Vineyard Sound

Chapter 10

"WHEN WE were coming down here in the storm," I said, "you told me that in a fog you would 'ask the bottom' where you were. That has bothered me. You didn't mean it literally, did you? Or did you?"

"Certainly, I did. Just the way Capt. Matt would ask it where he was. By sounding."

I shook my head. It meant nothing.

"By sounding," she repeated, "with an armed lead."

"I get a vague picture of a naval battle," said I.

"You know what it means to cast the lead?"

"More or less. That's how you find out if you have enough water under you. I believe it's mentioned in one of those books up there. The test for not enough water seems to be automatic."

"If you use the lead properly, you'll always have enough water. It gives you the depth, and if you arm the lead—that is, rub soap on the lower end—you get a sample of the bottom. After a few casts, the depths, the character of the bottom, and the direction you're drifting all join together to tell you exactly what spot you're in."

"It wouldn't tell me," I said gloomily.

"But it's simple, really," said the girl, leaning forward with the flush of zeal of the enthusiast. "Suppose, somehow, you've lost your hearing in a fog. We'll assume you're somewhere south of Newport, but you don't even know that. There is practically no wind. You can't hear any signals. You sound. You find you're drifting rather slowly southeast. The depths are a little under 100 feet. The bottom is a very fine gray sand. The minute you saw that sand you would be sure you were somewhere between Cuttyhunk and Point Jude, wouldn't you?"

GEORGE DYER

"Of course not," I said.

"I suppose not," sighed the gril, "but if you'd once seen that sand, you'd never forget the way it looks. Well, anyway—you go on drifting southeast. After a while the water suddenly shoals——"

"To the boats!" I cried, not without sarcasm.

"It shoals," said the girl, reprovingly, "to about 50 feet. The bottom is rocky. In a little while it deepens again sharply, to over 100 feet, and you get fine white sand. You know then that you have run over the ridge that cuts southwest from Cuttyhunk almost continuously to Block Island. You are either at the west end of Browns Ledge, or eastward of the East Ground, but probably Browns Ledge. That tells you that you have only to steer about east-nor'east to pick up the whistle of Vineyard Sound Lightship, or west-sou'west to hear the siren on Block Island. Wouldn't it tell you that?"

"It would tell me," I said, "to abandon the sea, take Uncle Nathan's biggest anchor and walk inland until someone asked me what was that contraption I had on my shoulder."

"No, but seriously," she said. "You'd learn it very quickly. All the different parts of the bottom are so characteristic. You could never mistake the ridge I was talking about, say, for the bottom on the other side of No Mans Land. There you find a sort of rocky gully at 10 fathoms cutting straight across beds of clay at 5 or 6 fathoms. And there's an unmistakable coarse red sand out there—Oh, I've seen Capt. Matt check it so often that I don't think I could go wrong now, but you'd learn it all in no time."

"IT MIGHT take longer than you think," said I, "but I hope you are willing to teach me—about that, and about sailing, and everything. I'm going to stay here until you graduate me, if it takes three months. I hope the fact that you're here so late means that you aren't going to college, or anything tedious like that."

"No, I'm all through school, for good. I finished this spring. I hate learning out of books. They're so—so dead," said Adiana, with feeling.

"And you will give me a course in handling a sailboat?"

"If you want. And if the weather is decent enough. I love your yawl. I'd be willing to go anywhere in her."

This remark I filed for later reference, but I only said:

"Fine. I sign up for the course. But the first lesson is not about sailing. We started to talk about the Sea Reduction Corporation, in which obviously you and I together own a controlling share, for whatever it's worth. How do you come to hold 5 per cent of a security which they tell me isn't listed anywhere, and which there's apparently no market for at all now?"

"I guess it's another part of the same story about your Uncle Nathan and my father and mother. Some years ago, your uncle wrote my mother and said that he was interested in a company and that the company wanted to buy some property formerly owned by my father on the Menemsha Bight shoreline, to put up a factory. He asked her if she would be willing to sell it at a very good price. Well, it happened that father had left that land to me, so on mother's advice, and her lawyer's, I agreed to sell. Of course, I wasn't of age then, but mother always made me make my own decisions. Your uncle wrote mother and said that the factory was going to extract all sorts of valuable chemicals from the sea water, and while he confessed it was a pure speculation, he had confidence in it and in the man who was running it, and he recommended that I take stock in the company in part payment. I suppose your uncle, because of mother, persuaded the officers of the company to make a very generous offer for the land, and the cash payment was really as much as the land was worth, so the stock was just that much velvet, and so I took it, and put it away, and thought very little about it. Except it paid us a good dividend every year, up to this year. Then, in the spring, the president of the company suddenly turned up at our house, and asked for a proxy for my shares ——"

"Just when was that?" I asked. A faint smell of rat had come into the air of this discussion.

"Let's see," pondered the girl. "It was the end of Easter vacation. The beginning of April. It wasn't earlier than that, I'm sure."

"Mm-mm," I said. "My uncle died the end of March. Did you give him the proxy?"

"Yes," said Adriana. "We didn't know anything about the affairs of the company, and the president seemed to think it was very important. But Mother was careful to have me give it only for the one meeting last spring. It seemed they had to put through some very important reorganization or else the whole Sea Reduction Corporation might go on the rocks."

"I'LL BET!" I said. "So all the monkey-business took place after my uncle's death, and it was me, not my uncle, who was robbed—if it was robbery, as seems likely, since the lawyers say no one can be got to offer a plugged nickel for my certificate. And worst of all," I added, eyeing Adriana ferociously, "you helped this guy to take my shirt."

"Don't look at me like that," she smiled, "or I'll order The MacGlashan to bite you. MacGlashan, bite a small piece out of that man." The great gray head came up abruptly, and the brown eyes looked into mine with disconcerting steadiness. Then the dog turned as if to gauge from his mistress's expression how earnest she was, and found that she was not in earnest at all. He gave an enormous red-and-white yawn and let his head drop on her leg with a thud.

"Ouch!" Adriana laughed. "But, seriously, you know how it is. We thought I was simply one of a lot of little stockholders. The president said he just happened to be on the Vineyard inspecting the company's property, and it had occurred to him to run up and make the acquaintance of a stockholder who lived only 4 or 5 miles from the plant, and, since he was there, he might as well get a signature on the proxy form he happened to have in his pocket. I had come of age a few days before, and so I signed. Then he went away."

"Not a bit. It's just that I didn't like the president of the Sea Reduction Corporation."

"What was the matter?"

"Oh, I don't know. Why do you like one person at once, and dislike a lump of butter. No, not butter—oleomargarine. And his name sounded something like 'rascal,' even."

"Raskin," I said.

"That was it," she agreed.

"Have you seen hide or hair of him since that day?" I asked.

"Oh, yes. I see him often," she said, surprisingly.

"You do?"
